FIRES IN MANILA; FALL NEAR

CHARGES ARMY DOUBLE CROSS ON LABOR DRAFT

Secret Opposition to Byrnes Told.

BY WILLIAM MOORE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 3.—Sen. Johnson [D., Col.] ripped the lid off the administration maneuvering over the "work or jail" bill today, charging that the war department has "sabotaged" the legislation.

Sen. Johnson.

Johnson accused the department of publicly joining with other government agencies in urging that administration of the bill's provisions be placed in the hands of War Mobilizer Byrnes and then privately demanding that the powers be given to selective service officials.

"This is a good example," Johnson said at a press conference, "of the dirty double crossing that goes on in the executive departments of this administration."

Johnson disclosed that the senate military affairs committee once voted in secret yesterday, 7 to 2, to approve giving control to Byrnes.

Changed Their Minds.

The committee "backed up," Johnson said, after members received telephone protests from the war department, and withheld approval of the bill for senate consideration. Johnson refused to tell who did the telephoning.

It was said by many on Capitol Hill, however, that the messages were given in the name of Brig. Gen. Wilton B. Parsons, chief of the legislative and liaison division of the war department special staff.

These same persons said the so-called "Plattsburg group" has thrown its influence behind a secret move to place the power in the selective service system. The Plattsburg group is composed largely of easterners who have attended the citizens' military training camp at Plattsburg, N. Y., or have come under its influence.

Group Stresses Compulsion.

This group was clamoring long before the United States entered the war for conscription both for the army and for agriculture and industry.

The strategy of professing to favor giving control to Byrnes, as urged by the war and navy departments, the war man power commission and selective service itself, and then trying secretly to keep it in selective service hands, as provided in the May bill passed by the house, is not yet apparent.

But Johnson's open charge of a "double cross" was said by members of congress to indicate that there is plenty of dynamite in the maneuvering.

Johnson said the committee had originally intended to rush the bill to the senate because "we figured it was a morale builder." Johnson said that altho several members

France Balks at Paying for U. S. Supplies

U. S. Cargo Due

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Feb. 2.—The first American ship laden with goods for France under the new Franco-American economic agreement is expected momentarily to arrive at a French Atlantic port. The cargo includes medical supplies, newsprint, and tar paper. Allied shipments to France since the June 6 invasion to the end of 1944 totaled 100,000 tons, exclusive of coal and petroleum, and consisted mostly of foodstuffs, medical supplies, clothes, soap, and agricultural products.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 3 (AP).—The government announced tonight a far-reaching program for French civilian supplies, but officials conceded privately that Franco-American relations will get worse before they get better.

The announcement covered thousands of tons of foodstuffs, industrial materials, and transportation equipment, including 700 locomotives and 9,000 trucks, authorized for French purchase here.

The goods are being shipped as rapidly as cargo space becomes available. The announcement disclosed 46,000 tons of civilian supplies were shipped to France during January.

Stock Piles Planned.

Other goods are to be stockpiled near ports for movement as tonnage becomes available.

There is unexpectedly prolonged difference on one issue between the French and American representatives negotiating over supplies here.

That is the extent to which France should use her available resources of 2 billion 400 million dollars to pay for civilian goods and the extent to which those goods may be shipped under some form of lend-lease arrangement.

American policy now appears to be fixed along these lines:

1. Lend-lease goods to be given to the French will be munitions.

2. For the time being, they may obtain on a temporary lend-lease credit basis some long term capital goods such as dynamos, for which the United States cannot at present offer any other means of financing. But the French will have to agree to pay eventually.

3. For purchases of goods for immediate civilian consumption, the French, under the agreement now contemplated, will have to put "cash on the barrel head."

Early Settlement in Doubt.

No goods are being held up while the agreement is being negotiated, but on the other hand there is no prospect of an immediate settlement.

Officials said that the French are going thru a severe winter and that failure to get supplies delivered in time to prevent suffering means some loss of good will between France and the other allies.

"Somebody has to be a scapegoat," one authority said, "and it looks like we're it—we and the British."

There has not been much shipping available for French civilian goods and there has been little transportation inside France to distribute goods. French political leaders are inclined to blame the United States and Britain more frequently than the war.

The figures on French purchases of locomotives, trucks, and other goods were contained in a summary of economic and military assistance to France made public by the office of war information.

PEACE NEWS BREAKS BROKERS, WAR NEWS BOOSTS STOCKS

Vaughan Hospital Rebuilds Lives of Wounded Soldiers

BY MARCIA WINN.

The first patient of the army's new Vaughan General hospital at Maywood entered last Aug. 2. Behind him have come 3,161 others. They came by stretcher on hospital train or plane, almost directly from the field of combat. Already more than half have walked out.

They have entered battered, diseased, wrapped in splints, their nerves as mangled as their bodies. They have walked out to go home on furlough, to go to the army's convalescent center at the Percy Jones hospital in Battle Creek, Mich., or to go back to a battle area.

The average soldier stays only 35 days. He may have lost two fingers of his right hand, but in that time he will have learned to use the other three. A bullet may have fractured every bone in his ankle, but he will be walking on it. A chunk of shrapnel may have passed thru his left thigh, breaking the bone, ravaging the tissue, but when he first walks on his left leg, he will have, surprisingly, muscle tone. He will have new teeth if he needs them, clean teeth, and not a cavity in his head. If he is the average patient, he also will go away rich with new skills and knowledge.

Reconditioning A Vital Task.

Vaughan's objective may be stated briefly: Get the boy convalescent; get him convalescent as rapidly as possible; others are coming behind him.

Rapid convalescence is not attained by medical care alone, not the way the army does it. It is achieved equally, altho unconsciously on the part of the wounded soldier, by what the army calls "reconditioning." Army surgeons place reconditioning second in importance only to medical care. Reconditioning is teaching the abused flesh, muscle, bone, nerve, and mind to do again the work for which it was created. It is a tremendous program.

The average civilian might consider an army hospital full of wounded soldiers a depressing place. Vaughan is about as far from that as Chicago is from Mars. Wander thru its 67 two story buildings, all connected by covered corridors, and you emerge amazed and delighted.

You will run into men from every global battle field—from Leyte and Burma, from Italy, France, and Germany, from England and New Guinea. You will run into every race—Chinese, Negro, Japanese-American, all wounded in Nordic Europe, and the fair skinned boy wounded in the orient. They are gay. They are cheerful. They are almost home. They are in America. "It doesn't matter how you get there, it doesn't matter why," a boy from the 9th air force said joyously. "You're back, and, boy, are you lucky!"

Happy Hearts in Hospital.

The corridors teem with wheelchairs, propelled at breakneck speed by their occupants. "Hi, there!" the red headed bombardier, wounded on his 13th mission, on Friday the 13th, will yell as he wobbles past. "Good morning," the man with both legs in walking braces will smile as he stumps past on his crutches.

The wards are so full of traction devices, suspending a leg, an arm, two legs, two arms, that the beds look like Rube Goldberg nightmares of wires, weights, and pulleys; yet the man propped up will be reading a novel, building a miniature boat, painting, or even embroidering.

A pin-up girl hangs on almost every bed. She can and does come regularly to visit, for every patient at Vaughan is in what is roughly classified as his home area, rarely more than five hours away by train. Sometimes she brings the child the father has never seen before.

Movies, Books, Classes.

There are movies, brought to the wards for the bedridden, given in one of the various theaters for the others. There are telephones where the call home may be made. There is a library of 5,000 books. There are classes in everything from sculpture to radio repair, printing, code, French, Italian, German, and Chinese, some brought by the record-and-handbook method. Behind each class is a purpose: to awaken the interest of lethargic mind or drawn muscle, to get the soldier convalescent and on his way.

That is reconditioning.

Reconditioning comes under three headings: physical, occupational, and educational. Twice a day every patient in the hospital has calisthenics of some sort. Without exercise, convalescence is dragged out.

Muscles Are Put to Work.

Into the traction ward comes a reconditioning expert—a long name for an officer or enlisted man in tennis shoes. He leads the ward in mass calisthenics. From 10 to 12 repetitions of each exercise are called for but each man takes his

NAZI PEACE PLEA TO BIG 3 RUMORED

Report Parley Being Held in Black Sea Area.

[By Wireless to the New York Times and The Chicago Tribune.]

CAIRO, Egypt, Feb. 3 — While rumors began to spread widely thruout the eastern Mediterranean, between Cairo and Ankara, that the desperate Germans had sent peace feelers to the conference of allied leaders in the Black sea area where they are rumored to be meeting, not only can these not be confirmed but it is felt likely that they are premature.

Nevertheless, with reports that the conference may last longer than expected, there is room for speculation regarding the possibility of such an occurence at a later date.

It must, however, be emphasized that this is purely speculation.

Rumors of Meeting Place.

It is rumored that the meeting has been under way for a few days now on the verges of the soviet union's southern borders. The Germans contend that the historic conference is taking place somewhere along the Rumanian coast. In Turkey rumor is current that it is taking place at a Crimean resort.

There is a possibility that at least certain phases of the talks are aboard a ship.

It is said that the United States and Britain have sent exceptionally large delegations. It is believed likely that Premier Stalin has brought with him a far larger delegation than attended him at Tehran.

World League Topic

Among other topics likely to be discussed by the allied leaders, is that of an immediate creation of some form of international peace machinery to follow any German surrender and to serve as a foundation stone for the widely desired successor to the league of nations.

It is reported in diplomatic circles that Stalin is anxious to set up the seat for such an international body at Vienna.

This would have a certain justification in the sense that it would be on the scene of one of Hitler's earliest international activities.

Furthermore, it would have merit of being located more or less on the border line between western Europe and an area which must be regarded as definitely within the Soviet's sphere of influence, whether officially recognized or not.

Plan Conciliation Council.

LONDON, Feb. 3 (AP).—The victory and peace deliberations of the allied big three are believed here to include creation of a grand conciliation council to settle political and economic problems and prevent disagreement among the allies on European policy.

The urgency for such organization has been underlined by admitted policy disagreements between Britain and the United States on Greece and Italy and the separate views of the soviet union and the British and Americans on the Polish question.

CAPITAL HEARS AMERICAN GUNS ROAR; M'ARTHUR MOVES BASE NEARER CITY

Troops See Smoke Over City

BY DONALD STARR.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WITH THE 37TH DIVISION ON THE ROAD TO MANILA, Feb. 3.—This morning, as American troops begin closing on Manila, we can see smoke from fires in the capital's dock districts. The fall of Manila is at hand.

Our troops are pressing hard on San Juan, 13 air miles from Manila. San Juan is the village where the highways meet which the 37th division and the 1st cavalry division are using. The first division to reach San Juan undoubtedly will be the first into Manila.

All phase lines—boundaries which all divisions must reach before any one advances—have been erased, and the divisions are moving ahead full speed.

A big factor in the 37th's drive is bridging of the Pampanga and Labangan rivers, both too deep to ford. Steel bridges across both have been destroyed. The engineers have been working since midnight Thursday, installing pontoons and temporary steel bridges.

BY ARTHUR VEYSEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

OVER MANILA SUBURBS, Luzon, P. I., Feb. 2 [delayed].—From the air, Manila this afternoon appears a dead city. The highways leading into the suburbs are bare, even of pedestrians. Manila citizens either have evacuated or are staying indoors.

"You never see anybody before our troops move in," said the pilot of our artillery spotting plane, Lt. Edward Hilton, 5640 Woodlawn av., a former Chicago attorney.

Just outside Manila is the wreckage of two trains which crashed head-on. Box cars and flat cars in the suburb yards are burned out. On the steel bed of one car, bombs are still neatly piled.

A big column of white smoke rises from the wharf area, just beyond where the modern white buildings of downtown Manila reflect the bright afternoon sun.

Other fires are burning to the south of the town. Across the bay, empty of all except fishing boats, smoke rises from Corregidor and Cavite.

Two Yank Columns Neck and Neck in Race to Enter.

GEN. MacARTHUR'S HDQ., Central Luzon, Feb. 4 [Sunday]—(AP).—Yank columns are fast approaching Manila, far outdistancing the official reports today which put them less than 15 miles away on the north at 6 p. m. Friday.

[Friday 6 p. m. Philippine time was 4 a. m. Friday, Chicago time. Thus Gen. MacArthur's official reports are of action taking place nearly two days ago, Chicago time.]

"American big guns are close enough this [Friday] evening for Manila residents to hear them," reported an Associated Press correspondent, Russell Brines, with the 37th division. This division is in a neck and neck drive with the motorized 1st cavalry division for the honor of being the first to enter the city.

[Broadcast reports from Luzon yesterday referred to patrols reaching the outskirts without specifying places.]

Cross Angat River.

Today's bulletin made no mention of any enemy resistance as it spotlighted a heavy movement of the first cavalry down to the Angat river, where its patrols were reported yesterday. First cavalry elements then crossed the river at Bustos to make the closer approach.

Filipinos drifting out of Manila all told of Japanese sailors, marines, and soldiers remaining in the city.

Air observers reported no sign of enemy defenses at Manila, but Maj. Gen. Oscar W. Griswold, commander of the 14th corps, emphasized he would not risk sending the troops into a trap.

"Beans More Important"

"I don't know whether the 1st cavalry or 37th division will reach Manila first," Griswold said.

He added with emphasis: "But I am telling you no troops under my command are entering the city until they have heavier guns and heavy equipment. I am not going to throw good military judgment to the wind to stage a footrace into a city which for all we know may be stoutly defended. Beans and bridges are still more of a problem than Japs and bullets."

Indications were that the Americans may not have long to wait to find out whether Gen. Yamashita will fight for Manila. The city may be blockaded on land, cut off by sea, and blanketed in the air.

MacArthur Moves Up.

Gen. MacArthur moved his headquarters into central Luzon to be closer to the climax punch poised at the city where he had his headquarters when the war broke.

[Arthur Feldman, Blue network correspondent, said in a broadcast the march on Manila is moving so fast that some Yanks collapsed from the heat and were taken back to the rear. Next day every one of them was back in the line of march again. Feldman reported seeing Maj. Gen. Griswold standing on a bridge over one river directing traffic "and just shoving trucks and halftracks across the span."]

Dean Schedler, correspondent with the 1st cavalry, said "this flying squadron has done virtually no fighting, leaving by-passed Japanese pockets to the main columns following."

In the first corps sector along the east side of the central Luzon plains, 25th division troops captured Santa Maria, entrance to the Villaverde trail leading northeast into Cagayan valley. It is into this valley that Japanese forces have been retreating, including the main garrison which fled from the prison camp near Cabanatuan.

Capture Umingan.

The 25th division also captured Umingan after inflicting heavy casualties on the Japanese in heavy fighting.

The 1st cavalry was on virtual even terms with the 37th, pushing thru San Ildefonso and San Miguel in Bulacan province.

On the left flank, first corps troops pushed thru the Caraballo mountains and shelled Tumana, two miles south of San Jose in Nueva Ecija province.

Yanks of the 38th and 24th division who landed Monday in Zambales province northwest of Manila have punched eight miles across the

Oder River Battle Rages, Berlin Says

LONDON, Feb. 4 [Sunday]—(AP).—The Red army, closing swiftly on Frankfurt and Kustrin, last Oder river strongholds 38 and 40 miles from bomb shattered Berlin, yesterday reached the marshes bordering that last natural barrier to the axis capital, Moscow said last night.

Advancing up to 8 miles against fierce resistance by heavy enemy reenforcements, soviet tanks pushed thru Sonnenburg, 6 miles southeast of Kustrin, and also seized Reppen, 10 miles east of Frankfurt's east bank suburb of Damm.

Captured Sonnenburg is 47 miles from Berlin, the closest the Russians officially have placed their troops, but the Germans said that Kustrin, 40 miles northeast of Berlin, was the scene of furious combat, with the Russians attacking the garrison from northwest, northeast, east, and south.

Reds Cross Oder, Say Nazis.

Soviet shock troops made one crossing of the Oder near Kustrin, but were wiped out, Berlin said. One new soviet attack in the southern suburbs was beaten off during the day, Berlin added.

North of the Warthe river the Russians seized Vietz, 11 miles northeast of Kustrin, in an eight mile two day advance.

Marshal Zhukov was pouring thousands of tanks, guns and infantrymen into the big bend formed by the Oder and Warthe rivers. These troops encircled the large German force in a forest southeast of Kustrin, killing 8,000 and capturing 9,450.

Moscow did not announce any further progress by Russian units fighting toward Stettin, Baltic port 70 miles northeast of Berlin. The Russians on Friday were reported within 36 miles of Stettin, and a Russian German-language broadcast yesterday placed them only 11 miles from their goal.

Nazi Vessels Flee Stettin.

Capture of Stettin would cut off a 13,500 square mile section of Pomerania, the Polish Corridor, and Danzig.

Farther east other soviet troops were attacking toward the Baltic coast in a similar effort to split up Pomerania and lessen the threat of a German flanking attack on the central salient.

In East Prussia the Russians gained up to five miles on a curving 32 mile front and captured 30 localities in the shrinking axis pocket below besieged Koenigsberg. The capital itself still held out.

The Russians announced capture of 10 more blocks in the Buda section of Budapest and for the first time disclosed the power of the German relief attacks between the capital and Sekesfehervar, 32 miles away.

On a 30 mile front east and southeast of Sekesfehervar the Russians had been pushed back almost to the Danube, Moscow disclosed, in telling of the recapture of more than 60 localities. The Germans for weeks had claimed continuing successes in this area until a few days ago when the Russians went over to the counter-attack.

'THE END,' SAYS GERMAN RADIO MYSTERIOUSLY

LONDON, Feb. 3 (AP).—The official German DNB news agency mysteriously signaled the words, "Schluss, schluss [the end, the end]," tonight in the middle of one of its regular broadcasts after a smashing daylight raid by American bombers on Berlin.

The words, "Schluss, schluss," were recorded on machines in the Associated Press listening post where German news transmissions are picked up. The machines are teleprinters operated by radio signals from German transmission stations, presumably located in Berlin.

"Schluss" sometimes is used by German broadcasters to indicate the end of a transmission period, but never before, Associated Press listeners said, has it been interjected during a transmission.

The DNB transmission had been interrupted by the raid on Berlin and had been jumbled when broadcasting was resumed, but when "schluss" came, transmitting facilities appeared to be operating satisfactorily and the signals came clearly.

Moscow Says Panic Reigns.

In a message headed "For Nauen [a German short wave station] only," the DNB European service transmitted "market reports from Berlin in English tonight. The listeners said this also was unprecedented and that the market reports always before had been in German.

Broadcasts from Moscow stated flatly today that panic reigned in many parts of Germany. The press and radio of the reich, probably preparing for an allied demand for immediate surrender, cried: "Remember 1918."

A soviet broadcast asserted that Propaganda Minister Goebbels, who had been charged with the defense of Berlin by Hitler, had fled to Bavaria, but the Nazi controled Danish radio said Goebbels would speak today to the people of the threatened capital on the municipal broadcast system. This is a means of telephone communication which would limit his address to the Berlin area.

Report Exodus to Munich.

Munich, said a Swiss correspondent, is "hourly becoming more and more the capital of the reich."

A dispatch from Stockholm has claimed that Berlin's entire population, including old men, women, and children, was being armed to defend the city and that prisoners in jails were being shot.

Another Swiss report said that most of the anti-aircraft guns protecting Berlin had been moved to the Oder river defense line or to Munich.

Other neutral reports said anti-Hitler posters and scribblings were appearing on walls in many German cities, flouting the trumpeting of newspapers that "all enemy claims cannot be achieved if the German people have the firm will not to capitulate."

Two American Columns Race to Enter Manila—Philippine Capital Hears Yanks' Big Guns

base of Bataan peninsula from seized Olongapo naval base.

The 11th air borne division of the 8th army, which landed Wednesday in Batangas province southwest of Manila, have captured Caylungan, 13 miles inland, in their drive toward Cavite naval base. They also seized Aga.

Gen. MacArthur announced that enemy casualties in the Luzon campaign for the first three weeks exceeded 33,000. American casualties were 5,589, including 1,271 killed, 219 missing, and 4,099 wounded.

No Extensive Defenses.

A flight over Manila Friday by Fred Hampson, AP war correspondent, led him to report that he had not sighted any extensive defenses around the approaches to the city. Visibility was poor, he said, but the city appeared quiet and little damaged, except for the waterfront area.

Engineers of the 37th division, Hampson reported, were spanning the Pampanga river and canal at Calumpit to permit passage of heavy vehicles. Several battalions of the 145th and 148th infantry regiments of the 37th already had crossed the river and advanced well beyond.

An indication that the Japanese might turn Manila into a battle ground came from George Folster, NBC war correspondent on Luzon. He reported that several Filipinos with whom he had talked in the vicinity of the 6th army spearheads said some buildings had been mined, tank traps installed on highways and windows cemented shut.

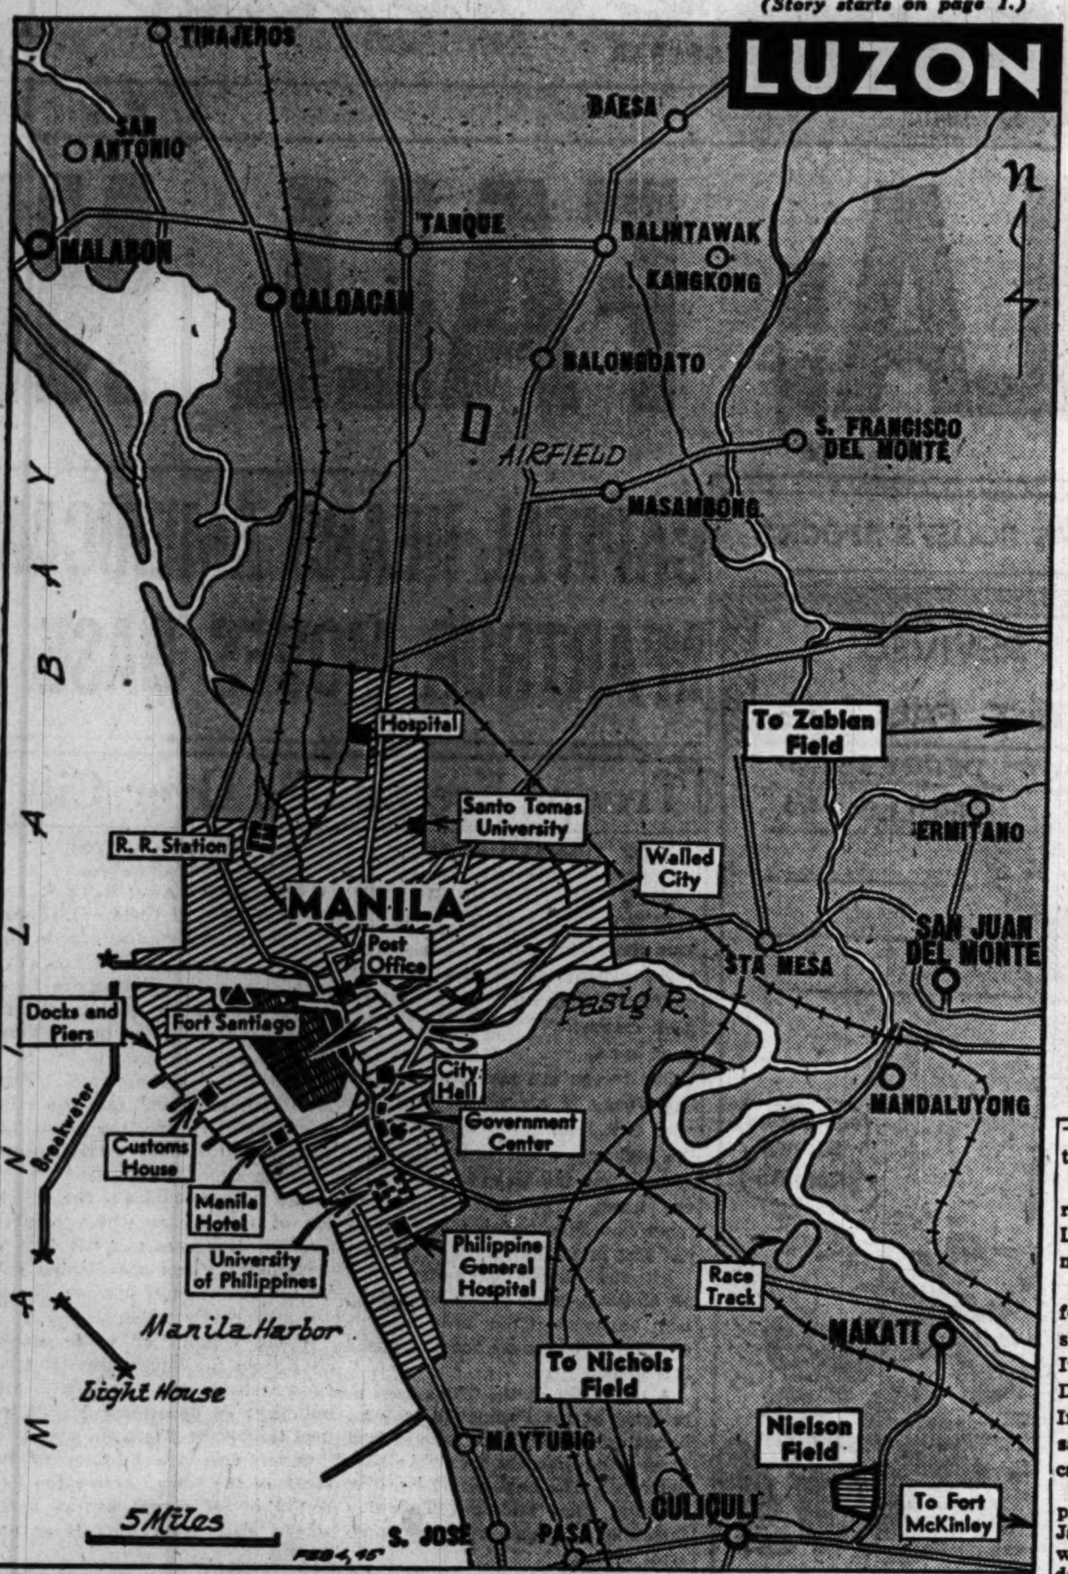
[Arthur Feldman, Blue network correspondent in a broadcast from Luzon said there are rumors the road approaches to Manila have been heavily mined by the enemy. He said the Japanese marine garrison in Manila is intact and pointed out that only 6,000 Japanese could put up a bitter fight, utilizing sections of the city suited for last-stand operations.]

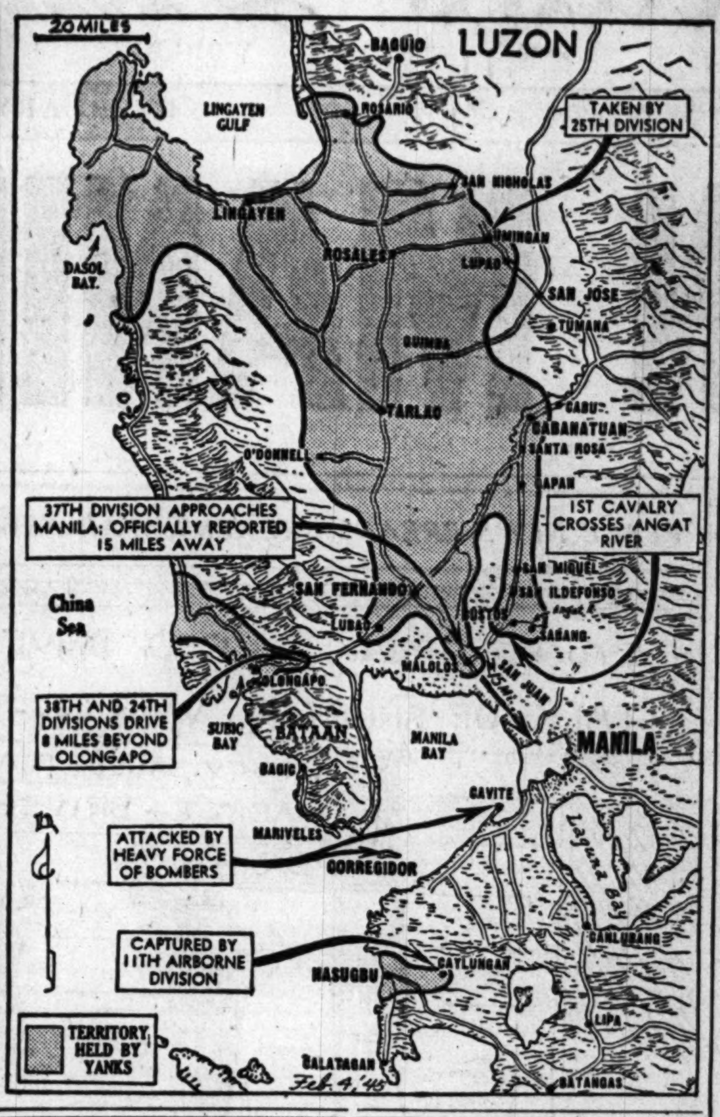
Bombers Pound Corregidor.

Bombers in force attacked Corregidor and Cavite naval base.

At Palawan Island medium and attack bombers struck Puerto Princessa water front and seaplane base, with resulting fires and explosions.

Following night harassing attacks on Tainan airdrome, installations at Karenko and in the Sakishima Islands, heavy bombers attacked the Toko seaplane base, causing large explosions and fires. Patrol planes harassed enemy shipping off Formosa and along the China coast, setting afire three small freighters and damaging several others by strafing. A float plane was shot down east of Hongkong.





INDIANAN IN COMMAND

BY DEAN SCHEDLER.

FIFTEEN MILES FROM MANILA, Feb. 2 [Delayed] (AP).—Within the last 24 hours this flying column of 1st cavalry under the command of Lt. Col. Haskett L. Conner Jr., son of Col H. L. Conner of Wakeman, Ind., has slashed 45 miles southwest from Cabanatuan.

We passed numerous pockets of snipers. Small cavalry advance units were sent ahead to secure bridges.

In some dark curves of the highway, Japanese were lurking in the brush awaiting their chance to strike, but it never came.

One small reconnaissance unit went down the road to obtain information on bridges and place markers for the convoy to follow a few hours later. In one small barrio tanks quickly dispersed 40 Japanese who were attempting to stage a delaying action.

MacArthur Near Manila.

WITH AMERICAN TROOPS IN PHILIPPINES, Feb. 2 [Delayed]—(AP).—Ringing church bells and flower bedecked villages welcomed Gen. MacArthur today as he jeeped ahead with his most advanced infantry patrols, which took him—had the road been on a hilltop—almost within sight of the outskirts of Manila.

The general ran into small sized ovations in several barrios whose inhabitants loudly shouted, "Viva Mockarthur" and "Veektory," the inevitable greetings of all Filipinos to everybody in American uniform on Luzon.

ENVOY APPEALS FOR AID.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Jose Vargas, ambassador to Japan of the puppet Philippines government, told a Tokyo audience yesterday that "the fate and destiny of the empire" is at stake.

He appealed for more war material for Gen. Yamashita's force on Luzon and declared the "Americans must be stopped in the Philippines."

Japan will not abandon the fight for the Philippines "even tho Tokyo should be reduced to ashes," Gen. Iwane Matsui, president of the Asia Development headquarters of the Imperial Rule Assistance association, said at a rally in the Japanese capital.

"The rise and fall of the Philippines is the joint responsibility of Japan and the Philippines," Matsui was quoted. "We must not let President Joseph Laurel taste the bitter cup as Gen. Aguinaldo did 40 years ago. Even if Tokyo should be reduced to ashes, Japan must without regret rescue the Philippines."

$700 TAKEN FROM SAFE.

Burglars took $700 from a safe in the office of the Phillips Petroleum company, 12401 Indiana av., William J. Cardes, manager, told police yesterday.

N. Y. CLIQUE RUNS THE 'WORKS' NOW UNDER NEW DEAL

Holding Most of Key Jobs in Administration.

BY WALTER TROHAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 3.—New Yorkers are in the saddle under the New Deal. Citizens of the Empire state, where internationalism flourishes, are preponderant in the cabinet, in key administration posts, the White House palace guard, and in the Supreme court.

Capture of high posts by New Yorkers had brought many Wall Streeters into the service of an administration, which began on March 4, 1933, with President Roosevelt's declaration that the money changers had fled from their seats in the temple of our civilization.

The ranking New Yorker in the government is President Roosevelt, Christmas tree farmer from Hyde Park, N. Y. In the White House as No. 1 confidant is Harry Hopkins, who came to the capital from New York City, where he was a social worker for many years.

Rosenman a New Yorker.

Three other members of the White House palace guard are New Yorkers—Samuel I. Rosenman, former judge; Anna Rosenberg, self styled labor expert, and Robert Sherwood, playwright and ghost writer.

Navy Secretary Forrestal [left], Secretary of War Stimson [center], and Treasury Secretary Morgenthau.

Highest on the list of New Yorkers, who hold no office in the administration but wield tremendous influence in the New Deal, is Sidney Hillman, labor and political leader, who was born under the shadow of Moscow but operates from New York City. A somewhat less influential New Yorker is Edward J. [Paving Blocks] Flynn, former Democratic national chairman.

Five members of the cabinet are New Yorkers, altho one, Secretary of State Stettinius, gives Virginia as his home. Stettinius came to the New Deal from New York City where he was president of the United States Steel corporation.

Wall Street's Gift.

Stettinius is also a leading Wall street gift to the New Deal. He is the son of a late J. P. Morgan partner.

Wall street also claims three other places in the cabinet. Secretary of War Stimson was a Wall street lawyer, Navy Secretary Forrestal was a Wall street broker, and Treasury Secretary Morgenthau is the son of a Wall street lawyer and investment banker.

The fifth New Yorker in the cabinet is Labor Secretary Perkins, the first woman cabinet member.

Two of the nine men on the Supreme court are from New York state—Chief Justice Stone and Justice Jackson.

In the state department, in addition to Stettinius, Asst. Secretaries Nelson Rockefeller and James Clement Dunn are New Yorkers. New Yorkers holding high ambassadorial posts include W. Averell Harriman at Moscow, Laurence A. Steinhardt at Ankara, Turkey, and Leland Harrison at Geneva, Switzerland.

In the war department Stimson is served by three New Yorkers. They are Undersecretary Robert P. Patterson, a former Wall street lawyer; Asst. Secretary for Air Robert A. Lovett, and Asst. Secretary John J. McCloy.

In the navy department, Forrestal is served by Asst. Secretary Artemus Gates of New York. There is a long line of New Yorkers in the treasury department, headed by Asst. Secretary Herbert Gaston and Collector of Internal Revenue Joseph D. Nunan Jr.

In the justice department two out of six ranking assistants are New Yorkers—Wendell Berge and Francis M. Shea. In the department of commerce, Assistant Secretary William H. M. Burden is a New Yorker.

New Yorkers have captured top places in many important alphabetical agencies. Among these are Leland Olds, chairman of the federal power commission; Byron Price, director of the office of censorship; Elmer Davis, director of the office of war information; William H. Davis, chairman of the war labor board; Ganson Purcell, chairman of the Rubber Development corporation.

Bowles Another One.

Chester Bowles, OPA director, heads a number of New Yorkers who give Connecticut as their official residence. He is the head of a New York advertising agency, but lives in Connecticut.

Among Wall street representatives in the New Deal are Benjamin J. Buttonweiser, John M. Schiff, and Lewis Straus, partners of Kuhn, Loeb & Co.

The Morgan interests are represented by F. Trubee Davidson, brother of a Morgan partner, as well as by Stettinius and Assistant Secretary of the Navy Gates.

The Harriman interests have given Ambassador Harriman and Assistant Secretary of War Lovett. Lehman Brothers gave its former partner, Herbert Lehman, as director of the office of foreign relief and rehabilitation.

Ohio Governor Urges 5 Day Week to Curtail Fuel Needs

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

A fuel conserving proclamation by Gov. Frank J. Lausche of Ohio and the decision of Massachusetts state guardsmen to help deliver coal pointed up last night the seriousness in midwestern and northeastern states of transportation, food, coal, and gas distribution difficulties that developed from two months of severe winter weather.

Gov. Lausche suggested in his proclamation that all Ohio business firms, except war plants and essential institutions, observe a five day work week thru April 1 to conserve fuel and assure continued residential heating.

Acknowledging he had no authority to enforce such a shutdown, the governor asserted the plan had been approved by all of the state's business elements thru his emergency council and compliance would be worked out by municipal and county groups. He previously had ordered a three day closing, beginning yesterday, of governmental offices.

Guards to Haul Coal.

A man power shortage in Massachusetts coal yards prompted the state guard to volunteer help in making deliveries. In Boston the fuel institute urged all able-bodied men to report at coal storage centers for similar work.

In Pittsburgh the board of education suspended for one week all evening school activities, except war training programs, and Mayor Cornelius D. Scully asked clubs, lodges, and other civic groups to cancel all meetings during the emergency.

War plant operations in the Pittsburgh area were further curtailed yesterday when the Carnegie-Illinois Steel corporation shut down 20 more open hearth furnaces, raising the total to 50 in five plants.

Approximately 200 war plants and mines in Pennsylvania were completely or partly closed as a result of fuel, man power, and transportation shortages which became more acute as the government's new rail shipping embargo went into effect. The Pennsylvania mining situation had eased somewhat, however, with 11 previously closed mines resuming production in the western part of the state.

Coal Production Down.

In Washington, the solid fuels administration reported a soft coal production loss of about 386,000 tons during the week ended Jan. 27, attributing the reduction to delayed movement of 6,992 railroad cars because of bad weather. Consumption exceeded production by nearly 11 million tons in December, the agency added, an unfavorable condition which directly affected the manufacture of coke and steel.

Pennsylvania anthracite production for the week ended Jan. 27 totaled only 959,000 tons, compared with 1,274,000 tons last year, and 999,000 tons in the previous week, Interior Secretary Ickes said.

A spokesman for the Association of American Railroads said in Washington that traffic conditions, generally speaking, looked "a little better" and that railroads were making favorable progress in unsnarling their facilities. Unless there is further heavy snowfall, he added, it is hoped the rail shipments embargo this week-end may be the last.

Albany to End Shutdown.

Residents of New York state, harassed by cold and deep snow for weeks, also took a more optimistic view of the transportation problem. In Albany officials decided to reopen stores, schools, amusement places, and office buildings next Wednesday on word that coal was on the way.

Buffalo's freight jam was lessened, with 10,359 cars moving in the 24 hours ended at midnight Friday as compared with 8,338 the previous day. About 700 state guardsmen and 250 furloughed soldiers were working in Buffalo yards.

DIRECTS APPEAL TO CONGRESS ON COAL DIVERSION

Declaring many Illinois towns are virtually without coal and that their supply problem cannot be solved by moderating weather, T. E. Gorman, executive secretary of the Illinois Fuel Merchants association, said yesterday efforts are being continued to divert 50,000 tons of Illinois coal from South American shipment to domestic use here.

Gorman said his reports of limited or no coal supplies on hand came from Belvidere, Naperville, Mattoon, Joliet, Champaign, Urbana, Elgin, Freeport, Bloomington, Peoria, Ottawa, Jacksonville, Decatur, Galesburg, Robinson, Mount Vernon, La Salle, and many smaller communities.

REVEAL YANKS' EPIC HIKE THRU BURMA JUNGLE

Jap Retreat Harassed in Surprise Maneuver.

[By Wireless to the New York Times and The Chicago Tribune.]

COMBAT HDQ., North Burma, Feb. 1 [Delayed].—American troops of the North Burma Mars task force executed one of the most grueling jungle marches ever made to carry out their surprise attack against the Japanese retreat road north of Lashio two weeks ago.

After four days of slogging up and down 4,000-foot hills they made a 22 hour hike that veterans in the Mars task force who fought with Merrill's Marauders last year said was worse than anything experienced then.

Details of the march and of subsequent battles with the Japanese were brought into this headquarters today by Lt. Richard Hawkins of St. Paul, of the Mars force. Lt. Hawkins is a former Minnesota football player.

Go 9 Miles Thru Forest.

To achieve the surprise the American detachment, commanded by Col. Ernest Easterbrook, son-in-law of Gen. Stilwell, turned off the trail thru the trackless forest for 9 miles.

"We climbed straight over steep hills and crossed swamps and gorges," said Lt. Hawkins. "We hacked out a trail thru the dense jungle as we went.

"It was pitch black under the trees and men tied their compasses on the backs of their packs so they could keep in touch with each other by watching the illuminated compass dials. Some men roped themselves together.

Mules Slip on Hills.

"Mules slipped on hillsides and tumbled into tree-tops far below. Some speared themselves in clumps of bamboo. We had to have the ammunition and food the lost mules carried, so their packs were divided among the men, adding further weight.

"We finally reached our destination at three in the morning. We immediately began to prepare for a daylight attack and went into action at 6 o'clock."

Lt. Hawkins said the Mars men completely surprised the Japanese positions and gained positions along a ridge overlooking the road over which the Japanese, recently pushed out of Wanting and other points to the north, would have to retreat to Lashio. The Japanese made two charges in attempts to dislodge the Americans but failed.

Guns Shell Roads.

In the last two weeks the Americans have kept the road under artillery fire and have knocked out six small tanks and several trucks and killed more than 300 Japanese.

The Americans get supplies by air. Lt. Hawkins said Sgt. Carl W. Hughes of Sheldon, Ill., liaison plane pilot, made seven trips in four hours to evacuate wounded.

CHANNEL PORTS IN RUINS; DIEPPE LEAST DAMAGED

Boulogne Population Down to 10,000.

BY DAVID DARRAH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

DIEPPE, France, Feb. 3.—Among the channel ports, Dieppe has been the least damaged. A good part of the port equipment has been put back in service. Altho the town has been damaged and wears mementoes of the August, 1942, attempted landing by the Canadians, it is pretty well filled up with returned inhabitants.

Liberation day, however, found Dieppe with more than 25 ships sunk in its harbor. Only nine cranes out of 35 were usable.

Port damage seems to vary greatly. Also north of here, at Treport, the damage seems to have been easily repairable.

Nazis Hold Dunkerque.

An anomalous situation is that Dunkerque, lying above Calais, is still a holdout pocket of the Germans. Several thousand French people are under German rule here, as they are along a stretch of the French coast in Brittany, in Lorient, St. Nazaire, and La Rochelle.

Dunkerque lies just across from England. It is almost under gunfire from cross-channel guns. But the Germans have never been dislodged.

The port of Boulogne, heavily damaged, has been somewhat restored. The docks have been shattered, but some sections are usable. The floodgate is demolished. Six cranes out of 60 are repairable.

10,000 Still in City.

Once a city of 60,000 people, smashed under 400 air bombardments, little but ruins was found by Canadian troops who entered the city in September. Dynamited by the Germans, docks, installations, and harbor machinery lay twisted into fantastic ruins.

Nevertheless, in this mass of ruins of partially standing houses, roofless, windowless, and without heat, about 10,000 inhabitants are still living. Local authorities promise that Boulogne will be reconstructed as a big fishing port.

St. Pierre in Ruins.

As soon as commercial traffic is resumed from all these channel ports, the Norman farmers and dairymen expect to ship their stuff across to England again at the big prices of old, and that makes a problem also for the French authorities, who are trying to avert a black market.

Hardly a house is standing in St. Pierre, picturesque fishermen's village. Heaps of rubble are everywhere. The central station is just a mass of useless junk.

A twisted mass of reinforced concrete blocks marks the place where the former fish market used to be. About 95 per cent of the town has been destroyed. Only the exterior quarters and the upper town, where stood the cathedral and the college, are standing. The cathedral is much damaged.

WAR REPORTER WED; SERENADED BY BUZZ BOMB

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WITH THE U. S. 9TH ARMY, Belgium, Jan. 30 [Delayed].—John R. Wilhelm, former Chicago newspaper reporter, now a Reuters war correspondent with the 1st army, today received a letter from his mother giving him her permission to wed. On Jan. 16 at the 9th army press camp, amid a battery of news and camera men, Wilhelm married Miss Margaret Maslin, Port Chester, N. Y., a Red Cross clubmobile girl. On the next morning, while they were breakfasting at a lakeside hotel in Belgium, the Germans gave the newlyweds a serenade, a buzz bomb exploded 300 yards away and broke the hotel windows and crockery.

YES, THE JAPS PAY PRISONERS—3 CENTS A DAY!

They Get 5, but 2 Goes for War Bonds.

[This is the third of a series of articles relating the story of Pvt. Charles Jensen, 6528 S. Hermitage av., a member of Company B, Maywood tank battalion; Pvt. Norman J. Lev, 5023 N. Lawndale av., and others captured by the Japs at Bataan and rescued by army Rangers and guerrillas from a prison camp at Camp Cabanatuan last Tuesday.]

BY PVTS. CHARLES JENSEN AND NORMAN J. LEV.
[As told to Arthur Veysey.]
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WITH THE RANGERS ON LUZON, P. I., Feb. 3.—We worked at Camp Cabanatuan. Seven thousand were in the original roster, several thousands more came from Camps O'Donnell and Bilibid in Manila, and other prisons. Many hundreds died. Yet when the Rangers freed us, there were only 513.

"Work details" are the explanation. The camp had its regular details—100 to work the farm, others for fencing and other duties, for working on the air field near-by, for cooking and cleaning, for running the hospital and the light plant, for maintaining the Japs' radios on trucks. These were light jobs from which we returned every night. If we got those we were lucky.

Paid 3 Cents a Day.

O, yes, we were paid—10 centavos a day; five cents American money under pre-war exchange. Under Jap money values the last few months it would be about one-hundredth of a cent. Three centavos were deducted for war bonds—Jap war bonds. That left 7 centavos, or about 3 cents a day.

The most dreaded assignments were those to Japan and Manchukuo. We dreaded them because they made release seem so distant. The worst details on Luzon were at Nichols and Nielsen field in Manila and Clark field. They were ranked in that order, not because of different work but because of different Jap bosses.

"White Angel" Hated.

The most hated supervisor on all Luzon is White Angel. He was No. 1 boy at Nichols. Once the prisoners there were grading the air strip. The method was to pick and shovel dirt onto little railway carts, push the carts to the desired spot, and dump them.

White Angel's method in order to make his punishment justified worked like this:

Every morning he would set a quota. "Today we will make 19 trips," he would say. In two hours the men may have made two trips.

"One-fifth of time gone and only one-tenth of work done!" he would scream and then, feeling fully justified, he would lay on with a club.

Beaten with Clubs.

He would give each pickman a wallop across the shoulders, then sock the shovelers on the head, then take on the cart pushers. Two men would bend over a cart, and by using a long club White Angel would beat both at one time. Many's the kidney he pounded loose.

He knew just how far he could go before a man would die. When a man was within minutes of death he would send him to Bilibid for hospitalization. Only once did a prisoner arrive alive. He died in Bilibid, and there was terrible screaming in Jap officialdom over the "poor care" which caused his death. They finally placed the blame on the American doctors in Bilibid, and staged a full military funeral for the soldier.

At first Nielsen field was a good place to work. The boss there was a Jap surveyor who had worked for many years with Americans. One of his laborers was an old acquaintance, Mason Blair of Onawa, Ia., construction chief on Corregidor and one of the men freed by the Rangers.

The surveyor was too good to last. The Jap navy men for whom the air field was being repaired caught him giving food to one of the laborers, and there was a shake-up.

Forced to Slay Each Other.

When one of the worst overseers on the farm on which we worked came in sight we shouted "air raid" as a warning. Thus we started calling him Air Raid. His favorite trick was to line us up in two rows, facing each other, and have each slap the man across from him, taking turns. If he thought one of us was too easy he showed us how, or if he was dissatisfied with all of us he went down the rows swinging a hoe handle, letting it fall where it might on head, neck, or body.

Early, the Japs let us know the perils of attempting to escape. They divided us into groups of 10, and told us if any of the 10 escaped the rest would be killed.

Most of the bridges destroyed in the American retreat were rebuilt by American prisoners.

Big Speedo Beats Little Speedo.

On the Cabanatuan prison farm we had for a supervisor the only Jap for whom I'd ever ask mercy. He was a big man who used to be a policeman in Tokyo. True, he was always trying to hurry us. "Speedo," he would say, in the usual Jap custom of adding "o" to words. We called him Big Speedo.

In great contrast was Little Speedo. Little Speedo liked to make the Americans kneel with their bare toes laid back in the gravel. One day Big Speedo caught Little Speedo beating an American. Big Speedo took off his leather belt and cut Little Speedo's face to ribbons. Little Speedo was in the hospital three months. When he came out I never knew him to beat another American.

The Japs were impossible to figure. One time in the field a man we called Caribao Sam beat an American. The American was out cold. The Jap then picked him up tenderly, put him into the shade, gave him water, and nursed him back to consciousness. He pleaded for forgiveness and even offered cigarets. The American refused.

The Jap actually broke down and cried, pleading with the American. At last he accepted, for some reason. And he was one American whom Caribao Sam never whipped again, altho he laid a heavy hand on the rest of us.

No Eggs, No Hen Feed!

The Japs were so stupid they were funny. Big Speedo called us "number 1 hammerhead" when he cursed us. He thought that was the curse of all curses.

One day one of the farm's sows produced a litter of only three pigs. The Japs got clubs, went into the pig pen, and beat the boar. And when the hens stopped laying the Japs quit feeding them. That, they thought, would teach them.

Then there was the time the Japs built a barbed wire fence to protect themselves against catching dysentery.

Donald Duck Is Flattered.

Donald Duck was a funny guy. He chattered constantly in a voice exactly like Donald Duck's. He couldn't speak a word of English when he came to camp, but he learned quickly. Every time he heard a new word he wrote it down. One day he asked why we called him Donald Duck. We told him Donald Duck was a movie star. He was very flattered.

Then came the day the Japs brought in propaganda films showing their worthy effort. By some sad fate the show led off with a Donald Duck cartoon. Our Donald Duck left in a rage. The next day nearly all of us took a clubbing.

Woman Missing

[Associated Press Wirephoto.]
MRS. MARY LEE EPES.

Columbia, S. C., Feb. 2 (AP).—The mystery suronding the disappearance of socially prominent Mrs. Mary Lee Epes, 26 year old wife of Lt. S. C. Epes, stationed at nearby Fort Jackson, deepened today as detectives exhausted every clue. Chief of City Detectives S. S. Shorter said "every report of her being seen has been traced down, and she has not been located."

Shorter said young Epes, the son of a Richmond, Va., industrialist, told him there had been no domestic trouble and Mrs. T. G. Williams of Jacksonville, Fla., mother of the young woman, said her daughter had been devoted to Lt. Epes during four and one-half years of marriage.

Epes, who has offered a $100 reward for information leading to the return of his wife, said he let her out of their car in downtown Columbia last Monday morning and that she planned to breakfast and then go shopping. She had only $20 with her, he said.

Stata was arrested a few days after Mrs. Smith's bullet-pierced body was found by her husband on Sept. 11 at a Port Franks, Ont., cottage.

U. S. AND FRENCH VICTORS PURSUE COLMAR NAZIS

Push South After Capture of Alsatian City.

BY SEYMOUR KORMAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

COLMAR, Alsace, Feb. 3. — The last German resistance on the western and southern edges of Colmar was stilled today and American and French armor and infantry elements moved southward in pursuit of other enemy forces.

The American division which took Colmar is the 28th infantry whose 109th regiment reached the northern edge at 4 a. m. yesterday. The division, which had borne the brunt of Field Marshal von Rundstedt's offensive against the 1st army in December, was originally a Pennsylvania National Guard unit.

French tanks which entered after the 28th were from the French 5th armored division.

Residents Are Calm.

Colmar was taking its liberation calmly. There were some cheers for the American riflemen and for the French tankmen. But there was no riotous welcome and the tri-color and American flags were slow to appear.

The troops marched and the tanks rumbled down the Adolf Hitlerstrasse, formerly the Rue Stanislaus, and the attitude of the inhabitants seemed to be mostly one of curiosity.

This city apparently had a considerable German sentiment. It would not necessarily mean these people were pro-Nazi but certainly there was a strong Teutonic influence here. Overt Nazi sympathizers were being tracked down and jailed.

French Troops Grab Swastikas.

If the Colmar residents were not enthusiastic about being liberated that certainly wasn't true of the French tankers who interrupted their progress thru Colmar to tear down all the swastikas and collect busts of Hitler.

These busts were perched on the tanks and the swastikas kept for souvenirs or ripped under the moving treads. Exuberant tankers grabbed Colmar girls and gave them rides atop the turrets.

Two of the skirmishes between Americans and Germans on the rim of the city today were in a woods on the south and near a hospital on the west.

When a group of Americans went to the Louis Pasteur hospital to check on the German wounded there enemy soldiers cut loose with machine guns and mortars from dugouts west of the hospital. The Yanks took cover, called for reenforcements, and then killed or captured some 50 of the Germans.

German Complains.

The German medical staff was allowed to remain in the hospital.

Watching the prisoners being brought in at one enclosure was Capt. Charles W. Scott, Rockford, Ill. Scott, who speaks German, was approached by a Nazified sergeant who complained at having to mingle in the cage with some of the Colmar garrison service troops who were Russians. One of the latter was an unmistakable Mongolian type.

Scott ordered the sergeant back to the cage and remarked, "They made those Russians fight and work with them and now these Germans want to act superior. Well, I suppose on the other front, too, the Germans complain about being in the company of the Russians."

YANK PILOT SEES ODER BATTLE AS HE RAIDS BERLIN

HDQ., U. S. STRATEGIC AIR FORCES IN EUROPE, Feb. 3 (AP).—A United States 8th air force fighter pilot became the western allies first eye witness of the great battle of the eastern front today while he was flying escort in today's bomber attack on Berlin.

Lt. Col. Russell Gustke of Minneapolis, Minn., flying his Mustang five miles above the German capital, glanced eastward thru the clear sky, saw the Oder river and caught a glimpse of the fighting between the German forces and the army of Marshal Zhukov ranged along its banks.

"Some terrific fighting must have been going on in that area," Gustke said, "because I could see columns of smoke rising at several points.

"I was puzzled by what looked like small rockets or something similar being thrown in the direction of the Russians. They rose to about 5,000 feet and left trails like a V-2 except on a smaller scale. I've never seen a weapon just like that before and couldn't be sure just what they were."

The Oder river is 30 miles from Berlin at its closest point.

300 TOOLS, GAS COUPONS STOLEN.

Electrical equipment and tools valued at $300, and gasoline ration coupons for 240 gallons were stolen in a burglary at a gasoline station at 4722 S. Western av., Joseph Norvais, the manager, told police on Friday.

FREED YANK TELLS OF CIGARETS AT $20 EACH IN JAP CAMP

WITH AMERICAN FORCES, Luzon, Feb. 3 (AP).—Virgil Greenway, 26, of Old Hickory, Tenn., one of the Yanks freed by Rangers from a Japanese prison camp, recalled today that cigarets sold as high as $20 each in the camp.

Greenway, who appeared to weigh about 120 pounds, said he had done pretty well, losing only 16 pounds—on a diet of rice, sweet potato wine, and greens and meat from dogs trapped in the camp.

He fell off a water buffalo last August, broke a leg, and was in a Japanese hospital until November. "Those were my worst months," he said. "I got even less food in what passed for a hospital than when I was outside."

Lublin Poles' Regime Begins Work at Warsaw

LONDON, Feb. 3 (AP).—The Lublin Polish provisional government has arrived in Warsaw for permanent work, the Moscow radio announced today. Among those who moved in, the broadcast said, were President Bierut, Premier Osubka-Morawski, and Vice Premiers Gomolka and Janusz.

Worry, Colds, working too hard, or overeating or drinking may create an excess of Acids and overload your Kidneys so that they need help to flush out poisonous wastes that might otherwise undermine your health.

Help Kidneys Remove Acids

Nature provides the Kidneys to clean and purify your blood and to remove excess Acids. The Kidneys contain about nine million tiny tubes or filters through which the heart pumps blood about 200 times an hour, night and day, so it's easy to see that they may get tired and slow down when overloaded.

Nearly 20 years ago a practicing physician's prescription called Cystex was made available to the public through drug stores, making it easy and inexpensive to help thousands suffering from non-organic and non-systemic Kidney and Bladder troubles in these three simple ways: 1. Help the Kidneys remove excess acids which may become poisoning and irritating. 2. To palliate burning and smarting of the urinary passages, and bladder irritation. 3. Help the Kidneys flush out wastes which may become poisonous if allowed to accumulate, thus aiding nature in stimulating an increase of energy, which may easily make you feel years younger.

Liberal Trial Offer

To prove that Cystex may be the very medicine you need accept this fair-play trial offer: Get a supply of Cystex from your druggist today. Take it exactly as directed and watch for quick help, a rapid increase in pep, more youthful feeling and a new joy in living. You must be completely satisfied and highly delighted or you simply return the empty package and your money back is guaranteed.

Tear this out. Take it to your druggist. Be sure to get genuine, guaranteed Cystex which is scientifically produced under the direction of a licensed physician, and used by millions throughout the world. Three guaranteed Cystex sizes—35c, 75c, $1.50.

Years of working together as a co-ordinated unit enable the Chicago Tribune's Washington correspondents to assemble for you each day a highly readable, comprehensive picture of what has happened and is happening.

YANKS BREAK INTO REAR AREA OF WEST WALL

First Army Spearheads Gain 3 Miles.

PARIS, Feb. 3 (AP). — American troops thrust three miles deeper into Germany today to within a mile of a break thru the permanent fortifications of the Siegfried line and pushed the last Germans off Belgian soil.

United States 1st army spearheads were 11 miles inside the western border of the reich and 31 miles from the Rhine.

Total penetration of the west wall's double belt of defenses would not open the way completely for the continuing 1st army advance, as the Germans feverishly have been throwing up temporary fortifications farther back.

Take Last Belgian Town.

First army doughboys liberated Krewinkel, last German held town in the eastern tip of Belgium, a late front dispatch reported. In clearing the Germans from the three mile by three mile area held by the Germans east and northeast of St. Vith, the Americans seized three other towns earlier in the day.

Counting the original gap torn in the Siegfried line at Aachen, and later extended to the north, allied armies now are thru 45 miles of the defenses and have broken thru the inner belt on a 35 mile front from the Roer sector north of Aachen to a point south of Monschau.

[The Berlin radio said that despite thaws, Gen. Eisenhower was making "frantic preparations" behind the lines for a big push from the west, "with no effort to keep it secret."]

Two of Lt. Gen. Hodges' 1st army divisions were ripping the vitals from German defenses east of Monschau and 25 miles southeast of Aachen over rough, river cut terrain.

Eleven Miles Into Reich.

The veteran 2d division, 11 miles deep into Germany, was entirely thru the first belt of defenses, had surged across open country and seized the village of Bronsfeld, only a mile from Schleiden in the eastern edge of the Siegfried line.

The 9th infantry division kept pace two miles to the north and was within four miles of a second communications center at Gemund, which also is a rear position in the Siegfried defenses.

By capturing Bronsfeld, the 1st army seized control of the main highways leading into Schleiden. The 9th division captured Dreiborn, four miles from Gemund.

Trouble was developing for the enemy five miles south of this sector, where the 1st division was thru two rows of dragons' teeth and was battling in Ramscheid, a mile inside Germany and within the main west wall defenses.

Two miles farther south the 82d air borne division completed the occupation of Udenbreth, with its heights commanding all Siegfried positions in that area.

Patton Faces Stiff Fight.

Lt. Gen. Patton's 3d army ran into rocky resistance as it pressed to within 5½ miles of the west wall's fortified communications city of Prum.

A front dispatch said the Germans finally were cleared from Bleialf in the nearest approach to Prum. The town, three and a half miles inside Germany, was prematurely reported taken yesterday.

Six miles to the southwest, a one-mile advance by infantry overran the village of Berg, and two Luxemburg towns were liberated in mopping up operations on the west bank of the Our farther south.

The United States 7th army in northern Alsace was likewise stepping up its assault, and drove the last resistance from Offendorf, 11 miles north of Strasbourg. Forty-eight miles of the Rhine's west bank south of Strasbourg now were in allied hands.

Three miles farther north and two miles from the Rhine, Lt. Gen. Patch's troops occupied Rohrwiller, virtually liquidating the Nazi corridor which once menaced Strasbourg from the north.

The Americans still were held up at Oberhoffen, 15 miles north of Strasbourg, where forces thrusting back across the Moder river were engaged in hard fighting for the third straight day.

Fighter-bombers lashed at the Germans there and in southern Alsace, where the railway bridge across the Rhine due east of Colmar also was under allied artillery fire.

The remainder of the western front was in an ominous lull except for the 3d army invasion of the reich in the Moselle valley between Luxemburg and the Saar.

Here the 94th infantry division cleared the Campholz woods, three miles inside Germany and 15 miles southeast of Luxemburg City.

NAZI WEST FRONT BULLETIN.

The German war summary said yesterday:

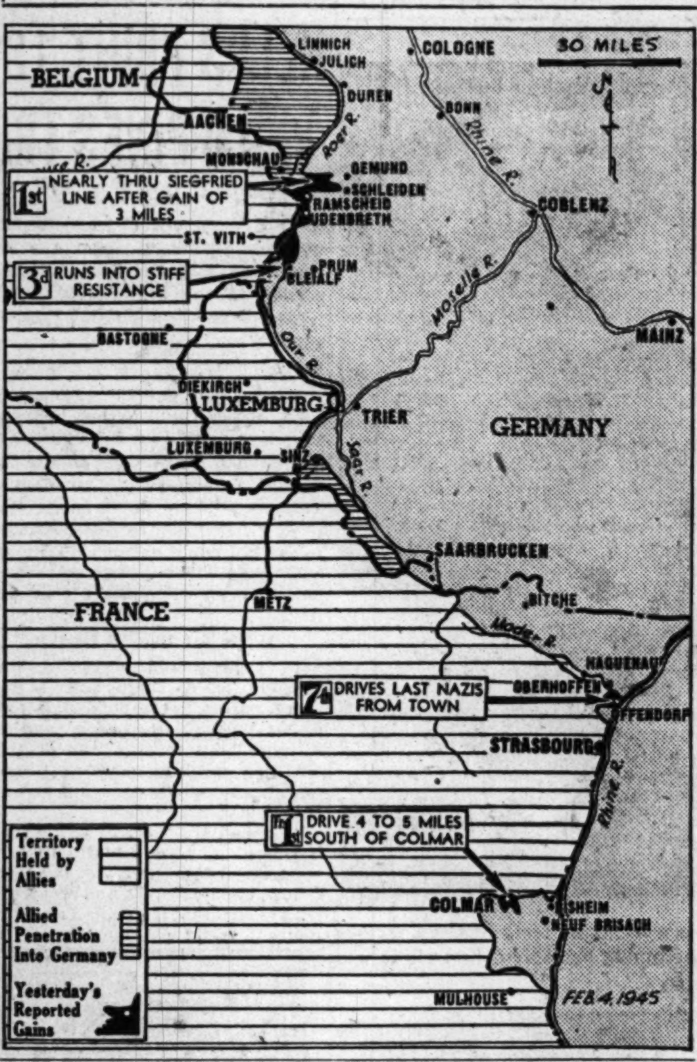
"From Holland and the Roer front increasing artillery fire is reported.

"In the area of Monschau our troops have taken up new shortened positions on the eastern fringes of the Monschau forest against which the enemy is continuing his attacks. South of it fierce fighting is going on for several villages which the enemy attacked all day.

"Enemy pressure against the northern and southern flank of our front bulge in upper Alsace continues. New American divisions were thrown into the battle there and succeeded in penetrating into Colmar after bitter fighting.

"The enemy was thrown out of Appenwihr."

Allies Pierce Siegfried Line



Big Naval Fight Renamed 'Battle for Leyte Gulf'

Washington, D. C., Feb. 3 (AP).—The big naval engagement off the Philippines in October is now officially "the Battle for Leyte Gulf." The new name, the navy announced today, has been selected to supersede the designation of "Second Battle of the Philippine Sea." The change was suggested by Adm. Nimitz. The battle is subdivided into three separate operations, the battles of Surigao strait, off Samar and off Cape Engano.

Dummy Flees Store Fire; Finds It's a Cold World

Fort Worth, Tex., Feb. 3 (AP).—A fully clad clothing dummy tumbled from the show window of a store when fire destroyed the building today. It disappeared into the crowd and when next seen was minus suit and shoes.

LIVES REBUILT FOR VETERANS IN ARMY HOSPITAL

Muscles and Minds Are Treated at Vaughan.

own variation or substitute. Beginners stop at six repetitions.

Those who can walk on crutches or who get about in their own power have group calisthenics and games, usually in the large gymnasium, but each man does what he can, no games having been devised to overcome specific handicaps.

Specific handicaps are the problem of the physical and occupational therapy departments, two of the busiest areas. Again, if the boy cannot come to them, they go to the boy—as is also the policy of the hospital's elaborate dental clinic, a clinic on wheels, devised by Lt. Col. Spence Hutt Jr., chief dental officer.

Physical Therapy Treatment.

From 100 to 200 patients are treated every day in the P. T. [physical therapy] department, the majority going there on stretcher, wheelchair, or crutches. No two cases are alike. Each man is a separate problem.

After massage, heat, or water therapy, many adjourn to the exercise room, which contains a bicycle for leg work, a mirror for posture work, an upright wheel for gaining circular range of motion of the arms, a finger ladder for gaining shoulder motion, a pulley which pulls up rather than down [designed by Lt. Ruth Cortelyou, head of the department] for what is called "shoulder abduction." The variety is endless.

Occupational Therapy Marvels.

Wander into Vaughan's O. T. [occupational therapy] shops, and you will find patients so engrossed in work, which is at the same time their treatment, that they do not even notice the intrusion. This is the department where surgery leaves off.

The boy working on book ends at the workbench was a gunshot case. Working with an ingenious set of coping saws, files, and sand blocks devised by Miss Lucille Tuttle, occupational therapist, and Pvt. W. Howard Foster, one of the 525 enlisted men on duty at the hospital, he gradually regained control of his hand and fingers.

The boy so intently cutting walnut with a miter saw has a flexion contracture of his elbow. While he works, he mends. The man sanding a child's toy horse had a severe burn. Using the built-up handles, he now has regained use of both hands. The boy on the bicycle jig-saw pedals to operate the saw, loosens stiff joints, and restores strength to his knees and hips.

This is by no means the entire scope of the O. T. It covers a wide range. Nor does reconditioning end here. There still is the educational phase. This includes educational films. Capt. Arthur Flanagan, chief of reconditioning, explained, "We put in just a little bit here and there to make him realize the war is still going on, and he is still a soldier."

Now to Recreation Area.

Next comes the so-called recreational area, out of which branch the Red Cross rooms, theater, auditorium, gymnasium, post exchange, beauty shop, barber shop, tailor shop, and other oddments. The long entrance hall here is filled with easy chairs. The easy chairs are filled with men. On one wall is a chart, Invest in Invasion. It charts the war bond purchases at Vaughan. Thirty per cent of the patients are investing 9 per cent of their pay in war bonds. On the opposite wall is a battle chart of the world.

The hospital is operated as a military reservation, but every man or woman there, enlisted man, officer, or Italian prisoner of war who does the maintenance work eats the same mess. And it is good. Brig. Gen. P. J. Carroll, now chief of staff at Vaughan, says a good hospital depends on three things: Good professional care of the patient, good sanitation, good food. Of the three he is most proud of what he has done with the food. The others, he feels, are standard in the army's 60 general hospitals.

CHICAGO SOLDIER HELPS PRINT 1ST PHILIPPINES TRIB

How a Chicago soldier helped Arthur Veysey, a Chicago Tribune war correspondent, print the first copies of THE TRIBUNE'S overseas edition in the Philippines was related yesterday in a letter from the soldier, Pvt. Charles N. Beck, to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Beck, 5842 N. Campbell av.

"I had a funny thing happen a few days ago," Pvt. Beck wrote. "I had seen a small copy of the first Philippine edition of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, believe it or not. So I went to the public relations office to see if I could get one. They said a Chicago Tribune war correspondent was printing them that very day.

Waits for Dec. 23 Edition.

"I remembered seeing a small Filipino print shop, and I went there. This correspondent's name is Art Veysey. He had a couple of Filipino boys feeding one of those old type cranking printing presses, where the rollers come up and roll across a circular plate.

"He had the Dec. 23 edition, and it was on 12 plastic plates that had been flown over here. Art is a young fellow, about 28 or 30, and real friendly. He said that if I waited about two hours I could get one hot off the press, so I waited, as it was too hot to try to sleep in the afternoon.

"There was another fellow there that worked in the same place that I do. His name is Joe Turek, and he was a linotype operator for THE TRIBUNE for 15 years.

Ran Off 150 Copies.

"He was giving Art some help in printing the papers, so there we were all afternoon, Filipino boys feeding the presses, Art changing the plates, Joe setting up plates and inking the press. And I was assembling the six sheets and helping to staple them together. This is some company! We ran off about 150 copies, but Art said never again, as the two of them had been sweating over it since 9:30 that morning, and we finished at 4:15 p. m. It's really a tough job with such equipment, and all that slow hand work."

Pvt. Beck knew something of the difficulties of getting out that first edition in the Philippine heat, and with antiquated equipment. Before entering the army April 30, 1942, he worked in the bindery department of the R. R. Donnelley company, 350 E. Cermak rd. Now 26, Pvt. Beck has been overseas since November, 1942, and had served in New Caledonia, Guadalcanal, New Guinea, and the Philippines.

WACS EMPLOYED IN HOSPITALS TO GET NEW FROCKS

WAC technicians assigned to duty in hospitals are getting new dresses for their jobs. The new design is a short sleeved frock of rose beige cotton print resembling chambray and will replace the present blue cotton crepe uniform.

The new model is tailored in one piece and fastens down the front with buttons to match the fabric color. It has a buttoned belt. Insignia are worn on the fold back collar, the U. S. on the right side and the caduceus of the medical department on the left tab. There are two large pockets on the skirt and a small breast pocket on the left.

Each enlisted WAC technician will be issued nine of these dresses. The first delivery is expected soon. The frocks will be for wear on hospital duty only.

CHICAGOANS IN A DUGOUT DODGE GERMAN SHELLS

Tribune Writer Tells of Siegfried Line Fight.

BY ROBERT CROMIE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WITH THE 94TH INFANTRY DIVISION, Germany, Feb. 3.—A young captain standing near the entrance of his tiny dugout on the edge of a woods regarded us a moment, then said: "Better get your holes picked out, because you won't have much time when the artillery starts coming in. The Jerries know we're here, all right. If I didn't have to be here I sure wouldn't come up."

The young captain was George Beard, commander of company D, 1st battalion, 302d infantry regiment, whose parents live at 6615 Olmsted av., Chicago. Beard accepted with some satisfaction the new shoepacks brought up in a half-track that also carried men, coffee, food, and war correspondents.

He was in charge of a heavy weapons company supporting infantry men in cleaning up pillboxes of the Siegfried switch line just across the Moselle river from the lower Luxemburg border. The men near-by began talking loudly, and Capt. Beard said, firmly, but good-naturedly, "Don't make so much noise. I want to be able to hear them [the shells] when they come in."

Attack Concrete Bunkers.

Capt. Beard said his doughboys were attacking big concrete bunkers, armed with machine guns and small arms, and were hitting many of them from the front and rear at the same time. The pillboxes, he said, are not too tough to take, but the Germans have been "knocking hell out of us with that artillery."

He said his battalion took 140 prisoners in the last couple of days, including 81 in pillboxes whose garrisons had their packs all loaded and a surrender flag all made. They quit as soon as the attack began.

There was a sudden scream overhead, then a crunching "whoomph!" Beard dived into his dugout, this Tribune man right behind him.

"Get in your holes!" Beard yelled, then added in a conversational tone, "I knew that half-track would draw fire."

All was quiet for a few minutes. We crawled out again. Then another shell screamed overhead, and we flopped again into the dugout, followed this time by Aaron Bohrod, 4828 Dorchester av., Chicago, a war artist. The dugout was too small for us to hold our heads erect, even when seated in the soft, oozy mud and water dripping from the covered roof, but none of us complained.

Morale Is Good.

"Our morale is good," Beard said, "but we all get a little tired of this stuff. I don't know which is worse, this mud or the cold wave that broke a couple of days ago.

"We've hauled thousands of pounds of TNT in here in that half-track, then carried it farther thru the woods by hand. I've got 18 exhausted men lying around here somewhere who've been carrying it. We use it mostly for demolishing captured pillboxes, but you'd be surprised how little damage 2,000 pounds of TNT does—just blows the roof off."

We asked how the American infantry felt about the Russian advance. Beard said, "Every one wants to know how they're coming. And there's lots of jokes, such as what's the Russian password. The boys the other day were saying those weren't German nebelwerfers [rockets] landing near us, but Russian 'overs.'"

Shells now were dropping in annoying regularity. One hit so close we could see the trees outside shake from the blast.

Beard Reports on Shelling.

Beard now was on the telephone, talking with the battalion commander, Lt. Col. Silas W. Hosea, Nashville, Tenn.

"There's quite a bit of artillery from the northeast, colonel," Beard was saying, "Right in on us."

A voice from outside calling Beard, inquired: "How many cases of that TNT you got stored?"

Capt. Beard told him.

"Hope it doesn't blow up that new coffee they just brought up," the voice said.

There was an odd whistling noise outside. Beard said, "Hear that? That's a big chunk of shrapnel. I heard one whistling thru the air last week. It kept getting louder and louder Then there was a 'clank,' when it hit."

He spoke on the phone again. "They're mortaring the far edge of the woods now," he said.

Race Back Like a Cabbie.

The voice from the nearby hole spoke up again: "Boy, have they got that communications trench zeroed in! They dropped a couple right in the trench today."

Finaly the shelling stopped, and we crawled out from the little hole. Pat Coffey of Denver, Col., photographer for "Yank," and Lee McCardell of the Baltimore Sun crawled from theirs, and we took off in the half-track, which was returning to rear areas. Corp. John Blair of Apollo, Pa., drove over the road like a Chicago cabbie with 30 seconds to catch a train.

Chicagoans seen today, besides Capt. Beard, were Pfc. Carl R. Werner, 2602 N. Springfield av., battalion runner, and Pvt. Paul M. Stewart, 4805 Forrestville av., truck driver for the 29th signal construction battalion.

CHICAGO YANK AND 5 MORE SENTENCED BY PARIS ARMY COURT

PARIS, Feb. 3.—Six more American soldiers, one a Chicagoan, were convicted today in the railway battalion black market cases. The Chicagoan, Pvt. Stanley Moreschi, 2123 Grenshaw st., was sentenced to serve 25 years in prison.

Other sentences, on charges of conspiracy to defraud the government, ranged from five to 35 years. The 35 year terms were imposed on two soldiers who repudiated confessions and claimed they had made big money dealing in captured firearms.

Two of the six men pleaded guilty to disposing of several cases of army rations from a supply train and asked the court to give them another chance to prove they were good soldiers. Each was sentenced to serve five years.

EX-COMMANDER KNOWS HIS MEN, EVEN IN PICTURE

BY JOHN THOMPSON.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WITH THE U. S. 1ST ARMY, Germany, Feb. 3.—Recuperating in McClosky General hospital in Temple, Tex., Maj. John C. Chapman of Jonesboro, La., glanced at a photograph in THE CHICAGO SUNDAY TRIBUNE, Jan. 7, and shouted: "I'd know my men anywhere."

The former commanding officer of headquarters company, 1st battalion, 36th armored infantry regiment, 3d armored division, was looking at a picture taken in Gleich, Germany. It showed the partial features of two G. I.'s taking cover beside a tank.

Soldiers Get Clipping.

As proof of the major's statement the clipping sent by him today reached the two soldiers, Corp. James L. Gregory, 1131 Deep Haven dr., Joliet, Ill., and Corp. Omar G. Taylor, Vienna, Ill.

Corp. Gregory thinks the major would like to know that he is still doing fine but getting the usual close calls. Just above his left temple, a shell fragment is imbedded in Gregory's head.

The week after that squeak a friend picked up a German pistol Gregory was cleaning, pointed it at Gregory, and pulled the trigger. The gun was loaded but the bullet lodged in the barrel.

More recently while he was guarding a Belgian town, a German mortar shell brushed Gregory's pants, knocked down a wall 2 feet away, and covered him with dirt and snow. The reason he's still alive is that the shell was a dud.

Medic Wins Medal.

Sgt. Gilbert E. Green of Wyanet, Ill., a medical aid man in the same armored unit, has been awarded the silver star for gallantry during a furious fight for a small town west of the Roer river in Germany.

Finding an accumulation of casualties in a town which was under heavy tank and artillery fire, Green loaded his armored half track with wounded and sent it to the rear. Then he commandeered all available vehicles for those needing swift attention and by working all night succeeded in moving all casualties to the rear, thereby, according to the citation, saving many lives.

OFFICIAL GERMAN REPORT OF ACTION ON EASTERN FRONT

The German report of eastern front action said:

"The brave garrison of Budapest is holding out against the Russian onslaught. The garrison is compressed into a narrow space around the castle and supplied from the air.

"Between the Tatra mountains and the Oder bend at Grunberg all Russian attacks failed in the face of consolidated resistance of our troops. In the area of Steinau strong German forces repelled the enemy in counter-attacks.

"On the Oder between Drossen and the Oderbruch enemy attacks against our bridgehead positions were repelled in part during counter-attacks. In the area of Oppeln our forces launched several attacks. The garrisons of Poznan and Schneidemuehl continued to resist.

"In the southern part of Pomerania the front between Schloppe, Deutsch-Krone, and Jastrow was held in the face of renewed enemy attacks and was advanced in several sectors as a result of counter-attacks.

"In East Prussia our divisions halted the attacking enemy formations north of Heilsberg and on both sides of Koenigsberg.

"The Russians continued their break-thru attempts southeast of Liepaja [Latvia] and south of Saldus."

Many New York Doctors Help Patients

GET OVER COLDS AND COUGHS FAR QUICKER

They do it by prescribing a new "lemonade-type and terpenes" treatment which gives sufferer large doses of Vitamin C and a terpene-rich cough syrup several times a day! Vitamin C is the vitamin in lemonade largely responsible for its effectiveness with colds; terpenes act on bronchial tubes to help hasten breaking up of cough accompanying cold.

Amazing Relief Unbelievably Fast

You follow this quick-benefit "lemonade-type and terpenes" treatment by taking the new Foley C & C Treatment Tablets and terpene-rich Foley's Honey & Tar, the cough syrup formulated to harmonize with the C & C Tablets.

Users of this new combination treatment are astonished at how quickly the head becomes clearer, nasal discomforts lessen, coughing stops, throat eases, aches and pains subside. What started out as a severe cold usually becomes mild.

Recovery Speeded Up!

Even more important, users of Foley C & C Treatment Tablets with Foley's Honey & Tar Cough Syrup generally find they get over their colds and coughs quicker—sometimes days quicker—than usual. So give yourself this new "lemonade-type and terpenes" treatment by getting a 50c bottle of Foley C & C Treatment Tablets and a 60c bottle of Foley's Honey & Tar from your druggist. Unless the combination lessens the severity of your cold and cough and speeds your recovery to your satisfaction, your money back. At all leading druggists.

HEART OF BERLIN BLASTED BY 1,000 U. S. FORTRESSES

Yanks Lose 35 Bombers and 5 Fighters.

BULLETIN.

LONDON, Feby 4 [Sunday]—(AP).—A powerful force of R. A. F. bombers attacked German synthetic oil plants last night at Bottrop and Dortmund in the Ruhr, an air ministry announcement said today.

LONDON, Feb. 4 [Sunday]—(AP).—More than 1,000 American Flying Fortresses poured a torrent of fire and explosives into the center of refugee-packed Berlin yesterday in the most concentrated attack ever delivered against the Nazi capital.

Actually in sight of Marshal Zhukov's assault against the Oder river line 30 to 40 miles east, the bombers, escorted by more than 900 fighters and unopposed by German airmen over the target, dumped approximately 3,000 tons of bombs in a 45 minute attack. Some groups reported intense anti-aircraft fire.

The raid, and an auxiliary stab by 400 Liberators at the oil center of Magdeburg, cost the Americans 35 bombers and five fighters missing, said a bulletin issued early today. Twenty-one German planes were shot down and 14 others destroyed on the ground during sweeps over scattered areas.

All told, nearly 4,000 allied warplanes pounded German installations yesterday.

Set Large Fires.

"The first wave of bombers over the reich capital attacked in good visibility," said the bulletin. "Large fires were started in the target areas and smoke and flames which followed caused some of the last formations over the city to bomb by instruments."

A dispatch from Stockholm said thousands of the refugees jammed into Berlin from the east were killed in the raid when they were unable to find shelter.

The targets for the assault on Berlin included the Anhalter and Potsdamer railway stations, the Tempelhof yards and military and government buildings.

It was the 204th air attack on Berlin of the war, but it was by far the most concentrated on the center of the city.

Beautiful Bombing Weather.

"Everything dropped in the target area," said Col. Lewis D. Lyle, of Pine Bluff, Ark., who piloted the lead plane. "I got my first good look at Berlin today. It was beautiful bombing weather. I could watch every plane in the sky for 50 or 60 miles."

Planes of the United States continent-based 1st tactical air force blasted rail targets east of the Rhine and north of Alsace. German military movements between the Siegfried line and farther north were battered by 461 fighter bombers and 150 medium and light bombers of the 9th air force. Two fighter bombers were lost while this large force hit bridges, made 24 cuts in vital Nazi rail lines, and destroyed 58 railway cars and 91 trucks.

The British 2d tactical air force sent out 500 bombers and fighter bombers. They concentrated chiefly on the railroads of northern Holland and northwestern Germany. In another area R. A. F. Lancasters escorted by Spitfires pounded seaports along the European coastline.

Tell of Devastation.

A U. S. BOMBER BASE, England, Feb. 3 (AP).—American flyers back from Berlin today declared incredible devastation had been inflicted on the Nazi capital.

"It was wide open," jubilantly exclaimed Capt. Charles D. Bennett of Dallas, Tex., lead bombardier of the second group to hit the city. "I saw the Tiergarten on one side and Templehof airdrome on the other. Right in the middle was our target—the railway yards—and we let 'em have it."

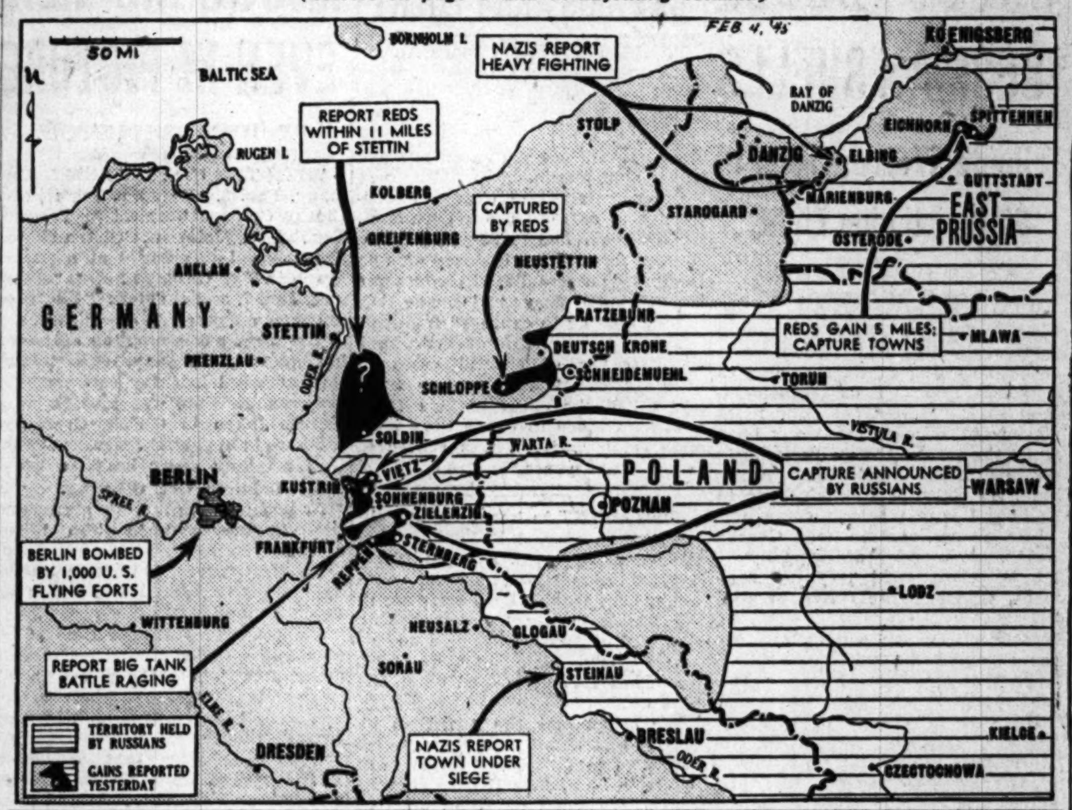
Russians Assault Defenses East of German Capital

(Stories on page 1 and in adjoining column.)



CRUCIAL BATTLE MAY BE FOUGHT INSIDE ODER BOX

PARIS, Feb. 3 (AP).—The Oder box—a flat, rectangular stretch of heavily-populated ground between the Oder river and Berlin—probably will be the scene of one of history's most crucial battles.

Here the fate of Berlin seemingly hangs in balance. Here, the Germans are building trenches and fortifications.

The Germans, it is understood, have long had a system of fortified strongpoints in this area, but little information has leaked out as to what they are doing to strengthen them against the Russian blows to come. Certainly the Germans must throw into this critical area powerful and mobile forces and the Oder line must be manned north and southeast of the box.

May Bring Troops Back.

Valuable German strength is now scattered in Norway, the Baltic states and Hungary. There is the possibility that some of the forces in Norway and the Baltic states may be returned. Continued control of the Baltic port of Stettin is vital for this step.

If the Germans can bring in reenforcements, they will have a chance to utilize the natural advantages farther south. The area southeast of Berlin in the Frankfurt-Cottbus-Berlin triangle is wooded country, thickly strewn with lakes and streams, terrain lending itself naturally to defense with relatively light forces.

Nazis Still Have Bohemia.

Still farther south lies an area, which, if the Oder line can be held, could prove to be a powerhouse of Nazi defense—the Bohemian bastion. Behind the mountain barriers the rich industrial area of western Czechoslovakia is relatively untouched by war.

Should the Red army drive past Vienna all this area would be menaced from the south, but the Russians still are well east of Austria's capital. The whole structure of the German eastern defense might crumble if the Russians crash thru the Oder in a frontal assault on Berlin.

RED PAPER HITS SPAIN, SWEDEN, SWITZERLAND

'Franco Substitute' Discussed.

MOSCOW, Feb. 3 (AP).—The soviet publication War and the Working Class included criticism of Spain, Sweden, and Switzerland in international discussions today in its February issue.

In an article entitled "Search for a Franco Substitute," the periodical asked, "In what way can the Spanish republic be restored?"

"The question must be answered by the Spanish people themselves, and before that by those who, during the Falangist terror, organized resistance inside the country," it said.

"Soviet society is greatly interested in what is going on in and around Spain, not only because that heroic people for three years repulsed the first blows of the German and Italian aggressors but because the soviet union always sympathized fully with them.

"We must always bear in mind that . . . Spain will remain under control of German financiers and manufacturers and may become the birthplace of a third world war.

"No change of faces will be able to avert this danger. The only way to destroy the danger is to restore to the Spanish people full freedom to regulate their own fate after all the various forms of fascism are completely destroyed."

Another article, entitled, "Something More About Swedish Hospitality," criticized Sweden on the grounds that she allowed emigrants from the Baltic and Gestapo agents to carry on anti-soviet activities.

It declared that a soviet journalist had asked a reasonable question "if serious, irreparable harm had not been caused to the national interests of Sweden by the protection and convenience enjoyed by anti-soviet gangs."

The article concluded, "He who goes to bed with dogs wakes up with fleas."

Accusing Switzerland of pro-fascist activities, War and the Working Class said: "The soviet estimation of the pro-fascist policy of Switzerland was made three months ago. Everything which has happened since has been proof for many American commentators, who realize at last the full justice of the facts arraigned against Switzerland."

Fuel Oil Ration Coupons Stay at 10 Gallon Rate

Fuel oil ration coupons values will remain at the 10 gallon rate in the midwest, east, and Pacific northwest for the new heating period beginning tomorrow, the office of price administration said yesterday in Washington, D. C. "Even tho the weather has been unusually cold," the OPA said, "fuel oil supplies are so short that no increase in coupon values can be considered." Combined periods four and five coupons become valid in the midwest while period four coupons may be used in the east and northwest.

WE WIN BECAUSE OF AIR FORCES, GEN. EAKER SAYS

If Nazis Had Our Planes 'Then We'd Lose.'

BY CLAY GOWRAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, Italy, Feb. 3.—Lt. Gen. Eaker, commander of the Mediterranean air force, said today that if Germany had had the allied air force and the allies had had Germany's, we would be losing the war instead of winning it.

Gen. Eaker.

"Had the Germans had our air force and we theirs, the landings in Africa and Italy would have been impossible, the invasion of France would have been unsuccessful, and the eastern front would be no farther west than Moscow and Stalingrad," Eaker said, adding:

"I do not in any way detract from or endeavor to minimize the great, successful battles that our valiant land forces have fought, nor do I mean to detract from the resourcefulness and courage of our navies.

Air Victory First Need.

"In modern warfare, however, the air battle must be won first. It is a fact, also, that strategic air forces have a capacity for the destruction of enemy industry that is denied to ground forces and navies."

Gen. Eaker asserted that allied planes have marked superiority over the German and that allied pilots are far above Hitler's in ability.

At the Casablanca conference two years ago, Eaker said, it was decided to launch a strategic bombing campaign against vital parts of the German war machine. The royal air force was given the task of night bombardment and the American crews the task of making daylight raids into the heart of Germany.

Thousands of trained crews were sacrificed in this battle, Eaker said, but this was accomplished:

First "Invasion" by Air.

German air power was reduced to impotence and the allied air forces have the power to keep it beaten down. The German petroleum supply was cut to 25 per cent of what it formerly was. The air war was a tremendous factor in breaking up the German submarine campaign.

The air forces made the first invasion of the German homeland, leaving millions homeless, heatless, lightless, and without transport, and striking at morale.

Most important, the air blows ungeared the German war economy. This, the general said, is the basic reason for the reverses Germany is suffering everywhere because of man power or material shortages.

WOMAN TRUCKER REVIVED.

Mrs. Golden Sterling, 29, a truck driver, was revived in her home last night by a fire department inhalator squad after police reported she swallowed a quantity of disinfectant. She was taken to County hospital.

18 PARIS PAPERS MAKE ROOM FOR 2 NEW DAILIES

BY ROBERT SAGE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Feb. 3.—Two new morning papers have just appeared on Paris newsstands to compete for space and newsprint with 18 other dailies.

Editors of resistance papers have grudgingly accepted Emile Bure's pre-war L'Ordre because it opposed the Munich pact in 1938 and suspended publication when the Germans arrived. But most editors have given a hostile welcome to the other newcomer, Les Nouvelles du Matin, which is edited by Jean Marin, a former commentator on the French radio in London.

The principal complaint of the resistance editors, who have been chafing for the last fortnight under the necessity of printing single half-sized sheets in almost unreadable 7 point and 5 point type, is that Marin's newspaper appears on a full sized sheet.

"In doing this [printing on large sheets] we accept the reduction in circulation it implies," Les Nouvelles du Matin explained. It gave its circulation as 75,000 daily. Most of the other morning papers have circulations between 160,000 and 180,000, altho the conservative Le Figaro has 237,000 and the Communist L'Humanite claims 330,000.

$55 WRISTWATCH STOLEN.

Phil Kaiser, 195 E. Chestnut st., on Friday reported the theft of a wristwatch valued at $55 from his home.

It's Mystery Now

Judging from the beginning and end of a letter sent THE TRIBUNE by Storekeeper 2/C. Earl G. Arnold of the coast guard, from somewhere in the Pacific, he had some reasons why men over 35 should be discharged after Germany is defeated.

But what they are THE TRIBUNE won't know for a while.

The censor who read Arnold's letter performed an adroit bit of surgery with a safety razor blade. The entire body of the letter was snipped out.

OPA WILL PURGE BLACK MARKET IN MEAT DEALS

The office of price administration will double its enforcement program and turn to the courts this week in an effort to bring under control a meat black market that extends from slaughter house to the corner butcher, Marion W. Isbell, area director, said yesterday.

Another score of investigators will be added to the 20 now assigned to the meat business, he said, and the first 50 of 200 suits against retailers, charging them with selling at overceiling prices, will be filed in Circuit court.

All 40 investigators will be turned loose in the packing and wholesale markets, where Isbell asserted the overceiling pressure that leads to retail violations originates.

George Maier, OPA area meat expert, denied the charge that inability of butchers to buy meat at legal prices has forced wholesale closing of markets here. This charge was made by John J. Tunzer, secretary of the joint council of the Retail Meat Dealers association.

ANTWERP PORT SAVED FROM RUIN BY SECRET ARMY

Leader Tells How It Foiled Germans.

BRUSSELS, Belgium, Feb. 3 (AP).—A military mystery hitherto unsolved for the public—why the Germans did not destroy the port of Antwerp—can now be told. The reason was Belgium's secret army.

The secret army comprised 500 sabotage teams disguised as innocent bicyclists. A special anti-sabotage command was stationed in Antwerp to foil the Germans' plans.

Organizer of this army was a man known only as "Le Pelerin" [The Pilgrim].

Leader Tells of Work.

Here is the story, as he told it today, of how Antwerp was saved from destruction.

"When British tanks came to Antwerp, they were merely a spearhead—they crossed Antwerp, but did not stop.

"The secret army held off the Germans five or six hours until the main British force arrived—five or six hours that the Germans had counted on for destroying the port.

"The secret army succeeded in preventing the Germans from sinking blockships where they wanted to."

The secret army had several sections besides the sabotage wing. There were forces that collected weapons dropped by allied planes, and detachments of guerrilla fighters.

Army Works by Teams.

"Le Pelerin's" sabotage section had one team for each mission, one team to a bridge or a pumping station. Men were planted in the ministry of public works, where they copied diagrams and specifications of bridges, telephone cables, junctions, railroad clog points and other targets.

From March until June, "Le Pelerin," with a briefcase slung over his bicycle, went into the provinces and established contact with the chiefs of the local teams.

Orders Follow D-Day.

"Three days after D-day," he said, "we got a message saying to start. Allied supreme headquarters gave first priority to [railway] lines going south into France.

"Second priority was the transport system inside Belgium. We got daily reports on results on railroads by having a man stationed in railroad headquarters.

"Of 95 railway bridges attacked, we had 116 successes—more successes than targets because in some instances a target would be blown up, rebuilt, then blown up again."

BURGLARS TAKE RADIO.

Burglars took a $100 radio from his home, Albert Lutkie, 5951 Broadway, told police yesterday.

38TH INFANTRY LIVES UP TO ITS NAME, 'THE ROCK'

ROCHERATH, Belgium, Jan. 30 [Delayed]—(AP).—The 38th infantry regiment—"The Rock of the Marne" of the last war—returned today to the town where it helped block the enemy's December floodtide.

In this little village, the 38th, its ranks filled with a new generation, stopped one section of Field Marshal von Rundstedt's sweep toward Antwerp just as their predecessors halted a Paris-bound enemy before Chateau-Thierry in the historic battle of the Marne.

Wisconsin Commander.

On Dec. 16 the 38th, commanded by Col. Francis Boss, Janesville, Wis., was just getting its own attack rolling past the Siegfried line's pillboxes and thru the natural wooded barriers of the Monschau forest.

By mid-afternoon of Dec. 17 they were having to fight their way out rapidly. In three days' fighting around Rocherath and nearby Krinkelt they knocked out 78 German tanks and killed uncounted hundreds of Germans.

The Germans were thrusting for the supply and communications of the 2d division—of which the 38th is a part. The 38th's service company was the regiment's only unit left in Rocherath. The company's supply clerks, K. P.'s, ammunition clerks, typewriter pounders, and telephone operators organized themselves into bazooka teams and rifle squads and went into the line. They hurled back a major enemy assault.

The service company checked the enemy, permitting other units to set up defenses for the Nazi fury which was to break time and again on them.

That night—it was Sunday, Dec. 17—German tanks and infantry charged the first battalion command post. They were beaten off by a few line doughboys and headquarters clerks manning light machine guns and bazookas.

Recklessly the Germans threw more tanks into the attack on the third day, when the battle became a free for all. There was no semblance of any front line—the men were now completely cut off from their supplies and they fought with what they had from basements, attics, and barns. One unsuccessful foray alone cost the Germans nine tanks.

During the four days of fighting a couple of battalion headquarters officers did some neat improvising.

Chicagoan Thinks Fast.

Lt. Sidney B. Dane, Chicago, Ill., rounded up a herd of cattle, coaxed them onto a road and established an effective block against enemy tanks.

Capt. Joseph Skaggs of LaCrosse, Wis., commander of company G, established a defense around regimental headquarters. His men knocked out five tanks with bazookas.

Two kills each were scored by teams composed of Pvt. Samuel N. Distefano, Canonsburg, Pa., and Pvt. Joseph T. Nemec, 3004 S. Pulaski rd., Chicago, and Pvt. Eugene Gullen, Jersey City, N. J., and Pvt. Albert Bruner, Evansville, N. C. Sgt. Alfred L. Maddux of Trion, Ga., got the fifth.

REPORT 11 DEAD IN 11 OPERATIONS BY JAP SURGEONS

Marines Tell How Yank Medico Then Got Job.

Any surgical operation in the Cabanatuan prison camp on Luzon was fatal—until the American medical corps took over.

That was the statement made yesterday by Sergeants Verle Dwight Cutter, 26, Denver, Colo., and Onnie Ellsworth Clem, 25, Dallas, Tex., two marines who escaped from a prison ship late in 1943 when it was torpedoed by an American submarine. The two sergeants arrived in Chicago yesterday for an appearance on the Meet Your Navy radio broadcast last night.

The marines, who came back to the United States Nov. 7 under a navy cloud of secrecy, told yesterday of three American prisoners and eight Japanese soldiers who died under the knives of Japanese medical men with inadequate surgical instruments.

Order Yanks to Take Over.

"After the 11 men had died," related Sgt. Clem, "the Japs came to our barracks and ordered our medics to take over the hospital. As far as I know, there wasn't a single death by surgery after that."

Sergeants Clem and Cutter were full of memories of their days at Cabanatuan and at Camp Davao, Mindanao, where they later were transferred. They remembered the library the Japs set up for prisoners one day and destroyed the next, prohibition of church services during their first 10 months of imprisonment, and of letters from home that arrived but were never delivered.

One Japanese interpreter was assigned to censor all mail, Cutter said, but he was able to wade thru only 150 letters in eight months. It was assumed that the others were destroyed.

Red Cross shipments, they added, arrived twice during their long imprisonment from the time the Philippines fell until their escape, but they were stored in dark, damp Jap warehouses so long that when a small portion finally was distributed, the food had spoiled.

Main Thoughts of Food.

The two men worked in rice fields from dawn until after dark, but while they sang American songs and talked of home, their main thoughts were about food.

"From morning till night, we thought of nothing but food," Sgt. Cutter said. "Nothing else."

Back in California, the marines collected more than $3,000 each in back pay, and public relations arranged blind dates for them. A month later, Sgt. Cutter married his date, Marine Sgt. Janet Elliott of Pennsylvania, and next May Sgt. Clem will marry his, Marine Staff Sgt. Cecile Julien of Massachusetts.

344,411 PHONE TRIBUNE, CHECK ON WAR EVENTS

Enormously increased public interest in foreign news, apparently the result of intensified American participation on battle fronts around the world, is reflected in a report on Tribune reader response completed last week by the business survey department of this newspaper. In 1944, the report shows, THE TRIBUNE received 344,411 telephone calls from persons desiring information on foreign events. The 1943 figure was 76,668.

Foreign news, however, did not push baseball from its top position as the subject of reader contacts. The national game attracted 721,039 inquiries in 1944, as against 435,991 in 1943, when it also held first place.

The keen interest of women in THE TRIBUNE is demonstrated in the 1944 report of 189,272 and 176,709 reader contacts with the pattern and needlework departments, respectively.

Half Million Increase Over 1943.

Total reader response—by personal calls, mail, and phone inquiries—to all news and feature departments in 1944 was 2,573,602, an increase of more than a half million over the 1943 figure of 2,056,898.

This is only a part of the 1944 picture of contacts between THE TRIBUNE and its readers. Service contacts totaled 829,378. These include income tax assistance, notary public service, school information, touring and travel aid, and a host of other items handled by the Public Service offices at 1 S. Dearborn st. and in Tribune Tower.

In another category, labeled miscellaneous and special response in the report, are 477,404 contacts which include library and reference room service and contest and special event information. The Public Service offices also handled the bulk of these.

Grand Total of 4,900,211.

The huge sporting events which THE TRIBUNE sponsors, the Chicago Music Festival which fills Soldiers' field every year, and the innumerable tours and movies offered to plant and Tribune Tower visitors help swell the contacts in the events and tours category to 1,019,827. The grand total in all four classifications is 4,900,211.

LOSING A BUDDY HARDEST BLOW SOLDIER TAKES

Break Down on Grave Registration Job.

BY CAPT. MAURICE L. BRITT.
[First soldier to receive the medal of honor, the distinguished service cross, the silver star, and the bronze star in the present war.]
as told to Carl Wiegman.
[Copyright: 1945: By The Chicago Tribune.]

Since my return home, several newspaper stories have referred to me as a "one man army" at the battle of Mount Rotondo. There never was a one man army any more than there ever was a one man football team.

Company L was a team, the best team I ever played with. At Rotondo, we lost some good men who deserved the medal of honor more than I did. Our whole battalion was awarded a Presidential citation for valor and everybody in it deserved it. The army does its best to award medals justly, but obviously, in the confusion of battle, it is impossible to weigh the merits of individual soldiers. How can you measure bravery?

Indianian Is Executive Officer.

In my own case, I always wanted to be up front, perhaps because my football training made me accustomed to rough, bodily contacts. But I might have been a washout as a commanding officer if I hadn't been blessed with a fine executive officer and a group of sergeants all qualified to command the company. Among the latter were Sergeants Oxner, Hobbs, Logsdon, Light, Slade, Block, Simmons, Phillips, Barnas, and Worley.

My executive officer was Lt. Jack Miller of Vincennes, Ind. "I don't believe I could do without him," I told my wife in a letter. And I meant it.

In battle, Lt. Miller was as cool as any man in the company, but after the fighting was over he would break out in a cold sweat and shake, talking a blue streak about his narrow escapes—real and imagined. Three times he was wounded—in Sicily, at Acerno, and later at Anzio. At Acerno he won the silver star for carrying two badly wounded men to safety from an exposed position.

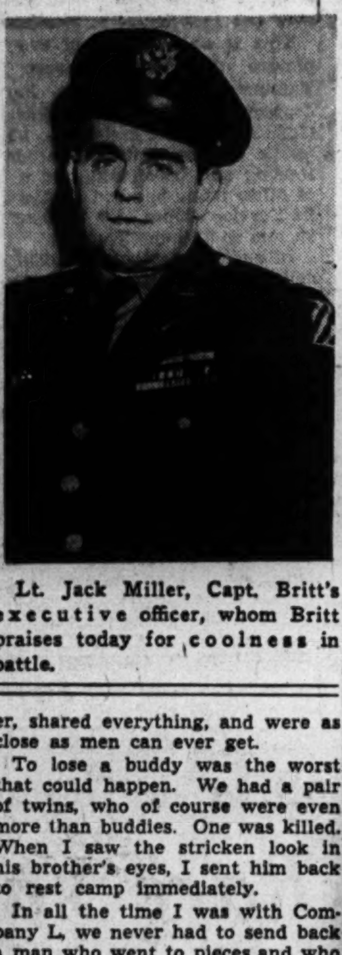
During the early days of the Italian campaign, Lt. Miller also served as graves registration officer, the hardest job in the army. Now the army has a better system, with a graves registration crew for each regiment, but we sometimes had to handle our own dead.

Saddest Job in Army.

It is rough on a man to have to take rings and watches off the bodies of his friends, put them in a sack, along with the snapshots of wives and babies, and send all the stuff home. I have seen veteran soldiers break down and cry as they did this.

One of the hardest things for me was to see a doughboy whose buddy had just been killed. All the men paired up with buddies. Some were almost comical, because the men didn't seem to be well matched in any way. But they slept together, shared everything, and were as close as men can ever get.

Executive Officer



Lt. Jack Miller, Capt. Britt's executive officer, whom Britt praises today for coolness in battle.

To lose a buddy was the worst that could happen. We had a pair of twins, who of course were even more than buddies. One was killed. When I saw the stricken look in his brother's eyes, I sent him back to rest camp immediately.

In all the time I was with Company L, we never had to send back a man who went to pieces and who could be classed as a psychoneurotic. After Rotondo, there were a few cases of battle fatigue, but that wasn't surprising. We had been in the line for seven weeks when the battle began, and then fought for nine more days without rest, under fire much of the time.

After we beat off the first German counter-attack, a platoon arrived from battalion headquarters to reinforce us. Commanding the platoon was Lt. Lloyd Beggs of Portland, Ore. When he arrived, headquarters ordered me back to an aid station for treatment of my wounds.

[Capt. Roy E. Hanford of Sandpoint, Idaho, the battalion surgeon, reported that when Britt appeared at the aid station he insisted that other casualties be treated first, saying, "I've got a little scratch here that I want you to look at when you get time." The surgeon examined Britt, found there was danger of infection in a severe wound in his side, and urged him to go to the hospital. "No," he replied, "I have to go back up on the hill to help those boys." He did not even show the surgeon a grenade fragment embedded in a chest muscle until several days later.]

Company on One Third Rations.

When I got back on the hill, I found the company in good spirits, but terribly tired, hungry, and thirsty. Because our supply line was so long, we were getting only a third of a canteen of water daily and a third of the normal field rations.

That night we heard there was a well beside a farm house several hundred yards up the valley. We wanted water so badly that we sent a combat patrol of eight men, heavily armed, to get it.

As they reached the well, they heard noises in the darkness and hastily drew back, taking positions to cover the well with their guns. Soon six Germans appeared, all heavily laden with canteens. They, too, were thirsty. Our squad jumped out of the darkness, scaring the wits out of the Germans, and took them prisoners.

Next day we got word from battalion headquarters that there was mail waiting for us. We could have mail or we could have rations; we couldn't have both, headquarters said, because the supply train couldn't handle both.

I felt this was a decision the men ought to make, so I called in the platoon sergeants and asked them what they wanted—mail or rations. They didn't hesitate an instant. They wanted mail.

So they brought up mail and it was distributed. Most of the men got letters and packages. A few got nothing. One of these, a youngster, cried.

In nearly every distribution of mail, some men got packages from home containing, believe it or not, canned pressed meat, canned corned beef, and hard candy—the same kind of stuff they had been eating in their field rations. They used it to barter with the natives.

Soldier Likes Food Variety.

An infantryman in the front lines craves a little variety in his food. Send him canned fish, chicken broth, tomato soup, clam chowder, pea soup, fancy cheese spreads, olives, fancy pickles, soft candy, fruit cake, cookies in cans, nuts, canned fruits, canned tomatoes, chile con carne, noodles, hot tamales, cheese crackers, pretzels—anything but pressed meat, corned beef hash and hard candy.

Chewing gum is always welcome, altho he gets some in each K ration. Powdered coffee is a wonderful gift. Powdered fruit "ades" are gratefully received in warm weather, even when there is no ice. Don't send toilet articles like shaving cream; the army issues them. Don't send clothing to an infantryman unless he asks for something special. Don't send anything that he has to carry on his back. He won't. He'll throw it away. Above all, send snapshots of the folks and home, and send letters, letters.

Teachers Boost Buying of War Bonds and Stamps

Chicago school teachers and other employes of the board of education purchased a total of $16,238,698 war bonds and stamps last year, James B. McCahey, president of the board announced yesterday. This was an increase of $2,713,578 in bonds and stamps purchased over 1943, and an increase of $7,367,325 over 1942, he said.

POLES DESERT TO AMERICANS ON ITALY FRONT

ROME, Feb. 2 (AP).—A number of impressed Polish troops from Silesia have deserted to the American lines. They learned for the first time today that the Germans were being rapidly driven from the homeland by the Red army offensive.

The Poles—some of whose countrymen are fighting with the British 8th army on the Adriatic front—said they were subjected to contemptuous abuse by German noncoms and had been told only of "local attacks" on the eastern front.

The United States 5th army and 8th army patrols again made raids into the enemy lines.

REPORT STALIN REALISM SWAYS F. D. R. AND BIG 3

Army-Navy Journal Says Dictator Is Dominant.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 3.—As rumors of an armistice between Russia and Germany on the eastern front were being denied in the capital the authoritative tho unofficial Army and Navy Journal today asserted Dictator Stalin has reached a position where his views must be given greater consideration than in the past by President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill.

The publication made it clear Stalin will dominate the Big Three conference, which the London Press has reported is in progress in South Russia, and play the major role in making peace terms after contact is established by the allies with Germans prepared to capitulate.

"He is in control or his armies are in occupation of practically all the territory necessary to the security of Russia," the journal said.

Recognized by Czechs.

"His Lublin government has been given de facto recognition by Czechoslovakia and will receive like recognition from the Yugoslav regency, which we helped to create, and other Russian controled states.

"The most the London government in exile can hope from the Big Three conference is that it will be permitted representation in the Lublin government, that Polish elections will be supervised by an allied commission and that at the conference will be determined the exact boundaries of Poland and the soviet union."

The journal said that President Roosevelt is expected to adopt a "realistic attitude" on world questions. It viewed the statement at Rome of Harry Hopkins, Presidential adviser, that the conference will be brief and concerned with military problems, as confirming reports that there has been a reconciliation of views thru diplomatic exchanges.

Points in Dispute.

"Aside from the observance in general of the principles of the Atlantic Charter, free elections in the liberated states and the like, the President's concern is for agreement on the points of the system of postwar peace and security, which have been in dispute since the Dumbarton Oaks conference," the journal said. "It is believed Marshal Stalin, likewise desirous of such a system, will be shown in the forthcoming communique to favor a formula supported by the American and British leaders."

The publication said that peace feelers have been thrown out thru the medium of German business moguls, but they have lacked authority. It said that contact will come shortly by some means not now apparent.

"Since Hitler, as the arch criminal, is to be punished by the united nations, it is obvious that to recognize him by negotiation would give him a standing that would embarrass later treatment of him," it said.

"It is, therefore, with some agency other than Hitler that surrender might be discussed, and other than the 'free Germany' committee created by Marshal Stalin from captured German generals. No such agency is now on the horizon."

CHARGES ARMY DOUBLE-CROSS ON LABOR DRAFT

Attack on Byrnes Is Told by Senator.

were firmly opposed to the bill, the committee had planned to approve it because it was asked "by President Roosevelt, Gen. Marshall, Adm. King, and Jimmy Byrnes."

Action Delayed Again.

As a result of the controversy over Byrnes the committee today again delayed voting on the "work or jail" bill.

Sen. O'Mahoney [D., Wyo.] today loosed a blast at government agency bungling, as reported in the morning newspapers, and disclosed he had fought giving the power to Byrnes. O'Mahoney said:

"The amendment which gives the war mobilization director power to make the rules and regulations which govern the freezing of labor is a concentration of power in Washington which ought to be exercised by local draft boards.

Tells of "Striking Mistakes."

"The papers today carried two striking examples of the mistakes made by war agencies. One was the war production board order closing down certain supplies of gas, which by error closed down supplies to some war plants. [This temporarily threw 50,000 war plant employes out of work in Michigan].

"The other was the Mead [senate war investigating] committee disclosure that some one bought a searchlight for $31 from surplus war supplies and sold it back to the government for $235.

"Mistakes like that can happen with inanimate objects but to make mistakes of that kind with men would destroy the effectiveness of the whole act."

TEST CANADA'S DRAFT POLICY IN VOTE TOMORROW

Close Result Expected in By-Election.

OWEN SOUND, Ont., Feb. 3 (AP).—The key to troubled Canada's immediate political future reposed today with the 23,000 registered voters in this parliamentary constituency of Grey North, on Georgian bay 125 miles north of Toronto.

These taciturn British-stock townsfolk and farmers, altho exposed to weeks of campaigning, prepared calmly to vote on Monday in a by-election regarded as a test of the compromise conscription policy of Prime Minister W. L. Mackenzie King.

Seeking clues to Canada's future man power policy, the probable date of a forthcoming general election, and the strength of the socialist Coöperative Commonwealth federation, the dominion watched the electorate attentively.

Three Pleas Presented.

Canada's three major parties made these pleas:

1. Prime Minister King's Liberal party asked election of Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton, defense minister, to a seat in parliament so that he could better execute the duties of his office, to which he was appointed in November's conscription crisis.

2. The official opposition party, the Progressive Conservatives, asked election of Garfield Case, former mayor of Owen Sound, saying that the government's man power policy had failed to supply needed infantry reënforcements overseas and that it had been the cause of violence and desertions among draftee troops. More than 7,000 of these troops went absent without leave as they were about to be sent overseas, but so far as is known have not been formally charged with desertion.

3. The CCF asked election of Air Vice Marshal A. Earl Godfrey, an industrialist who recently became a supporter of the party's long range social and economic aims.

Close Race Expected.

All three parties regard it as a close race. The concensus of 18 visiting newspaper men representing all parts of the dominion gave McNaughton a slight edge, seven predicting he would win against six for Godfrey and five for Case.

The two old-line parties have campaigned mainly against each other over the conscription issue. The CCF, largely ignoring the question, has directed its appeal to approximately 1,400 trade unionists in Owen Sound and to the farmers, representing the majority of the constituency and having a tradition of many years of progressivism and coöperative marketing.

Canada's new political action committee, counterpart of the PAC in the United States, is supporting the CCF in its first campaign. It is associated with the Canadian Congress of Labor, dominion prototype of the CIO.

MICHIGAN DRAFT BOARD CALLS UP 28 FROM FARMS

Orders Deferred Men to Take Physicals.

Marquette, Mich., Feb. 3 [Special].—Twenty-eight men classified in the 2-C selective service group—men deferred because they are employed on farms—have been ordered to report Feb. 6 for pre-induction examination at Detroit, the Marquette county draft board said today. The orders were issued Jan. 27.

Members of the county draft board are John M. Bush, land department, Cleveland-Cliffs Iron company, Negaunee; John J. Walsh, Marquette city attorney, and Paul Ameen, trucking company operator, Ishpeming.

Rep. Hoffman [R., Mich.] aroused the house yesterday in Washington, D. C., by reading what he called a published statement of Maj. Nick A. Luscombe of the operations section of Michigan selective service in Adrian, Mich., stating all farmers from 18 thru 25 are "destined for military service if they can pass physical requirements."

Ordered Farmers Inducted.

Maj. Luscombe told draft board members Jan. 30, they must order induction of all deferred [2-C] farmers 18-25, Hoffman charged. This was 10 days after national selective service told local draft boards essential farmers should not be inducted in violation of the Tydings amendment requiring deferment of needed men in agriculture.

Walsh denied today that the board had received such instructions from Maj. Luscombe, or that they had even heard of his speech in Adrian. He said that because the men are reporting for pre-induction examination in Detroit does not necessarily mean that they will be inducted.

Doesn't Mean Induction.

"My fellow members and I are agree that if they pass the physical it does not necessarily mean induction," he said. "We will carefully go thru their deferment applications again and decide their cases upon the merits. We want to comply with the Tydings amendment in every way."

Walsh said the next pre-induction call would be Feb. 19 and the next call for induction of men who have been examined and accepted for military service would be Feb 22.

CHICAGO TAKES 3 NEW HITCHES IN MAN POWER BELT

1 Ruling Affects Million Women Workers.

Chicago tightened its man power belt yesterday with the following developments:

1. War man power commission officials said that the 10 per cent reduction in employes of nonessential businesses, originally scheduled to be completed by March 15, must be completed by Feb. 15.

2. Beginning tomorrow, certificates of availability given employers by employes will be invalidated. Only the United States employment service will be permitted to issue such certificates, authorizing workers to change jobs.

3. Beginning tomorrow, women workers will be unable to get a job, either in essential or nonessential industry, without the permission of a USES office.

Two Areas Affected.

William H. Spencer, regional WMC director, said that WMC order 45 calling for a 10 per cent reduction of employment rolls in unclassified establishments by March 15, will be amended shortly to compel the reduction by Feb. 15, for the Cook and Du Page county areas.

Spencer said the reason for the proposed action was increased demands for war material, and because critical war plants can find immediate use for more than the 5 per cent originally asked by Feb. 15.

He said critical war plants in the area had room for the immediate placement of 15,000 men and 5,000 women.

The reduction order applies only to unclassified establishments, which include hotels, restaurants, banks, beauty shops, and bars.

Penalty for Employers.

Starting tomorrow, Spencer said, only certificates issued by the USES may be accepted by hiring employers, at the risk of losing the right to new workers. Asked if the funneling of all men and women workers thru the USES machinery might slow down the currently rapid movement of workers into war industries, Spencer said that in other areas, including Los Angeles, Cal., and Minneapolis, Minn., the change has increased the flow to war plants.

Both men and women applicants, he said, will be referred to plants with I., II., or III. labor priority ratings.

The order placing women workers under war man power controls will affect an estimated one million women workers in the Chicago area. Under its provisions, no woman will be able to obtain a job in any essential or nonessential business or industry without permission of a USES office.

18 Offices in Two Counties.

There are 18 offices in Cook and Du Page counties. It will be a violation of WMC rules, Spencer said, for any employer to accept a new woman employe not referred by the USES.

The only exceptions, he said, will be in cases of extreme hardship, such as lack of adequate transportation, lower wages, loss of time, or lack of skill. Each case will be decided on its merits, he said, and no woman will be required, without review, to take a job against her will.

Spencer also said the WMC is urging plant operators to make better use of their present employes, to find jobs for more women, and to arrange more part time shifts.

HISTORY ESSAY CONTEST BACKED BY 1812 SOCIETY

The Society of the War of 1812 in the state of Illinois, thru its president, Carleton B. Cunningham, this week warmly indorsed THE TRIBUNE's "Citizens of Tomorrow" American history essay contest for high school students.

Harold Korey

"Never since the birth of our Republic has a knowledge of its basic history been of greater importance to the youth of the country than today," Cunningham said.

Harold Korey, teacher of history at Senn High school and president of the Chicago council for social studies, has accepted an invitation to serve on the adjudication committee of three which will choose the winning papers. Dr. William W. Sweet of the University of Chicago, is to be chairman. The third member will be announced later.

Essays are limited to 500 words and must be typewritten and double spaced, using one side of the paper only. No name may appear on the essays, but an envelope must be attached containing the name, age, and address of the writer and the name and location of the high school he or she attends.

Prizes will be a $500, a $100, and a $50 war bond. Essays must be mailed to Philip Maxwell, Chicago Tribune, Chicago 11, Ill., and must reach Tribune Tower before 6 p. m., March 1.

Green Recruits WAC Hospital Units

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Visits Hospital

Gov. Green visited Gardiner general hospital yesterday at the opening of the nation-wide drive to recruit women's army corps hospital companies. After touring the wards, he issued a call to Illinois women to enlist. As governor, he will direct the program in Illinois.

"Going thru the wards, I was struck with the fine spirit and understanding shown by these wounded men," he said. "They are cheerful in the face of their problems. They have only one question: 'When are we going to get more help?' The present army personnel is doing all it can, in fact more than its normal capacity. It is easy to see that aid is needed, and this aid can come only from American women."

Women who join the new hospital companies may serve near their homes or they may choose an army hospital in some other state. Illinois WAC recruiting headquarters is room A-333, 175 W. Jackson blvd.

ARMY NEEDS WOMEN.

Lengthening lists of wounded have intensified the army's immediate need of women to learn to be medical technicians, the army recruiting station here has announced. Women desiring information on the army's medical technician training program were urged to call Harrison 4390.

CANADA'S ELECTION.

There is to be a general election in Canada this spring. The life of the present parliament expires on April 17 and Prime Minister W. L. Mackenzie King has just announced that the call for the election will be issued sometime before that date. The British North America act provides for an election at least once every five years but permits a year's postponement in a time of grave national emergency. Mr. King has chosen not to take advantage of this clause.

Needless to say, Americans on this side of the border will follow the campaign with more than casual interest. Attention will be directed to dominion politics not only because Canada is our neighbor and ally and not only because among our neighbors Canada most nearly resembles us, but also because of the dramatic circumstances which provide the background for this contest.

A new third party has in recent years come forward with giant strides. It is known as the C. C. F., the Coöperative Commonwealth Federation. It is a Socialist party in all but name and at many points has borrowed from the British Labor party. It believes in production for use. Its appeal is directed primarily toward industrial labor, farmers, small business men, and the less prosperous professional classes, particularly teachers. It has the support of the CIO's Canadian branch known as the Congress of Labor. It believes in economic planning. In short, it is the party to which Henry Wallace would unquestionably belong if he were a Canadian.

The C. C. F. was still an obscure party five years ago when it polled 400,000 votes in the dominion election and captured nine seats out of 245. It is to be expected that the federation will make a much more substantial showing at the forthcoming election. Within recent years the new party in a provincial election in Ontario took 33 of the 90 seats and more recently won a complete victory in Saskatchewan. It is therefore conceivable that in the forthcoming election, Canada will go Socialist.

The election will not be fought, however, only on domestic issues; and if the war is still in progress when the voting takes place, it seems probable that the outcome will turn largely on issues arising from the war and particularly from conscription. In a national referendum in the spring of 1942 the Canadian people as a whole voted to permit the government to conscript men for overseas service, tho Quebec was three to one against it. Until recent months the King government did not conscript for service outside the western hemisphere. Now that Mr. King has sought to provide nonvolunteer replacements for the Canadian divisions fighting overseas a good many of the men ordered to the front have deserted. Recently the missing were reported to number more than 6,000, and it was said they were by no means all of French descent.

It remains to be seen whether the country will regard these incidents as a reflection on a government which failed to act with sufficient firmness or will find in them a justification for Mr. King's long reluctance to use conscription to maintain the overseas army. It remains to be seen, in particular, whether Quebec voters, whose 65 seats have generally been regarded as a sure thing for Mr. King's Liberal party, will continue to support him in face of his record on the conscription issue.

Normally, the rise of the Socialist party would be expected to lead to a formal or informal coalition of the bourgeois parties, the Progressive-Conservatives [Tories], and the Liberals. If that doesn't happen, the explanation will probably lie in the unwillingness of the imperial Tories of Ontario to join hands with the men of Quebec because of their attitude toward the war.

THE HIGH WIND IN BAKER STREET.

Edmund Wilson, the literary critic, has infuriated the devotees of detective literature with a calculatedly insulting attack upon their addiction to a type of fiction which he finds chiefly notable for impoverishment of invention, lack of interest, and bad writing.

Mr. Wilson had written his first diatribe against whodunits three months ago. He undertook to examine this literary form because of the importunities of friends. His reading was disillusioning but, with a Puritan sense of duty, he found himself obliged to report to his following that they were guilty of a criminal waste of time if they were burying their noses in thrillers, shockers, or creepers.

This brought an outraged cry from the Baker Street Irregulars, the admirers of Dr. Henry Merrivale, and that numerous company with a crush on Lord Peter Wimsey. They all said the same thing: "You didn't read the right ones." Mr. Wilson said that the protests were "in a volume and of a passionate earnestness which had hardly been elicited even by my occasional criticisms of the soviet union." A man with a considerable social conscience, the New Yorker's critic determined to review the whole problem. He got an armful of the works of Dashiel Hammett, Ngaio Marsh, Dorothy Sayers, and Carter Dickson and went into retirement.

Upon emerging, he had even colder comfort for the addicts. "Detective story readers," he said, "feel guilty, they are habitually on the defensive, and all their talk about 'well written' mysteries is simply an excuse for their vice, like the reasons that the alcoholic can always produce for a drink." Many of them, in a pitiful attempt to justify themselves, had resort to the fact that Woodrow Wilson was a mystery fan and that somebody had once called detective fiction "the solace of noble minds."

Thru all his exhortations, Mr. Wilson so far has been able to effect but seven cures. These people thanked him "for helping them liberate themselves from a habit which they recognized as wasteful of time and degrading to the intelligence." To them he publicly says: "Friends, we represent a minority, but literature is on our side. With so many fine books to be read, so much to be studied and known, there is no need to bore ourselves with this rubbish."

To this we can only add that those far gone in the vice should have the beneficent assistance in rehabilitation of some such agency as Alcoholics Anonymous, which has snatched many a brand from the burning in its own field. Perhaps Mr. Wilson's seven restored addicts can constitute themselves a parole board to restore their weaker brethren to a place in good literary society.

Yes, Mr. Wilson is entirely right. We wonder if he ever read that scene in "The Ticking Terror" where the great Baron Franz Maximilian von Karagoz und von Kaz throws his green umbrella and at 20 paces fells the smiler with the knife. Excitement? Whew!

PRESENT DAY TORYISM.

Alex Small's series of articles in THE TRIBUNE on New York pointed to a conclusion which must disturb Americans of undivided loyalty. Toryism, he finds, has persisted among New Yorkers to an astonishing degree. It is much more potent now than it ever was during the Revolutionary war.

Dr. A. C. Flick, in his book "Loyalism in New York During the Revolution," describes the Tory component as consisting of "persons of all social positions from that of the poor emigrant but recently come to America, to the oldest and wealthiest family in the colony." He says that it included "most of the leaders in culture, religion, and society, many of the solid business men, and also much of the brawn and muscle of the common people."

The British military leaders, if they had known it, had in the Tories a force which, if fully utilized, might well have put down the revolution. But the British leaders, with characteristic snobbery and well bred disdain for the colonial, failed to convert to their purposes the power and influence of the Tories. Prof. Harold U. Faulkner, in his "American Political and Social History," observes, "But considering the size of the Tory party, the comparatively small influence of this group is astonishing. It was due to the British authorities' lack of appreciation of the value of loyalists, to British lack of tact and sense in dealing with the whole problem, and in part to the aggressive action of the patriots."

Fortunately for the future United States, the 18th century Tories, with all their dedication to the British cause, failed. But, as Mr. Small has made clear, the subsequent manifestations of the Tory attachment to Britain suggests an eagerness to overcome the rebuff dealt toryism so long ago by Britons who considered themselves the Tories' betters.

"The wars—or better, the world saving crusades—of the United States are to a great extent brewed in New York," says Mr. Small. "Here we confront intangibles like emotions and states of mind translated into policy, or better into action. This intangible may be briefly called colonial mindedness. Impolitely, but accurately, it could be called subserviency to the British."

This attachment is reflected in many facets of the life of our present day eastern seaboard Tories. It is seen in their education, in the disposition of the old line universities which they attend to organize themselves in a "house" system for undergraduates, in imitation of Oxford and Cambridge. The ideal in the kind of education they receive is to make them "gentlemen" in the British pattern. This sort of upbringing is calculated to teach that American ways are good only so far as they are imitation British.

From their colleges the young eastern Tories plunge into finance, as represented by Wall street and its orientation toward the financial interests and direction of the Bank of England; into the state department, with its disposition to follow the lead of Whitehall; into international society, with its deference to British aristocracy; and into the world of ideas, where there is a busy import trade in internationalist programs which are always designed to improve the world and do the empire no harm.

These Tories have made their choice, and it is not America. They do Britain far more good nowadays than their spiritual forebears ever did when this country was struggling for existence, for the British have come to recognize their usefulness, to give them social recognition, permit them the occasional privilege of a titled marriage, and extend the glad hand across the sea. Thus the agitation to come to the rescue that always originates among them when Britain is in trouble; thus the disposition to make this country secondary in all things when the British interest is involved.

The Tories have won a curious, delayed triumph in their struggle to reaffirm the allegiance of America to what, in their minds, is the mother country. Is it because patriots fail to match the spirit of their forebears—that they fail, as a contemporary historian put it during the Revolution, to achieve "an animation in the friends of congress generally wanting in the advocates for royal government?" Now again it is time for a patriot party. Americans today cannot afford to fail where their ancestors succeeded if they wish independence to be more than a word.

AMERICAN TANKS

[Following is an address delivered last night by Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE TRIBUNE, and broadcast on the Chicago Theater of the Air over W-G-N, WGNB, and the Mutual Broadcasting system.]

BY COL. ROBERT R. McCORMICK.

Of late we have been hearing criticism that American tanks are less effective than German tanks. We hear that our cannon are less powerful, our armor less resisting, and that, driven by gasoline, they are more inflammable than the German tanks, driven by Diesel oil. These criticisms may all be true, and yet our tank designers are not at fault.

Let the fact be faced that in 1940 the Germans were the only soldiers who understood tanks and tank tactics, as was seen in the battle of France. The British tanks in this battle were mere machine gun carriers. Such heavy tanks as the French had were slow and were dispersed among the infantry units. The German panzer divisions, therefore, met practically no opposition. In consequence, the continental armies were all compelled to surrender and the British army to seek safety in flight, abandoning all of its equipment.

In our country the horse lovers in the army had very successfully resisted mechanization in spite of the fact that an American, Walter Christie, had invented the heavy, fast tank which the Germans afterward adopted.

American tank manufacture in 1940 was all for lend-lease according to specifications furnished by Great Britain. These specifications did not provide for guns above 1½ inch in caliber. After this tank construction had entered mass production, it was perceived that a larger gun was needed, but this could be put only on one side of that tank. Thus was born the clumsy General Grant tank. It was followed by the General Sherman tank, built to the old British specifications, but with a 75 millimeter gun emplaced at its center and with a 360 degree field of fire.

This tank had to be designed to land on the beaches. It had to climb precipitous slopes. It had to be landed among unavoidable confusion. Those responsible for its design felt that the landings should not be complicated by two kinds of fuel and so accepted the inflammable gasoline engine as a necessity.

Our tanks did land successfully in Africa, Sicily, Italy, and France and made possible all of those victorious campaigns. They did break the German line at St. Lo. They did race across France and inflict three great defeats on the Germans in the open in which nearly half a million prisoners were captured.

Then they came up against the Siegfried line. Weapons which had succeeded so well in open warfare were not as well equipped as the weapons the Germans had prepared to hold this fortified position. The German tanks did not have to land on beaches or climb precipices. Their fuel supply was carefully organized. Thus they could be designed solely for combat.

In facing our present disadvantage, let us be very conscious that if heavier machines had been chosen we might not have won any of our great victories.

THE BACKLOG IN BRAINS.

Recently two leaders in American science, Dr. Arthur Holly Compton of the University of Chicago and President James B. Conant of Harvard, have expressed concern for the future intellectual leadership of the country. Dr. Compton said that the nation's failure to continue developing scientists in time of war might prove a calamity. Dr. Conant contended that the G. I. bill of rights, by basing educational opportunity after the war on length of military service and not on "demonstrated ability," might encourage an influx of intellectual mediocrities into the universities after the war, while discouraging outstanding prospects among the veterans.

Dr. Compton calls upon the government to waive selective service to the extent that groups of young men best qualified for scientific training may be exempted from military duty. He points out that the Germans have seen the wisdom of guaranteeing a continuing supply of trained scientists by barring qualified youth from entering service. He also observes that the safety and welfare of the nation is related to our ability to retain leadership in science, but that at present no students over 18, except a few 4-F's, are being trained. Based upon a requirement of six years of training, it would be 1951 before a normal supply of young professionals will again be available for the laboratories, even if students were immediately exempted from the draft.

It would seem indisputable that Dr. Compton is right and that if peace in the future is to be threatened principally by new instruments of destruction growing out of radical advances in science, we should begin our scientific mobilization at once. Congress should authorize the necessary waivers to give our scientific faculties young men of promise in the required numbers.

Dr. Conant's argument has a different application. He is thinking about the students who will come to the universities from the services after the war. He seems to think it is the obligation of the government, thru extension of the G. I. bill of rights, to provide for advanced training of the more brilliant veterans who, during the authorized undergraduate course of study at public expense, have demonstrated an ability to outstrip their fellows.

There is no question that the war will have left us with a national educational deficit, and that some method must be devised to encourage promising young men to enter advanced work, so that professional men, scholars, teachers, and research workers will be available in the years to come. But whether this training should be financed at government expense is another question. Dr. Conant calls the method democratic, but certainly valid arguments could be offered that it would tend to bring about socialization of institutions of higher learning and of the professions.

Perhaps, as he says, there would be much less reason for complaint if educational opportunities were governed to a lesser degree by the accidents of family income or geography. But if the state were to undertake to guarantee a college education to every young man and woman it is entirely possible that, without a severe insistence upon a high standard of demonstrated attainment as a condition for continuing assistance to the student, our educational institutions and the professions might quickly be debased.

Experience would tend to show that the person of exceptional talents will find a way to bring those talents to fruition, and that the degree of struggle required to do so may serve to crystalize his fidelity and devotion in developing his special gifts. There are probably very few men in this country who, in their youth, were potentially great doctors, or scientists, or scholars, who were unable to overcome the difficulties of getting a training and whose talents and leadership were consequently lost to their country.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

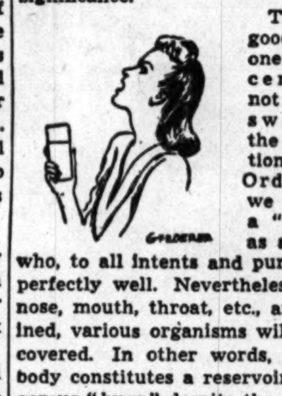
by Dr. Irving S. Cutter

The following article is one of several prepared in advance by Dr. Irving S. Cutter before the illness which resulted in his death Friday morning.

[Copyright: 1945: By The Chicago Tribune.]

HOW CARRIERS SPREAD DISEASE.

FROM time to time some one will write, "Won't you please explain what you mean by a 'carrier'? You use the term routinely and I am not clear as to its significance."



This is a good query, one that has certainly not been answered to the satisfaction of all. Ordinarily, we think of a "carrier" as a person who, to all intents and purposes, is perfectly well. Nevertheless, if his nose, mouth, throat, etc., are examined, various organisms will be discovered. In other words, his own body constitutes a reservoir of dangerous "bugs," despite the fact that he is not indisposed.

As we all can understand, the presence of these menacing inhabitants would ordinarily mean that the individual is afflicted with the disease for which they are responsible. But here is a man who is walking around, who exhibits no temperature, no sore throat. Apparently, then, he is not absorbing the toxins from the germs in question or, if he is, they are being neutralized immediately. We assume, therefore, that he possesses a certain amount of self-protection. He is like the soldier with a hand grenade in his pocket. Nothing happens unless he pulls the pin.

What are some of these microbes which may be toted about with impunity? In the list we may include the invaders responsible for typhoid, paratyphoid, dysentery, cholera, bubonic plague, meningitis, poliomyelitis, diphtheria, pneumonia, and many other forms. If the stools of all human beings were examined carefully, nearly 25 per cent would reveal the causative agent of lockjaw. No doubt certain viruses and parasites are also harbored, which may be harmless to the host but which can be spread to those who are susceptible.

Some of these "carriers" have had the malady in question and have recovered. Others, however, have never been ill. Nevertheless, by means of contact with victims, they have acquired the germ. The convalescent may be—for a time, at least—an active "carrier." He is growing his own bacilli. But either type can infect an innocent one who does not possess adequate resistance to throw off the assault. This explains why many of us will suffer an attack of pneumonia after visiting and talking face to face with the one who is apparently on the mend. The supposedly healthy chap takes in the microbes and his tissues are just not strong enough to destroy them. In consequence, he may develop the malady.

Many believe that physicians and dentists are immune to all ailments. The fact is that because they are exposed more frequently than the members of any other group, they suffer numerous infections. In this same category we may include nurses and all who deal with the sick. There is a high incidence of transfer of diseases from patients to hospital attendants of all kinds.

The main thing is to observe good hygiene of the nose, mouth, and throat. This may well become a national fetish and I must again repeat my personal conviction that gargles and mouth washes are of real value. They must not be so concentrated that they will injure the delicate mucous surfaces but they can clear away millions of bacteria and thus reduce the unwelcome population.

FOLLOW ADVICE.

P. W. writes: A few years ago I experienced pain in my chest after walking up a hill. I went to a physician and he told me to eat lighter meals and to quit smoking. He prescribed some pills to dilate my blood vessels. I kept this up for a while but when I stopped taking the tablets the symptom returned. I went to two other doctors and they told me the same thing but still I am not cured. I am afraid so much pill taking is dangerous. What do you suggest?

REPLY.

You have had excellent advice from your physicians and I would counsel you to follow it. The tablets you refer to are not habit forming. On the other hand, they seem to be just what you need. You probably have angina pectoris, a condition which cannot be cured. But it can be held in check, with intelligence and patience.

SIGH NO MORE.

Mrs. C. writes: Some one told me that sighing can be relieved by breathing into a paper bag. This sounded silly but I tried it, and it worked. Can you explain?

REPLY.

If the cause of the symptom is a disturbance in the percentage of carbon dioxide in the blood, this maneuver helps to reëstablish the proper level.

GLAND INVOLVEMENT.

K. L. writes: What is infectious mononucleosis?

REPLY.

This disorder, commonly called "glandular fever," is probably of virus origin. The glands in the neck become enlarged. Later, other lymph structures may become involved. A study of the blood will show a rise in the mononuclear cells.

BRANNY SKIN.

L. O. writes: How is pityriasis treated?

REPLY.

This term includes a group of skin disorders characterized by flaky scales. The services of an expert will be required.

SYPHILIS TEST.

F. J. writes: What is meant by a "Wassermann negative?"

REPLY.

The blood has been tested and the organisms of syphilis were not present according to this method.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

Writers should confine themselves to 200 or 300 words. Give full names and addresses. No manuscripts can be returned. Space for letters is obviously limited. Incoming mail far exceeds it. If a letter is not printed attribute it to lack of room. Address letters to Voice of the People, THE TRIBUNE.

"GET TOUGH."

ENGLAND, Dec. 24.—I am a wounded infantryman in a hospital in England. Some of the fellows in my ward have been reading in the G. I. publication, Stars and Stripes, of the conduct of the war and I'd like to tell you and the rest of the people back home what we think.

We are, for one thing, damn sick and tired of all this talk back home of the end of the war. V-E day celebrations and reconversion don't mean much to men who've been sleeping in an overcoat with half a foot of mud soaking thru your already sodden clothes while the Krauts' 88s are bursting around. Also, it's a blow to morale to learn about prisoners escaping from a P. W. camp in the United States when you're resting up [digging in 9 times out of 10] after taking your objective.

We are sick and tired of the whole thing. Don't the American people know that their sons, brothers, husbands, and sweethearts are dying, and not in clean barracks but in stinking mudholes? Don't they know about marching in roads at night with mud up to your knees, falling down and cracking the "mudcake" on your body that fits like a tailor made suit of underwear?

What we can't understand is the apparent leniency towards the German P. W.'s and captured German civilians. We are fighting those people! They can say that they didn't want those guys like Hitler governing them. But the point is they were willing to do all this and were willing to carry a gun against us and shoot us. Let's hope that at the end of this war the Americans and the rest of the allies deal severely with them. Nothing, including starvation, would be too harsh for these people after Lidice, Rotterdam, and the scientific looting and terrorizing of Europe and "prisoners of the reich."

We don't blame the American people any, they've done a lot of good work equipping us, but we've got this to say: "Wake up and get tough, America. Get good and tough." PVT. G. T. D.

THE WAY IT'S DONE IN EUROPE.

Chicago, Jan. 26.—Why all this hubbub over son Elliott's promotion to brigadier general? Don't you know that it is the custom with all reigning houses to make their offsprings honorary colonels as soon as they pass the diaper stage? Son Elliott's elevation is thus merely running true to form in our own dynastic tradition.

J. F. writes: "I was discharged from service a year ago and returned to the dwelling in which I was born and later married in and now it has been sold to one of the many retired farmers moving into this town and buying up all the houses. I must vacate. I am eligible to obtain a loan to build a home under the G. I. law, but what good does it do me if I can't get priorities?"

If you qualify for a loan under the G. I. law and your circumstances are as you describe, you can secure the necessary priorities to build, upon application to the nearest FHA office having jurisdiction. For Chicago and most of the surrounding states, application is made to the FHA office, room 506, Merchandise Mart, Chicago.

J. J. O. asks: "Is there any place to get brief information on the various widows' pensions available to widows of service men?"

Yes, send this department a self-addressed stamped envelope and a request for "Widows' Pensions."

F. F. asks: "In all this talk of placing men in war jobs or reinducting them, does that include men in the 1-C group?"

The state policy in Illinois broadly exempts men from operation of WMC and selective service regulations if they qualify as "veterans" in the sense of having completed a tour of active duty of 90 days or more in any branch of service UNLESS they have been discharged from an officer training program, cadet training program or from any reserve component thereof, who at no time were on active duty or whose period of such duty was less than 90 days. Another exception is for men released because of dependency or occupational requirements whose status has changed.

PEPPER ON HITLER.

Middletown, O., Jan. 25.—On Jan. 15, Sen. Wheeler took the floor of the senate to debate the allied war and peace aims. Sen. Pepper took issue with Sen. Wheeler's criticisms, and accused him of "providing grist for the mills of Goebbels." Sen. Milliken, who came to the defense of Sen. Wheeler, was accused by Sen. Pepper of "quarreling with history." This is the same Sen. Pepper which history will record as having said we could beat Japan in "six weeks."

If Senators Wheeler and Milliken wished, they could have furnished evidence that they had a real quarrel with some of Sen. Pepper's historical statements which must have "provided grist for the mills of Goebbels."

Speaking on the floor of the senate on Aug. 22, 1940, Sen. Claude Pepper said: "With all of Napoleon's genius, with all of his greatness, with all the magic of his mind, I think Hitler towers above him like a great monument almost beside a stone which lies at its feet. It took Napoleon years to conquer Europe. It took Hitler a few weeks.

"There has never been anything like the way he has molded all the nations into an industrial and economic and intellectual entity. . . .

"I think his genius is exceeded only by his daring drive for his scheme, which stretches out before his unrivaled imagination."

Is it any wonder that the American people have lost faith in their leaders, when the only thing constant is the constant inconsistencies of the spoken words of their public servants?

AGNES L. LOUIS.

MR. R. CRACKS A JOKE.

St. Albans, W. Va., Jan. 18.—The bill to establish permanent conscription is now before congress. It contains at least one statement that is misleading, if not false: "The experience of the present conclusively establishes the lack of such a system results in unnecessary wars and causes international discord."

Thru decades, many European nations have had peace time conscription, and some of them have been burdened and shackled with that feature of tyranny for centuries; but war is continuous in Europe.

As serious as such a law would be, if passed, to the fathers and mothers of America, the President approaches the consideration of it with the jocular wisecrack "that it would teach youth to brush their teeth." For the sake of the joker, who would conscript the youth of our land in order that they may "brush their teeth," let us hope the youth at the battle fronts may have clean teeth and leave none of them on the firing line or in fox holes; but should such misfortune befall them, the comedians should relieve themselves of their anemic jokes before their return.

A. L. HUGHES.

A WELSH ADMIRER OF EISENHOWER.

LLANDAFF, Glamorgan, Wales, Jan. 21.—May I congratulate you for your timely rebuke to the "snipers and armchair critics" of Gen. Eisenhower, to be found in some sections of the press in this country.

Believe me, such stuff does not represent the sentiments of the man in the street over here. We have the utmost faith and admiration for him and all of your boys over here. Who, indeed, could fail to be thrilled to the core, at the heroism displayed at the epic of Bastogne. I'm telling you, we took our hats off to you when the story was told.

So, please, do not allow a few rotten papers to poison the comradeship which is growing up between us and your great country [which, some day, D-V, I hope to visit] and which if allowed to develop, will make for the greatest guarantee of peace this world has ever known.

EXTEND THE R. O. T. C.

Chicago, Jan. 29.—While reading today's article lauding R. O. T. C. training in Chicago's public high schools, one question rose in my mind: Why can't R. O. T. C. training be extended to every high school in the city? Of the 41 public high schools only 29 offer this program.

Being a graduate of one of these "forgotten schools" I respectfully urge that every school be given the opportunity to reap the physical and mental benefits of R. O. T. C. training.

PARKER ALUMNUS.

REFRIGERATION IN NEW YORK.

New York City, Jan. 27.—Sparkplugged by the caustic diatribes of Mr. Small, some of your correspondents have aspersed the patriotism of New Yorkers. These canards are scotched here and now. As an example, look at the hotel landlords. They make Nathan Hale look like Benedict Arnold. In their passion to comply with the ukase of Jimmy Byrnes, they have gone the 68 degree ceiling on indoor temperature 136 better. Evidently they have interpreted the order as meaning 68 below zero.

NED ALVORD.

RUTHENIA.

Chicago, Jan. 28.—Your recent editorial regarding sub-Carpathian Russia prompts me to write. I was born in that region and beg to differ with you on most of your contentions. The region has the so-called Ukrainian or Ruthenian inhabitants living on the extreme northern fringe of the region. They are numbered approximately about 500,000, to 3,500,000 Magyars. These Hungarians live in the middle and southern part of sub-Carpathian Russia.

The Ruthenians are not Catholics, as you stated, but Greek Orthodox. They are a deeply religious people and have a special ancient culture to be found nowhere else. These people live in the mountainous part of the region and speak Russian only. Thru 1,000 years that they belonged to Hungary they were not compelled to learn the Magyar language.

The lowlands of sub-Carpathian Russia are inhabited by Hungarians and they are in no way related to the Ruthenians. Their language, their customs, and religion, all their ways of living are so unlike that if you find yourself among them you think you are on a different continent. These proud people have nothing in common with the Ruthenians or the Czechs, yet they were compelled to bow to Praga for 20 some odd years by the peace treaty of Trianon; neither did they have any use for Hitler, who forced his will upon them. And now they are given to Joe Stalin. But this will only be one trouble spot. There will be many others. Europe is such a troublesome continent that its ills cannot be cured, ever, even with the sacrifices we are making for it.

MRS. KAREN ELMO.

THE LOGICAL END OF UNIONISM.

Kissimmee, Fla., Jan. 25.—If organized labor unions are fair and just, they must be an asset to organized society, that is, government. Therefore, every group or strata of society should be organized—banded together for its own selfish interests and personal betterment.

If labor unions are good, they are good for everybody. Therefore, doctors, lawyers, preachers, merchants, policemen, postal employes, farmers, and men of fighting age should be organized, that is, belong to a union. The next step would be for all men of fighting age to organize and demand their "rights." There would then be no government except at the dictation of labor unions and exacting racketeers.

The principle of labor unions as now practiced is either right or wrong. If it's good, it's good for every one; if it's wrong, it's wrong for every one of us, and should be discarded. Labor is not a separate entity. Neither is capital. The two always have been and always will be inseparable. Neither can survive without the other, regardless of what form of political "ism" tries to control them. They must stand steadfastly united against all political aggressors now in Washington seeking to play one against the other.

WHEN THE SHELLS RUN SHORT.

Chicago, Jan. 16.—Below I am quoting part of a letter dated Dec. 18, 1944, It was written in Germany by Capt. Lewis G. Fauble, who has been in the artillery for two years. He says:

"If you can't get something because they tell you they are making shells instead, don't gripe, because we really need the ammunition. I sometimes would really like to kick the back part of people's laps up behind their ears for some of the things they are doing back in the States—strikes, etc. I've even read about soldiers having to be used in factories producing ammunition. Why don't they draft those people? They do it to get men to die over here. I sure would like to get some of those who have struck in my battery. I'd really work their tails off."

LEGAL TENDER.

Chicago, Jan. 22.—Today I made personal application at the city vehicle license department for a vehicle tag for my car for the year 1945. To my amazement the clerk at window 8 refused to accept three silver dollars along with the bill which I proffered. What is wrong with silver dollars?

MILITIA FAVORS ENACTMENT OF TRAINING PLAN

Demands Voice in Peace Time Army Policy.

(This is another article in a series on compulsory military training in peace time, expressing arguments for and against the plan and reviewing official action.)

BY HARRY M'CLAIN.

Disgruntled by treatment of its senior officers in World Wars I. and II. at the hands of the regular army, the National Guard association is demanding that in the post-war military establishment, recognition be given to the militia component of the army of the United States as decreed by congress in the national defense act of 1916.

In this act, congress declared "it is essential that the strength and organization of the national guard as an integral part of the first line of defense . . . shall at all times be maintained and assured."

Universal military training first was indorsed by the National Guard association in 1902 and there has been no change in policy.

Recalling the 18 combat divisions supplied by the states in 1917 and again in 1940-'41, the association has taken the position that state units should be the first source of reserves in time of emergency, that graduates of any compulsory training program should be channeled into guard units to maintain them at war strength, and that national guard officers should have equal voice with the regular army in policy making.

Units Praised by Stimson.

Strong protest from the association to the war department against omission of guard representatives from the staff assigned to planning a post-war military establishment under assumption that universal military training would be adopted drew from War Secretary Stimson this statement:

"I want to make it clear," Stimson said, "that the importance of the national guard in our peace time army will not be lessened by the enactment by congress of a system of universal military training. We are counting on them as a bulwark of our future national security."

It took this admission to allay fears of the guard that it was to be shunted out of the post-war picture entirely under a system of universal training.

Marshall for Guard Reserves.

Last May the guard charged before a nouse committee on post-war military organization that a special planning division of the war department was considering a proposal that would relegate it purely to home guard status.

Last August, Gen. Marshall declaréd he favored "a professional peace establishment no larger than necessary to meet normal requirements, to be reënforced in an emergency by organized units drawn from a citizen army reserve, effectively organized in time of peace with full opportunity for competent citizen soldiers to acquire practical experience thru temporary active service."

Two weeks later it became known that Marshall flatly had rejected a proposal for a professional army without national guard reserve.

Act Authorizes 424,000 Men.

At the outset of the war, enlisted strength of the national guard was 279,358. The defense act authorized 424,000—800 men for each congressional seat. Because this number would give every state more troops than needed for internal use, the guard proposed the federal government support technical and specialist units.

About 1,100,000 American boys become 18 each year. If 200,000 were unfit for compulsory military training, 900,000 would become available. Of these, it is estimated the navy would get 200,000 and the army 700,000.

Under bills before congress, trainees would have a six year reserve obligation. This could be served by a year in the regular establishment, two years in the guard, or three years in the organized reserve.

In two years of universal military training, 1,400,000 army reserves would be available. This would permit a guard of 400,000, an organized reserve of equal size, and 600,000 others available after brief physical conditioning.

TWO WIN $5,000 WITH DESIGN FOR W-G-N THEATER

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Two Chicagoans yesterday were announced as $5,000 first prize winners in the W-G-N Chicago Theater of the Air competition for the most beautiful and efficient radio studio theater in the world. The winners, who worked together on the design, are Arthur Frederick Adams, 6510 Glenwood av., and William F. Clark, 5820 Kenmore av.

Their design consisted of four elaborate drawings showing the main floor plan of the theater, the balconies, the proscenium arch, and a perspective of the stage.

The two men are specialists in architectural design and mechanical engineering of theaters and public buildings. Adams received honorable mention in the contest for a design for Tribune Tower in 1922. As a member of the firm of C. W. and George L. Rapp, he designed the Oriental and Southtown theaters in Chicago, and the Paramount theater in New York. Clark also was associated with the Rapp firm for many years.

Other prize winners in the $10,000 cash competition also were announced.

Second prize of $2,500 went to Hyland Dinion and Irving H. Merritt of the firm of Dinion & Merritt, 627 W. 115th st., New York City. Dinion is a graduate of Yale university and Merritt of Syracuse university.

Third prize of $1,000 went to Joseph T. Gemmi, 1666 Buena Vista av., Decatur, Ill. Gemmi is a graduate of the Carnegie Institute of Technology.

Among those who received the 15 honorable mention awards of $100 are several men in the military services. They are listed in alphabetical order:

Alexander Ban, Los Angeles, Cal.; William Boedefeld, naval mine depot, Yorktown, Va. [home, Collingswood, N. J.]; Eric A. Carlson, Battle Creek, Mich.; Dave Chapman, 540 N. Michigan av., Chicago; Charles R. Choate, 411 N. Elmwood av., Oak Park, and Carl H. Lancaster Jr., Camp Parks, Cal.; Frederick Hodgdon, San Marino, Cal.; Walter W. W. Jones, Brooklyn, N. Y.; Pvt. Ralph L. Le Blanc, Fort Belvoir, Va.; Ralph E. Leff and Max Marek Feldman of Brooklyn; Lewis and Leonard, architects and engineers, New York City; Dr. Harry F. Olson, W. Princeton, N. J.; Ralph E. Parachek, Toledo, O.; A. L. Salzman and Associates, architects and engineers, 343 S. Dearborn st., Chicago; Philip Sanfilippo, Vito P. Battista and Vincent D. Luongo, New York City, and Carl E. Sinnige, Cincinnati, O.

Theater to Seat 2,000.

The theater, which will seat 2,000, is to be the chief feature of a building which will be known as the W-G-N Chicago Theater of the Air and which will be constructed just south of Tribune Tower after the war.

The contest for the theater's interior design was announced July 15, 1944. Judges were Col. Robert R. McCormick, president of W-G-N, Inc.; Frank P. Schreiber, station manager, and Henry Weber, W-G-N's director of music. John W. Park, Tribune production manager, acted as professional adviser to the jury.

TRAFFIC EXPERT MAPS LOOP LINK FOR CANAL ROAD

BY ROBERT HOWARD.

A suggestion that the proposed Illinois and Michigan canal superhighway be connected with Michigan av. or the Outer dr. by means of an elevated roadway along Archer av. to Cermak rd. and thence east, was offered yesterday by James E. Bulger, vice president of the Chicago Motor club. The traffic could move to the loop over the two north-south boulevards. Bulger for years has taken a leading role in planning better motoring facilities.

The abandoned canal right of way, extending southwestward from S. Ashland av. and the Chicago river, would connect with a fast route to the airport and would also lead to U. S. 66, the main downstate traffic artery. The canal road was one of three proposed superhighway routes which could be partly financed by tolls, a report by Detroit and New York engineers has indicated. The I. and M. route earlier had been commended by Gov. Green, Mayor Kelly and other public figures.

Would Connect Other Routes.

The toll road report, by Allied Engineers, Inc., of Detroit, proposed that the I. & M. expressway be extended along Archer av. past S. Halsted st. and then cross the river on an extended northward route that would distribute passenger cars and trucks west of the loop. The Halsted st. link would also connect with northwest and southeast super-highways, for which toll financing was held to be feasible.

Bulger's proposal, which would save the expense of bridging the Chicago river, would have the I. and M. route continue along Archer av. to Cermak rd. and then go eastward to Michigan av. to the outer drive in Burnham park. An earlier alternative, being held in abeyance by the Chicago plan commission, would call for the extension of Franklin st. southward to Archer rd. as an elevated highway over the railroad tracks just east of the river.

Air Rights Involved.

Involved in that possibility is the question of air rights over railroad trackage. When the Chicago river was straightened more than 15 years ago, the intention was to provide for a street on the east bank. Planners later found that the ground was not deeded to the city for traffic purposes.

Mayor Kelly said he would discuss the toll road idea at his next meeting with Gov. Green. Meanwhile, the mayor indicated that he hoped enough gas tax and federal air funds could be obtained to make toll collections unnecessary. Other officials withheld comment, but Robert M. Kingery, general manager of the Chicago regional planning commission, said toll roads would be welcomed if they would speed up construction of long neglected superhighways.

SEIZE HUSBAND FOR NEGLECT OF WIFE'S BURNS

Mrs. Gertrude Mayo, 44, of 1 W. Erie st., was taken to County hospital yesterday in critical condition from burns which her husband, Herbert, said she received a week ago when she dropped a lighted cigaret into her clothing. Police were summoned yesterday by Dr. John Volicos, 631 N. Dearborn st., who said the woman apparently had been without medical treatment since the accident. Police took the husband into custody and said he admitted serving 22 days in jail in Indianapolis. He could give no reason, they said, for neglecting to call a doctor.

RESIDENT HERE 79 YEARS FETES 100TH BIRTHDAY

Mrs. Emma Adler, for almost 79 years a resident of Chicago, will celebrate her 100th birthday tomorrow in the home of her son, Clarence M. Adler, of 6846 Cornell av. More than 200 relatives and friends are expected to attend.

Mrs. Adler was born in Denmark in 1845, and came to Chicago in 1866. She later was married to Joseph I. Adler, a Civil war veteran and operator of an insurance business here. Her eldest brother was Brig. Gen. Edward S. Salomon, an aide to Gen. Grant and later territorial governor of Washington.

Her birthday tomorrow will be highlighted by the cutting of a large birthday cake. It will be impossible to put 100 candles on the cake, however, her son said. Mrs. Adler is in good health, and spends much of her time reading and writing poetry. She has two other sons, Sidney Adler, retired general counsel for Sears, Roebuck & Co., and Felix Adler, Hollywood screen writer.

BLUE NETWORK STUDIOS MOVE TO MICHIGAN AV.

Little Office Space Open on Near North Side.

BY AL CHASE.
[Real Estate Editor.]

Two significant real estate market factors were disclosed yesterday thru the recent purchase of the Michigan Square building by Time, Inc., for 2¼ million dollars. First and most important for the near north side's rapidly growing "radio center" was the possibility that Blue Network, Inc. [of which Time interests own 12½ per cent], may take some Michigan Square building space for its Chicago studios. This would give Michigan av.'s radio row another important addition.

The second important real estate news item revealed by Time's purchase was the discovery made by tenants of Michigan Square notified to move by May 1 that there is virtually no place into which to move on the near north side. Never in the history of the area has office space been so scarce. A survey of the larger buildings showed occupancy virtually 100 per cent.

Studios Near North Side.

Officials of Blue Network said it had outgrown its present space in the Merchandise Mart and admitted that for several months its engineers have been studying the possibilities of Michigan Square and other near north side buildings. Original plans for Michigan Square called for a high tower [a necessary factor in television] and the building has foundations capable of carrying several additional stories on the Michigan av. frontage.

Blue Network officials pointed out that it was desirable for radio broadcasting studios to be near each other to facilitate exchange of artists. Michigan Square is close to W-G-N and to WBBM in the Wrigley building.

It is not far from WJJD and WIND in the Carbide and Carbon building, WAIT in the London Guarantee building, WCFL [a Blue Network outlet] in the Furniture Mart, and WMBI in the Moody Bible institute.

Other Studios Near.

In addition to regular broadcasting studios the World Broadcasting System, Inc., producer of transcribed broadcasts, is at 301 E. Erie st.

Many of the larger advertising agencies which are responsible for hiring radio personnel and which have audition rooms are on the near north side.

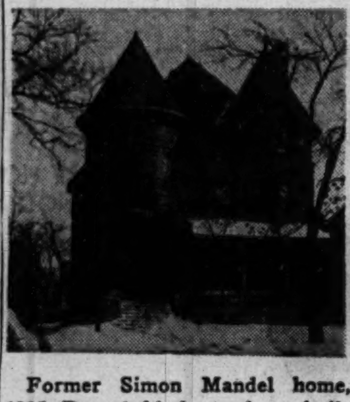
In addition to the probability that Blue Network will move into the Michigan av. area National Broadcasting company is contemplating erecting a near north side building for its AM [amplitude modulation] and FM [frequency modulation] and television activities. The proposed building would house theChicago offices of the parent company of NBC, the Radio Corporation of America.

Space Difficult to Find

A survey of the larger office buildings within a mile of Michigan Square disclosed only one that had space available. The London Guarantee said it was about 95 per cent occupied. Tribune Tower, Wrigley, 333, Palmolive, McGraw-Hill, 100 E. Ohio, Thompson, 840 and 936 Michigan, and others reported every square foot rented.

George Tobey, secretary of the Chicago Building Managers association, said that despite the record breaking tightness of the near north side rental market, much space was available in some loop buildings.

Modernize Mansion



Former Simon Mandel home, 4935 Drexel blvd., to be rebuilt into small apartments.

Mandel Home to Be Rebuilt Into 15 Flats

One of the south side's residential show places of the early 1900's, 4935 Drexel blvd., was bought yesterday thru Oscar Boenicke & Co. by Mrs. Beatrice Kerman, wife of F. K. Kerman, president of Lake Shore Plumbing and Heating company. The 20 room mansion was built by the late Simon Mandel, one of the founders of Mandel Brothers. It is of Bedford stone and occupies a lot 68 by 200 feet. It will be rebuilt into 15 apartments of one, two, and three rooms. Irving Karlin is architect. Completion is set for May 1.

Built in 1901 from plans by Frost & Granger at a cost of about $200,000, the house was famous for its substantial and advanced construction and its rare and expensive interior trim and decorations. Virtually all of the woodwork is solid mahogany, all window frames are solid cherry, and metal lath was used thruout the walls.

FARR PLANS NEW NEGRO HOUSING FOR SOUTH SIDE

Newton C. Farr, who has just completed construction of the $344,000 George Washington Carver Gardens, housing project for 56 Negro families in the block bounded by Michigan and Wabash avs., 37th st. and 37th pl., yesterday announced plans for 24 more four room units on the east side of Michigan, between 37th st. and 37th pl. to cost about $150,000.

Designed by Skidmore, Owings & Merrill, the project will contain 12 single family row houses and three apartment buildings of four suites each. The houses will sell for $6,250 and the flats will rent for $53.75. All will have two bedrooms. All will be of two stories and face an interior plaza.

Farr bought the site for the new group from the estate of Melville N. Rothschild. Kenny Brothers was broker for the seller. Philip Toomin was attorney.

Oak Park Business Block Purchased for $160,000

The one story business building at the northwest corner of Lake st. and Forest av., Oak Park, 165 by 150 feet, was sold yesterday by a syndicate to an undisclosed buyer for $160,000. Title was taken by the La Salle National bank, trustee. Arthur L. Hellyer, of Ward Farnsworth & Co., and Peter G. Maniates were brokers.

'Who's Who' Publisher Buys 4 Story Building

The A. N. Marquis company, publisher of "Who's Who," 919 N. Michigan av., bought the four story building at 210 E. Ohio st., from O. W. Huncke, thru Earle A. Shilton, sole broker, and will occupy it. Tenants have received notices to move.

SELLS DOWNTOWN BUILDING.

The four story building at 223-25 W. Washington st., 40 by 180 feet, was sold by Randolph Bohrer, trustee, to Joseph G. Rubenstein, for a price understood to have been $65,000. Bohrer, Blackman & Loman was attorney, and Dearborn Realty company, broker.

EVERY MINUTE OF 'TOSCA' MADE TO COUNT ON AIR

BY EDWARD BARRY.

The Chicago Theater of the Air last night took on the difficult assignment of telescoping the murder, torture, suicide, and other lurid details of Puccini's "Tosca" into a 50 minute production and doing it in such a way that the audience's sensibilities were not completely blunted by the time the opera's parade of disasters had ended.

This was accomplished by giving less time, proportionately, to the work's more melodramatic episodes than to such engaging scenes as the first act meeting of Tosca and her lover Mario. The audience in Medinah temple, and the vastly larger audience of W-G-N and the Mutual Broadcasting system, were allowed to hear a good portion of the opera's rapturous love music.

Done Like a Flash.

The excruciating scene in the second act, where the Roman police chief Scarpia allows Tosca to hear the screams of Mario as he is being tortured, was mercifully shortened. The murder of Scarpia, the first of the acts of violence which before the final curtain bring about the demise of every one of the principal characters, came and went like a flash.

The emotion packed music was presented by a singing cast headed by Marion Claire, Richard Tucker, and Bruce Foote. To the last named, as Scarpia, went the task of singing the solo part in the magnificent choral scene which closes the first act. The dignity and sonorousness with which he clothed the performance helped make this episode one of the triumphs of the evening.

Receives an Ovation.

Miss Claire was well liked in the part of Tosca, the beautiful opera singer of the story, and she received an ovation at the conclusion of her second act aria. So did Tucker for his handling of the eloquent aria assigned to Mario just before his execution.

Conductor Henry Weber and the W-G-N chorus and orchestra made up the remainder of the musical forces, with Ruth Slater emerging briefly to sing the plaintive shepherd's melody which heralds Mario's [and Tosca's] last dawn.

The Dramatic Cast.

The dramatic cast included Sondra Gair, William Everett, John Barclay, Wilms Herbert, and Arnold Robertson. The last, altho his part was minor, made a deep impression on the audience for the skill with which he enacted the role of the diabolical Scarpia's diabolical orderly. The production was the work of Jack La Frandre.

Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE TRIBUNE, spoke on armored tank design and performance. The text of his talk is on the editorial page.

U. S. O. HOLDING 'OPEN HOUSE' ON ITS BIRTHDAY

United Service Organizations clubs in Chicago and on the north shore are participating this week-end in a nation-wide "open house" marking the fourth anniversary of the founding of U. S. O. Clubs in more than 3,000 localities in the United States are joining in the observance, to which the public, whose contributions have made possible U. S. O. work in behalf of service men, has been invited.

Chicagoland clubs have scheduled breakfasts, afternoon entertainments, and buffet suppers for the week-end celebration in hospitality centers at 203 N. Wabash av., 131 and 1122 S. Wabash av., and in Highland Park, Highwood, North Chicago, and Waukegan.

The U. S. O. council of Chicago will have an anniversary luncheon tomorrow in Hotel Sherman. Lawrence Phillips of New York, executive vice president of U. S. O. camp shows, is scheduled to be the principal speaker.

BARTENDER'S DEATH SUICIDE.

A verdict of suicide while despondent over illness was returned yesterday by a coroner's jury at an inquest into the death of Stephen Wade, 40, of 824 W. 62d st., who was found shot thru the chest in the tavern at 7500 Halsted st. where he was a bartender.

U. S. GOOD WILL AGENT SHIELDS HONEST HAROLD

Mrs. Reinecke to See Aids of Tuohy.

Secretary Ickes' interior department press agent came to Chicago yesterday to put the damper on unfavorable publicity arising from Honest Harold's personal difficulties with Assessor Clark.

Mrs. Reinecke.

The government paid press agent, John E. Ryckman former Chicago newspaper man, was most concerned with what Mrs. Mabel Reinecke, member of the election board, might disclose at an appointed press conference of her part in obtaining a reduction of taxes on Ickes' property at 231-33 S. State st. Clark has charged misrepresentation and State's Atty. Tuohy has started to investigate whether a criminal offense was committed. One misstatement in the Ickes case, Clark alleges, put the rental income for the building at $2,000 a month instead of $61,000 a year.

Sets Time to See Press.

Mrs. Reinecke, just returned from a visit to her Montana ranch, where she said she sold "a few lambs," was in Chicago for the first time since Assessor Clark protested the reduction by the board of tax appeals of valuation on Ickes' State st. property. She said she would receive the press at noon.

Ryckman was present, but he said he only happened to be in Chicago on department affairs. He had not, he said, been directed by Ickes to take charge of the tax difficulty. However, after the interior department's good will agent had talked with Mrs. Reinecke she said she had decided not to hold the press conference.

"I should like time to read what the newspapers have printed and to go over my files," she said.

Meeting Planned Tomorrow.

Assistant State's Attorneys Jacob Shamberg and Gordon Nash also were waiting to interview her. To them she said she was "busy" and suggested an appointment tomorrow morning. They agreed on 11 o'clock.

The press was still waiting. Mrs. Reinecke decided then that she could have a statement ready and be prepared to answer questions at 1:30, giving her an hour for luncheon and, possibly, a talk with Ryckman, who still was present.

But before the appointed hour, an election board clerk arrived with word that Mrs. Reinecke had reconsidered and deemed it better to wait until she had seen Shamberg and Nash. However, on her return from lunch, she answered some questions of a general nature about the Ickes case.

Mrs. Reinecke said she had acted in behalf of Ickes' State st. building only because the George Reinecke Real Estate company, conducted by her late husband, had taken care of some of Ickes' realty business, especially the insurance. She said she had received no special fee for her part in the tax reduction.

LAST OF 3 SONS ON FARM FIGHTS 1-A DRAFT CARD

Members of draft board No. 13 in Flossmoor said yesterday that Donald Ziebell, 18, who with his father, Emil, operates a 110 acre farm near Matteson, has appealed the 1-A classification into which he was placed when he reached 18. The elder Ziebell had protested that Donald's induction would force him to abandon farming operations. Two of his three sons, Richard, Donald's twin, and Robert, 21, already are in the army.

Members said that the draft board is not making a clean sweep of farmers in the age bracket of 18 to 26 even tho most of them are obliged to take their physical examinations. Where registrants are urgently needed to maintain farm production, a board member said, they are given a 2-C [agricultural deferment] classification.

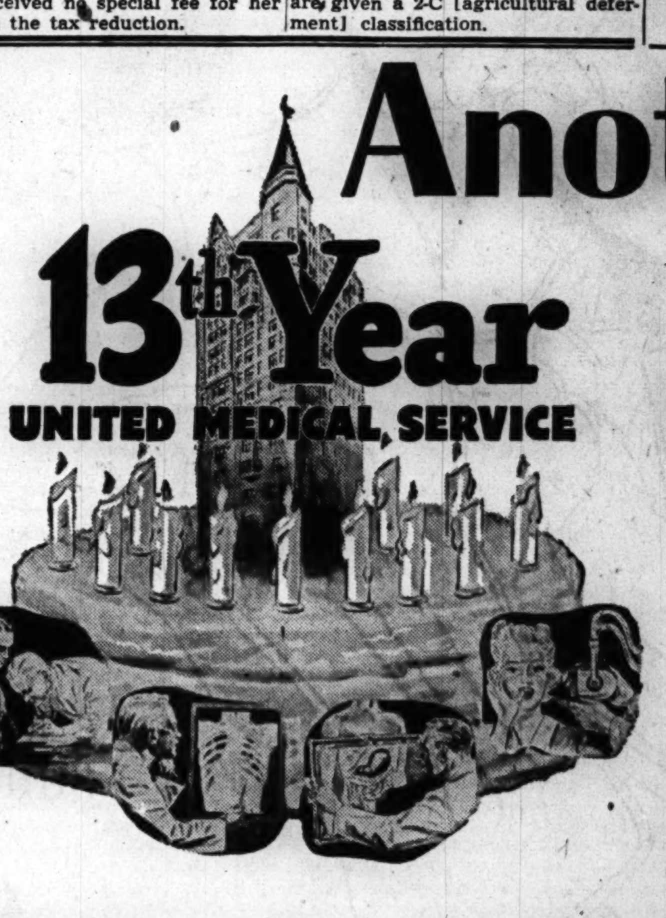
Another Year of United Medical Service



Pioneers for a Quarter Century in Low Cost Medical Care

The first responsible low cost medical effort in Chicago was conceived and opened to the public by Dr. Joseph G. Berkowitz twenty-five years ago. Although confined to a very highly specialized field of medicine it became the largest and most successful medical organization if its kind in the world. After twelve years, at the height of its success, Dr. Berkowitz resigned his post of Medical Director to organize United Medical Service in order to extend his idea into all fields of medicine. United Medical Service is now in its thirteenth year. Under his able direction it has moved forward steadily—year after year—notwithstanding the stress and strain of a major depression and the vicissitudes of a world war. The present conflict has created increasing needs for its services—partly because of the thousands of physicians now serving our armed forces—and partly because more people realize the importance of keeping well and how conveniently and inexpensively it can be done here. Complete medical facilities for the diagnosis and treatment of all ailments and conditions which endanger health are available. These include qualified physicians, X-rays, clinical laboratory and other scientific equipment for special examinations and medical procedures. The services are conveniently accessible by railroad trains, street cars, buses, elevated and subway trains and automobiles. The fees are moderate and the same to all. Information upon request.

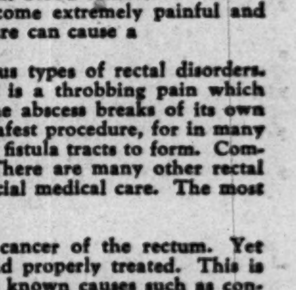
Stomach Trouble Can Be Dangerous

AN EARLY DIAGNOSIS PROVIDES THE GREATEST PROTECTION AGAINST SERIOUS DAMAGE TO HEALTH

The stomach is perhaps the most abused organ in the body. Nevertheless, in addition to directing attention to its own troubles it often produces the first symptoms of serious disorders in other parts of the body. Therefore, never neglect a stomach ailment . . . particularly if you are past 40 years of age. In persistent cases beginning cancer or heart disease is a dangerous possibility. An accurate diagnosis should be made before any medication is attempted. A special gastro-intestinal examination, including a physical check-up by trained physicians, blood pressure, urinalysis, a blood examination and serological tests, is $4.50

An X-ray examination of the gall bladder is $6.50

A laboratory examination of the gastric contents and stool is $5.50



A fluoroscopic examination of the stomach and small bowel following a barium meal, and an X-ray film of the abdomen when necessary, is $8.50

A fluoroscopic examination of the colon following a barium enema, including two 14"x17" X-ray films, one of barium filled colon and one after evacuation $8.50

Protective Examinations for Persons Past 40

A complete physical check-up by the physician, an X-ray of the chest showing condition of heart and lungs, an electrocardiogram of heart, blood pressure, a basal metabolism test, a full mouth X-ray of the teeth (14 films), a urological or gynecological examination and laboratory tests of the blood, urine and other secretions. These medical procedures will disclose hidden infection or beginning disease, and proper treatment can prevent serious damage. These combined services are only $16.50

Relief for Rectal Ailments

WITHOUT PAIN OR LOSS OF TIME FROM WORK

Rectal disorders are a major disease problem. If they are not corrected in the early stages by proper medical care serious trouble may follow. Piles or hemorrhoids are small blood tumors or varicose veins. As they increase in size, which they will do if neglected, they become extremely painful and very dangerous. A simple hemorrhoid or pile without proper medical care can cause a

Fistula or Rectal Abscess These are dangerous types of rectal disorders. The first symptom is a throbbing pain which grows more intense as the condition develops. This will continue until the abscess breaks of its own accord or is opened by a skilled physician. The latter is the best and safest procedure, for in many cases pus will burrow into surrounding tissue causing more abscesses and fistula tracts to form. Competent medical attention can prevent this constant menace to health. There are many other rectal ailments usually associated with hemorrhoids or piles which require special medical care. The most dangerous possibility, of course, is Cancer Several thousand persons die each year as a result of cancer of the rectum. Yet cancer is curable when diagnosed in the early stages and properly treated. This is true of all types of cancer. Many cancers can be prevented by removing known causes such as constant irritation, inflammation or abnormal growths. Rectal ailments are prominent in this group. All rectal conditions should be accurately diagnosed by a physician with special knowledge and experience in this field of medicine. Examinations made here include the services of a competent and experienced physician as well as urinalysis, blood and serological tests. The examining fee is $4.50

Women's Diseases Women who have such ailments as headache, nervousness, pains in the abdomen, irregular menstruation, frequent or painful urination, need medical attention. Such conditions rarely correct themselves, especially if you are past 40 years of age, when cancer invasion is possible. Many thousands of patients have been examined and successfully treated here during the past 12 years. A regional examination, including the use of the colposcope, Schiller's test, microscopic study of secretions and discharges, urinalysis and blood tests, is $4.50

Diseases of Older Men In older men such symptoms as fear, nervousness, frequent or painful urination, blood in the urine, discharges, or pain and discomfort of any kind call for a thorough physical check-up. To be fully protective, the clinical examination by the physician must include microscopic examination of all secretions and discharges, blood and serological tests; fee is $4.50

Skin Infections If you have a skin disorder it should be accurately diagnosed and competently treated. For skin lesions frequently indicate a serious disease condition. Competent skin therapy is available in our complete dermatological department. Diagnosis, including urinalysis, blood and serological tests, is $4.50

MAJOR LEAGUERS DECIDE TO OPERATE THIS YEAR

OWNERS VOTE TO ACCEPT NEW 25-YEAR PACT

Delay Election of Commissioner.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, N. Y., Feb. 3.—The major leagues wound up a two day special gathering tonight after announcing they would continue with their plans for the 1945 season and admitting that they are anxious to name a successor to the late Commissioner K. M. Landis as speedily as possible.

Their statement on the coming season was accepted as an indication they had received intimations from Washington that the man power bosses would endeavor to keep the game going as a morale booster.

And along with other things the 16 owners, in a joint session that followed separate meetings of the two leagues, adopted the new agreement under which their administrative affairs will be conducted for the next 25 years.

Frick, Harridge to Act.

To provide for the handling of whatever problems might arise in Washington, Presidents Will Harridge of the American and Ford Frick of the National were named by the two leagues to represent them "in discussing with the officials of government and the armed services all matters pertaining to the operational problems of baseball during the war emergency." This arrangement automatically would dissolve with the election of a commissioner, which will be delayed until such time as the right man comes along.

The threat to force thru an election today failed to materialize. Unanimous agreement was necessary to bring the subject before the joint meeting, but the few proponents learned in advance they had no chance. Those in favor of rushing a successor into office mainly were supporters of Frick and after the chill put on them today their campaign probably will be abandoned.

Earlier in the afternoon the National league came up with a statement that was construed as a slap on the wrist for those who were critical of President Frick's recent jaunt to Washington for information on the prospects for staging the coming races. The National league owners said they endorsed his enterprise.

New Pact Little Changed.

The new agreement differs only slightly from the pact signed when Landis took office in January, 1921, and junked following his death late last November.

Most important alteration was in the determination of what shall constitute a majority vote. The 10 man committee that furnished the proposals for the new pact set 12 out of 16 votes as necessary to the election of a commissioner but some clubs fought to have the margin retained at a bare majority. The Frick-for-commissioner campaigners were in this squabble, feeling they could muster nine votes for their man now or later. They were quieted down and the committee's recommendation of 12 votes for election was accepted.

The "conduct detrimental to baseball" clause which many thought gave Landis too much unbridled authority, was retained and an amendment was included to give the boss man veto powers.

Leagues Have More Power.

If the next commissioner doesn't favor a rule, the two leagues as units may vote he can notify the league presidents of his objections and force it back for reconsideration at a joint meeting. However, if the two leagues again vote for its adoption, it will stand, the commissioner's wishes notwithstanding.

The agreement, which is to remain in force until Jan. 1, 1970, provides for a commissioner's annual salary of $50,000. This was Landis' salary when he took office, except that he deducted $7,500 per year until he resigned from the federal

Big Ten Opens All Out War on Gambling

Western conference athletic directors, showing their concern over large scale gambling operations in intercollegiate basketball, yesterday took vigorous measures to combat the evil. Action was taken at their special meeting in the Sherman hotel.

Kenneth L. [Tug] Wilson, of Northwestern, speaking for the athletic directors, later said no statement would be made on the selection of an athletic commissioner to succeed the late Maj. John L. Griffith as the directors were involved in a discussion of rules.

Ruling Affects Northwestern.

Directors declared conference basketball teams must play their games on college campuses, unless given special permission; asked newspapers and radio stations to avoid giving inside information in advance stories on games which might be used to advantage by gambling elements, and again emphasized their rule prohibiting members from playing basketball games under private promotion.

"If Northwestern wishes to play in the Chicago Stadium or the Evanston Township High school gymnasium next season," Wilson continued, "it will have to get permission to do so from the conference directors. The same rule will apply, of course, to the University of Wisconsin, which has been playing annual games with Marquette in the Milwaukee Auditorium."

Bars Trips East.

The edict will not affect the commitments Northwestern has made for games remaining on its current schedule which are carded for the Stadium or the Evanston gym.

Obviously this rule will prevent any conference quintet from engaging in basketball games in Madison Square Garden in New York, Philadelphia, Buffalo, or Boston, where college teams play under private promotion.

Effect of the conference ruling also brought speculation on whether its teams could compete in tournaments sponsored by the National Collegiate Athletic association. These tournaments are not held on campuses and neither are they conducted by a university. At least three conference schools—Indiana, Wisconsin, and Ohio State—have participated in these meets in past years.

Here Is the Statement.

The statement of the directors combatting gambling follows:

"Recognizing the presence of, or semblance of gambling, on intercollegiate basketball games during the 1945 season, the athletic directors of the Western conference hereby resolve that:

"1. All basketball games involving conference teams must be played upon college campuses unless special permission by the conference directors is granted to a member institution to play elsewhere.

"2. Basketball ratings and information sheets referring to colleges should be abolished. The conference respectfully requests all newspapers and radio stations to refrain from stating the possible outcomes, probable point advantages, or other information which would be helpful to gambling.

"3. Athletic departments will continue rigidly the practice not to give out programs or statistical information which will contribute to gambling.

"Several years ago the directors took under consideration the regulation prohibiting conference basketball teams from playing games under private promotion. The directors today reaffirmed this rule and state that the regulations will be enforced."

MICHIGAN STATE ACTS

East Lansing, Mich., Feb. 3 [Special].—In an effort to combat inroads of professional gambling in the collegiate sports world, Michigan State college today announced it would no longer participate in athletic contests except on its own campus or at the home field, arena, or stadium commonly used by opponents for home contests.

Michigan State's decision was made by President John Hanna following reports of professional gambling's connection with Brooklyn college. In recent years the Spartans have participated in contests in various cities as part of double header basketball cards. This year

NOTRE DAME, DE PAUL WIN IN STADIUM

N. U. Loses, 56 to 37; Purdue, 50-34.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

De Paul's basketball stars, after a faltering start last night, whipped Purdue, 50 to 34, in the first game of the Stadium double header and thus, by virtue of victory Friday night over Notre Dame, became the only quintet in Chicago's first round robin tournament with a perfect record. In the second game last evening, the Irish won from Northwestern, 56 to 37.

The final program of the round robin was watched by 12,896 for a total attendance in excess of 25,000. By their two victories and a two game victory margin of 20 points, De Paul received the trophy donated by the Chicago Basketball Writers' association.

Unable to Halt Mikan.

De Paul produced its best team exhibition of the campaign against the Boilermakers who, after a brilliant start in which three consecutive field goals were scored, elected to play cautiously and with less Hoosier dash than commonly exhibited. The reasoning behind the type of play was correct in that it reduced the number of scoring chances for big George Mikan under the backboard. But Purdue, like all other of De Paul's opponents—the Demons now have won 16 games and lost one—were unable to keep Mikan below double digits.

John Hinga, Purdue guard, made a good start but he committed three personals and was withdrawn for John Elliott, who fouled Mikan once. George collected four of these penalty shots in the first half and also had two field goals. He also fouled four times himself and many believed he would be eliminated early in the second period by a fifth.

Finishes with 20 Points.

Mikan did not acquire the limit, however, until the last minute of the game and the threat of expulsion apparently aided his offensive work since he finished with 20 points, getting five field goals in the last half.

Whitey Kachan again played excellent basketball and his five field goals, all set shots or uncovered from the corner, were matched by Jack Allen, who had numerous opportunities because Purdue double-timed on Mikan under the backboard.

Altho Purdue led 6 to 0, De Paul went into a tie at 7 points and then built up a 15 to 9 lead before Purdue cut this to five points. Gene Stump, Allen and Kachan finished the half with goals for De Paul's 26 to 15 tabulation.

Irish Start Second Team.

Paul Hoffman, Purdue rugged center and ball-handler, spearheaded the Boilermakers' early surge in the second half. But after a 28 to 23 score, Kachan and Mikan raced to 37 to 23. With this advantage, De Paul worked to a commanding 48 to 27 lead and coasted easily to victory.

Notre Dame started its second team against Northwestern and altho the Wildcats opened with two free throws by Max Morris and then built up a 6 to 3 advantage, the Irish substitutes at one time held a 17 to 10 lead and still were ahead 20 to 19 when four of the regulars came into the game with four and a half minutes of the period remaining.

Paul Gordon was the sharpshooter for the Irish second team with five field goals. George Benigni, Bill O'Connor, Jim Karthol, and Paul Lammers were the other Irish starters. Gordon remained in the game when Jack Dee, George Ratterman, Vince Boryla, and Billy Hassett reported.

Wild Cats Lead at Half Time.

As frequently happens, the regulars were slow getting started and the Wildcats tied on Morris' free throw at 20 and John Norton put Northwestern ahead. Gordon's sixth goal tied but Morris and Ben Schadler hit for the Wildcats. Ratterman followed for a goal as the half ended with Northwestern leading, 26 to 24.

Hassett tied the score at the beginning of the second half and Dee put Notre Dame ahead but Northwestern then tied at 29 points. From here, Notre Dame steadily increased its lead with the Irish defense forcing the Wildcats to shoot from far out. Lineups:

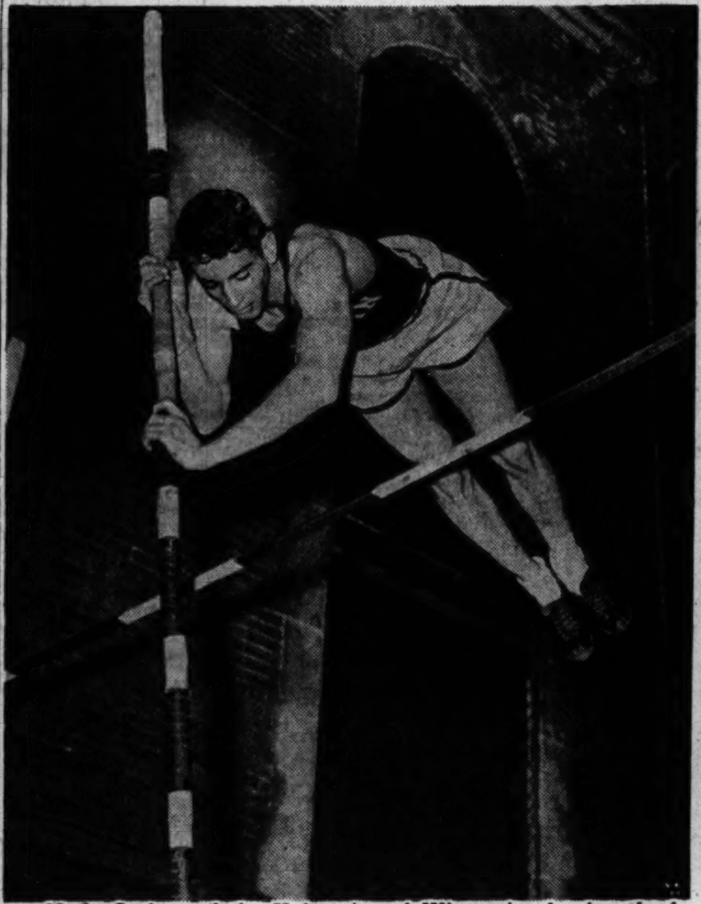
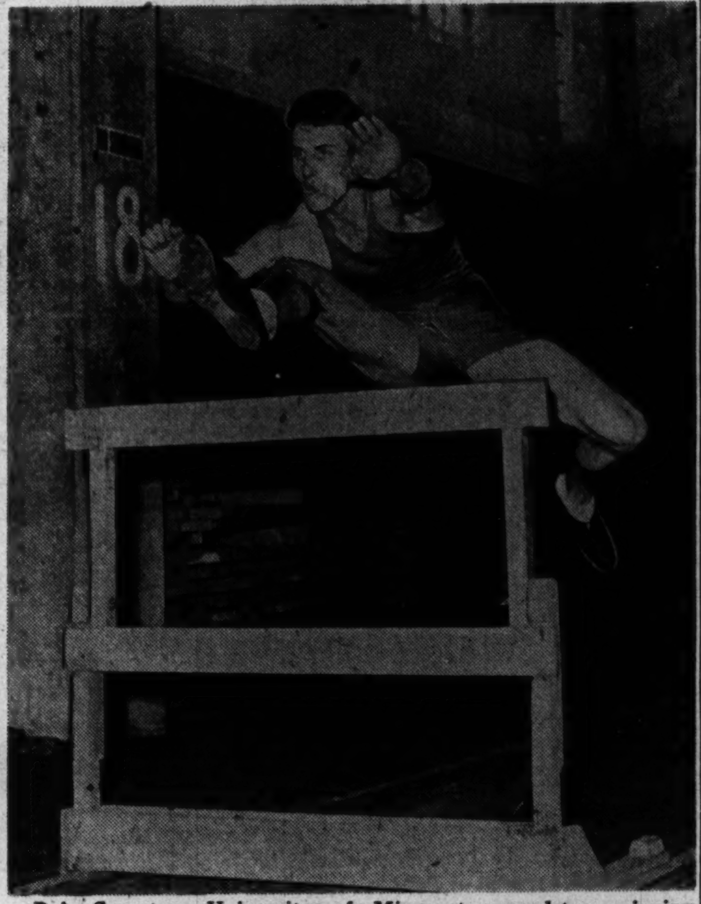
BIG 10 TRACK MEN OPEN INDOOR SEASON



Norm Sackett of the University of Wisconsin clearing the bar at 12 feet to win the pole vault event in yesterday's pentagonal track meet in the University of Chicago fieldhouse to mark the opening of the Western conference track season.



Bob Cranston, University of Minnesota speedster, winning the 70 yard hurdles over competitors from Northwestern, Purdue, Wisconsin, and Chicago. Cranston traveled the course in the commendable time of :09.3 to aid the Gopher cause.

GOPHER TRACK TEAM CAPTURES FIVE-WAY MEET

An underrated University of Minnesota track team delivered a severe jolt to some 250 fans in the University of Chicago's fieldhouse yesterday afternoon, beating the favorite Wisconsin entry by nine points to win the first Big Ten indoor meet of the season.

Minnesota had 48½ points and Wisconsin 39½. Purdue was third with 29½, and Northwestern brought up the rear with 14½.

The University of Chicago also entered men in most of the events, but it had been decided beforehand that its score would not be counted. No one suffered from this decision, as the Maroons failed to score a point.

Gophers Get Three Firsts.

Wisconsin's Bob Johann and Warren Devoe were first and second, respectively, in the mile run, but Minnesota took three firsts—in the shot-put, 70 yard high hurdles, and the 60 yard dash, and went into a 19½-19 lead.

The Gophers were ahead by one point as the last three events of the day got under way, and they took first in two of them. Jack Anderson, anchor man on the Minnesota mile relay team, turned in a superb finish chase and caught Purdue's Cal Davis just before the tape. Then Armin Baumann sewed things up for the Gophers by taking first in the high jump with a leap of 6 feet 3½ inches.

Altepeter Wins Quarter.

Northwestern's one notable contribution to the scoring columns was Henry Altepeter's first in the quarter mile run. Altepeter who placed third in the quarter mile in the 1944 Big Nine finals, won the event yesterday in 0:50.4.

The Badgers, replete with experienced talent and boasting Big Ten veterans in nine of the 12 events, could not equal Minnesota's drive.

27 Cities Speed Up Golden Gloves Action; Finals Feb. 12

BY MAURICE SHEVLIN.

Chicago is assured of its traditionally strong representation in the nation's greatest amateur boxing show, THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE's 18th annual Tournament of Champions in the Stadium Feb. 26, 27, 28, and the finals March 9.

That fact was established to the satisfaction of thousands of veteran Golden Gloves followers who watched five nights of intensive action in the south and north side sectional tournaments, for from those two shows emerged some of the best fighters ever to win their way into the city championship matches.

Now, without a break in training after one of the busiest weeks in their campaign, eight open and eight novice division champions will prepare for city championship bouts in Marigold Gardens a week from tomorrow.

Action to Reach New Peak.

The south side titleholders who fought their way to the top last Monday and Tuesday in St. Sabina gymnasium and the north section kings who won their honors during three evenings of swift competition in Loyola university gymnasium Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday, promise battles the like of which never have been seen in city boxing warfare.

As Chicago prepares to crown its champions, 27 other cities in the Golden Gloves territory advance their programs, some with their finals, others with earlier round eliminations. During the week three sponsoring newspapers will name their representatives for the Tournament of Champions. They are the Cleveland [O.] Plain Dealer, The Omaha [Neb.] World-Herald, and the Milwaukee [Wis.] Journal.

Soldiers Fight in Omaha.

From Omaha comes word that its 12th annual tournament will be highlighted by the appearance of boxers from five army air fields in Nebraska. In fact, service men will make up almost half of the 78 entries chosen for the two night show Wednesday and Thursday.

Eight rugged heavyweights promise to provide the most thunder in the Omaha meet. Favorites include Pvt. Gene Pallati, Chicago born Italian who came to the Tournament of Champions two years ago with the Fort Worth [Tex.] team, and William R. Zuke, former heavyweight champion at the University of Minnesota.

Another Omaha entrant who has been a competitor in Chicago's big tournament is Sgt. Truman Swingle, Harvard A. A. F. welterweight who was the champion from Quincy, Ill., a couple of years ago. The only defending Omaha champion is lightweight Gene Brown, and he may have too much to beat in Pvt. James Simms, Harvard A. A. F. puncher who was the champion of Kessler field, Miss., last summer.

Oklahoma City, whose Indian battlers have supplied the Tournament of Champions with some of its most colorful performers, expects to produce one of the strongest title bids in several years.

The boys who will carry the Daily Oklahoman's banner into Chicago will be picked in a five day state

Nelson Takes Lead in Texas Golf Tourney

Corpus Christi, Tex., Feb. 3 (AP).—Byron Nelson shot birdies with monotonous regularity today to score a seven under par 63 that gave him the lead at the halfway mark of the Corpus Christi $5,000 open. He shot a record bettering 129 for 36 holes.

Going ahead of Craig Wood, the first round leader, by three strokes, Nelson clipped one stroke from the mark made by Wood in 1940. It will not be considered a record, however, said P. G. A. Tournament Manager Fred Corcoran, because the local course is less than 6,000 yards and because special teeing-up rules are being used.

Low for Tourney Play.

Nelson went out in 33 and came in with 30. He barely missed a 10 foot putt on No. 18 that would have given him a 62 and a tie for the best score ever turned in on the course. The course record, however, was not made in competition so Nelson's is the all-time low for such play.

Behind Wood in third place was Fred Haas, New Orleans amateur, who shot a 68 to go with his 65 yesterday for a total of 133.

Revolta, McSpaden Tied.

Tied at 134 were Johnny Revolta of Evanston, Ill., and Harold McSpaden of Sanford, Me., while next in line was Ky Laffoon of Chicago with 135.

Shooting 136 were Sammy Byrd of Detroit and Sam Schneider of Corpus Christi, while Jimmy Demaret of Corpus Christi Naval Air station, George McAllister of Dayton, O., Leonard Dodson of San Francisco, and Amateur Ed Furgol of Detroit each posted 137.

Charles Sailor Named President of Chicago A.A.

Charles M. Sailor has been elected president of the Chicago Athletic association. Other officers named at the annual election are Donald F. Bowey, vice president; Miles C. Gunderson, secretary, and John S. Gleason, treasurer. Directors elected for three year terms are David L. Harrington, Lloyd Maxwell, and Daniel McGuire.

BUCKEYES KEEP PACE; DEFEAT BADGERS, 40-36

Minnesota Whips Indiana, 56-48.

Iowa City, Ia., Feb. 4 [Special].—Iowa's Hawkeyes took a lead in the opening seconds and built it into a 50 to 37 basketball triumph over Michigan's Wolverines tonight to retain their tie with Ohio State for the Big Nine conference lead. Approximately 13,000 partisan fans saw the triumph and several hundred more were turned away.

Altho Clayton Wilkinson, Iowa's leading scorer, was restricted to two baskets and three free throws by John Mullaney, the brothers from Utah decided to keep the honors in the family, and Herb, the younger of the transfers, hit seven baskets and a pair of free tosses for 16 points.

Hawkeyes Lead at Half.

Herb gained some assistance from the hook shots of Ned Postels as the Hawkeyes piled up their 26 to 15 half time lead, but the latter fouled out two minutes after the second period started. It was Postels' timely sniping in the early phases which allowed Iowa to roll up the margin it needed to force Michigan out of its deliberate style of game.

Michigan never got closer than five points to Iowa, which used more set offense and less running than at any other time here this season. The nearest the Wolverines came in the final half was nine points at 32 to 23.

This was Iowa's 11th victory in 13 games and the fifth conference triumph in six contests. Lineup:

OHIO STATE WINS FIFTH

Columbus, O., Feb. 3 [Special].—Don Grate scored 14 points tonight in leading Ohio State's basketball team to a 40 to 36 triumph over Wisconsin. It was the fifth victory against one defeat in the conference and enabled the Buckeyes to remain as co-leaders with Iowa. Ohio State led at the half, 19 to 17.

With five minutes left, the Badgers, led by Dan Smith and Ray Patterson, scored eight points in quick succession to climb within three points of a tie. Then, with a minute to play, Smith shot a goal from the foul line to make the score 38 to 36. Ohio's captain, Paul Huston, then hit for a long one to make the final score 40 to 36.

HERMSEN LEADS GOPHERS

Bloomington, Ind., Feb. 3 [Special].—Minnesota built up a 24 to 15 half time lead tonight, and then, largely thru the underbasket skill of Center Kleggie Hermsen, scored a 56 to 48 victory over Indiana. It was the Gophers' second Big Nine victory in seven starts, and Indiana's fourth defeat in six games.

The Hoosiers led midway in the first quarter, by a 12 to 9 margin, but the Gophers soon went into the lead, never to be headed.

Indiana felt the loss of its high scoring forward, Gene Faris, who entered military service yesterday. Hermsen, 6 foot, 7 inch center, controled the backboards and scored eight baskets and five free throws.

PURDUE CAN'T STUMP DE PAUL

Charles Haag, Purdue guard, and Eugene Stump, De Paul forward, competing for possession of the ball under the Demons' basket in last night's game in the Stadium. Bob Lewis (No. 24) and John Hinga (No. 7), both of Purdue, are waiting the outcome of the tussle. De Paul won the game, 50 to 34.

Hawks, Leafs Meet Tonight for 7th Time

BY EDWARD BURNS.

The Chicago Blackhawks and the Toronto Maple Leafs, pretty well acquainted with each other after six National Hockey league meetings this season, will renew old friendships when they meet on Chicago Stadium ice tonight.

This is to be the Leafs' fourth and "semi-final" appearance in the Stadium. Chicago fans will bid the Toronto sextet good-by a week from tonight, when it will bow out of Chicago for the season.

The records indicate that should the Blackhawks add to their unimpressive victory total tonight it will be something of an upset. The Leafs were triumphant in five of six previous meetings, 11 to 5 and 4 to 3, in Chicago, and 5 to 4, 4 to 0, and 8 to 4 in Toronto. The Hawks' lone victory over their foemen from the dominion was achieved, 4 to 0, in the Hawks' bailiwick.

March May Be in Action.

But the Chicago skaters' recent feats of beating the Boston Bruins and tying the Montreal Canadiens on the road indicate that they may by-pass the records and advance on another victory.

The front line made up of Butch McDonald, Cully Dahlstrom, and Pete Horeck paced the Chicago scoring units on the eastern jaunt and, according to Manager Paul Thompson, is the most improved attacking trio on the club. The goal guarding of Mike Karakas and the defensive play of Joe Cooper and Red Mitchell also came in for Thompson praise.

There is a possibility that Mush March, forward who has not played since sustaining an injury in Toronto a week ago Saturday, will return to the Chicago lineup.

HAWKS SELL HIGHTON.

St. Louis, Mo., Feb. 3 (AP).—The St. Louis Flyers of the American Hockey league today announced the purchase of Hector [Hec] Highton, 21 year old goaltender, from the Chicago Blackhawks. Highton, whose home is Medicine Hat, Alberta, Canada, has been playing with the Flyers on option from Chicago.

BOILERMAKER MATMEN WHIP WILDCATS, 15-9

STEEL INDUSTRY NEEDS SPORTS, EXECUTIVES SAY

BY WILLIAM BAYLISS.

Elimination of professional baseball, football, and other major spectator sports from the American scene as a means of turning more man power into war industry, instead of being a help, would result in a tremendously increased absenteeism problem, in the opinion of Chicagoland steel executives.

That was the unanimous verdict of a group of leaders in this vital war time industry, meeting yesterday in the Field building to discuss the stand which should be taken on sports as a vital morale building force. The committee, organized two weeks ago, authorized its chairman, Howard M. Reineman, general manager of Industrial Metal Fabricators, Inc., to address a letter to War Mobilization Director Byrnes, asking him to set a date when a smaller committee of its members could meet with him in Washington to discuss the matter.

Represent 100,000 Men.

Named on the committee to confer with Byrnes, when and if he grants it an audience, were Thomas J. Downs, treasurer of Crown Steel Sales, Inc.; John F. Dalton of the industrial relations department of General Motors' electro-motive division, and Howard Reineman.

"Men in steel are a rough, tough outfit," said Reineman after the meeting, "and they want their entertainment to be of the vigorous, highly competitive sort. Take a look at a bunch of steel workers and you'll see on their rugged faces and robust bodies the marks of rough physical contact sports.

Too Busy for Participation.

"In these days, when war time demands force some of them to put in long hours of overtime work on rush jobs for the army or navy, they may not feel like playing baseball nor actively participating in any other sport themselves, but they will go to see the Cubs or White Sox, Bears, Cardinals or Blackhawks [depending on the season] play if they have the opportunity. Take away that opportunity and where will these workers go? To a movie, lecture or art exhibit? Not on your life. They'll go to the corner saloon for relaxation.

Not only was management represented at the session but Chairman Reineman called in Frank Barrish, one of his plant superintendents and secretary of the labor-management committee of Industrial Metal Fabricators, to give his ideas on the matter. He, too, stressed the big place which sports fill in the lives of the vast majority of the workers.

Worker Reads Sports First.

"If you don't think sports are important, watch the average worker when he picks up his newspaper," said a member of the committee. "In at least nine cases out of 10, he'll turn to the sports pages first of all. Eliminate sports and you'll have a dull un-American life, just as by eliminating the sports pages you'd have a dull newspaper. That is the attitude of workers in others industries, as well as steel, I believe."

Members of the committee attending yesterday's meeting, in addition to Howard Reineman, Downs, and Dalton, were David P. Andrews of National Steel Fabricators, Benton J. Willner of Inland Steel, Harry F. Alpin of Briggs-Turivas, Joseph Walsh of Midland Steel Equipment, Phillip C. Manker of M. & R. Manufacturing Co., Russell Reineman of Industrial Metal Fabricators, and Daniel S. Powell of Dube Boiler Works.

CHICAGO'S TITLE HOPE

Joan Yocum, 17, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul H. Yocum, 215 E. Chestnut st., is Chicago's leading title hope in the midwestern figure skating championship meet to be held next Friday and Saturday in the Chicago Arena, and the national title competition to be held in Madison Square Garden, New York, early next month. Joan, an Immaculata High school senior and a representative of the Chicago Figure Skating club, won the ladies' midwestern junior championship in 1943 and was runner-up for the senior title last year. She aspires to the senior title in the midwest meet and the junior crown in the national competition.

The Home Front

BY WILLIAM BAYLISS.

ASSURED of an entry list just four times as large as the number competing in the first tournament in 1940, officials of the Radio Industries Bowling association are hustling around these days getting ready for the sixth R. I. B. A. meet which will open Saturday, Feb. 17, in Congress Arcade, 2047 Milwaukee av. The entries closed 10 days ago, with 38 concerns entering 176 teams in the five men events, and correspondingly high numbers in doubles and singles.

Altho the entries come from five states, the majority of the contestants naturally will be Chicagoans. M. E. Malone, R. I. B. A. secretary, reports. Zenith Radio corporation sets the pace, with 48 five-man teams, 96 doubles, and 144 singles entries. Zenith quite apparently is out to retain the team title its Auditors team won last season, if enthusiastic support of the event can accomplish that end. Oak Manufacturing company, with 26 teams, is runner-up in the number of entries, and American Phenolic is third, with nine teams.

Ten teams are entered from six plants in four states outside Illinois. They'll come from Madison and Milwaukee, Wis.; Charlotte and Grand Rapids, Mich.; Piqua, O., and Cedar Rapids, Ia. The Allen-Bradley company of Milwaukee will lead the outsiders with three teams, one of which will include Ed Nowicki, who was a member of the winning doubles team at the last American Bowling congress in Columbus, O., in 1942.

Association of Commerce Bowling Leaders to Meet.

One of the outstanding matches of the season in the Chicago Association of Commerce Industrial bowling league is booked for Thursday night, when the Pyott Foundry and Machine company team, present leader, meets Thompson Elevator and Electric, one of three squads tied for second place, one game from the top. Howard Thompson of the Thompson E. and E. team, turned in a high series of 670 last week.

The Lindahl Foundries basketball team ran its perfect season record up to 17 straight victories by winning three games last week. These included a Clearing Industrial District league victory over Johnson & Johnson and two outside triumphs over the Hot Shots and Jewish Peoples institute. In other Clearing District league games last week United Air Lines beat Mechanical Handling and Great Lakes Spring corporation won from A. B. Wrisley & Co.

Harrison Park Has Four Basketball Leagues.

Edmund Zegan, physical instructor at Harrison park, 18th and Wood sts., is busy these days keeping track of his four basketball leagues, which include players from grammar school age to veterans who should know better but still get a kick out of the game. The leagues are divided into grammar school, junior community, intermediate community and senior community divisions. In addition to these local leagues, Harrison park is represented in the Chicago park district varsity competition.

Lt. Ralph Vaughn, one of the nation's top ranking college basketball stars at Southern California in 1940 and later a member of the Chicago Bruins, now is secretary of the Naval Basketball Officials' association. He also is the leading scorer for the Corpus Christi Naval Air Station Comets. Before joining the navy Ralph was employed in the industrial engineering department at the East Chicago plant of Inland Steel.

Bowling Upsets Continue in Division St. Y League.

The series of upsets which had begun the week before continued Tuesday night in the Division St. Y. M. C. A. Industrial Bowling league, the last place Guyer Metal Products boys providing the feature by taking three straight from Chicago Rawhide. This rawhiding dropped the losers from second to sixth place in the standings. The Ekco Products team also went on the warpath, taking three from the first place Thordarson Flashtrons. Churchill Cabinet moved up to second with a clean sweep of its series wwith Elcor, Inc. Les Lesser of Hammond Instrument continues to top the individual standings with an average of 181.

Over in the basketball section at Division st. the Thordarson Electrics have won the association's industrial basketball league second half championship but the first half title still is undecided. That may sound as tho they do things backward in this league, but the explanation is simple. The Thordarsons and Chicago Silents tied for the top place in the first half of the campaign and will meet Wednesday at 7 p. m. in a play-off game for the first round title.

Bell & Howell Employes Present Second Follies.

Employes of Bell & Howell, including executives, white collar workers, and folks from the production division, will unite Thursday, Friday, and Saturday in presenting the second B. & H. Follies, "Hooray, America," in Scott hall, Evanston.

The cast and stage crew of the show is made up of workers in the five Chicago ylants of B. & H. who put in their working hours producing optical devices and motion picture equipment to fill army and navy contracts.

The Illinois Tool Works' bowlers already have marked down their season as a success, even tho it is not yet completed. The reason is that the I. T. W. pin scatterers defeated the Northern Trust Co. in their annual battle for the Walter Byron Smith trophy. The match was started Saturday, Jan. 27, and was completed yesterday afternoon.

DIXIE HUNTER MISSES AT COST OF SHIRTTAIL

BY BOB BECKER.

Altho the deer seasons in both the northern and southern states are closed, these mid-winter months aren't easy ones for the animals that live in the snow country of Michigan because browse is scarce in the cedar swamps where the deer "yard up" for the winter.

But this shortage of winter food is almost matched by a scarcity of shirt-tails among hunters in the south at this time of the year, due to a hunting custom that [perhaps fortunately] hasn't taken hold very strong in our northern states. In Mississippi, Alabama and other southern states the deer hunter who misses his shot pays a penalty by having his shirttail cut off as soon as he gets back to camp. It's amputated by his hunting partners and then tacked on the wall of the hunting lodge.

Keeps Clothing Intact.

We first learned about this distinctly southern hunting custom years ago when we went on our first Mississippi turkey hunt. We were warned that the deer hunting regulations also prevailed among turkey hunters. Fortunately we got our gobblers, so we returned north with our clothing intact. But woe unto the deer hunter who gets a shot and misses. Down below the Mason-Dixon line the hunters use shotguns and hounds to get their deer. But more deer are missed than hit, so despite the wool and cotton shortage the boys who failed to hit their deer lost their shirttails in accordance with the old custom.

Hunters Active in Dakotas.

Altho sportsmen in the central states have said good-by to bird hunting until next fall the boys in the northwest still can take pheasants, if they have any ammunition. Aberdeen, S. D., reminded us of this continued open season in South Dakota a few days ago by pointing out that the ringnecks may be shot thru Feb. 28.

As announced in the TRIBUNE sports section several days ago, North Dakota surprised midwest hunters by opening a second season on pheasants last month. It will run thru Feb. 28 in certain counties only in the western part of the state.

bench. During the depression, Landis voluntarily reduced his pay, but subsequently it was boosted to $65,000.

Continue Full Coöperation.

"Major league baseball will continue its policy of full coöperation with the country's all-out war effort," the magnates declared in their formal statement about proceeding with plans for the impending season.

"Like every one else, our man power is available whenever and wherever needed most."

"We welcome the recent directives of the war department relative to the reëxamination of 4-F players and any legislation that will assure the public and the players that the teams on the field are not needed more elsewhere."

"Whatever the government does is right and it is our job to continue so long as the government wants us to do so. We are, therefore, going ahead with our plans for the opening of the regular championship season."

Think Players Will Be Available.

One unofficial voice claimed to know that Washington's plan for the continuation of baseball was not to overlook any player merely because he happened to be a star, but would assure the majors of a needed supply of the mill-run class of players they have been employing freely for the last two seasons. However, it remains possible that a number of men now on big league rosters will remain in defense jobs for the duration.

The club owners agreed to prohibit announcing probable pitchers for the next day's game, a custom which has become habitual and supposedly beneficial to the gambling gentry. Knowledge of the probable pitcher is counted key information for the betting commissioners who reportedly use it to formulate the quoted odds.

RAFFERTY WINS MILLROSE MILE; TIMES ARE SLOW

Illinois' Kelley Is Fifth to Beetham in 880.

New York, Feb. 3 (AP).—Spills and mediocre times prevailed at the 38th annual Millrose games tonight altho Jim Rafferty, nine years out of Fordham, kept his feet to win the famed Wannamaker mile in 4:13.1.

Three times races had to be recalled by Starter Jack Lavelle when the athletes skidded from the planks and crashed to the floor. But the pine oval was no mystery to such veterans as Rafferty, Lt. [j. g.] Charles Beetham, Corp. Barney Ewell, and James Herbert.

Before Rafferty captured his first major indoor mile crown by almost 20 yards from Ensign Tommy Quinn, Beetham opened his 14th consecutive year of competition by swinging thru the half mile in 1:57.2, finishing almost 10 yards in front of Joe Hall, Columbia ineligible who triumphed a year ago.

Ewell Beats Schoolboy.

Ewell broke the Millrose tape for the third time in the 60 yard dash but was pushed every step of the way by William N. Mathis, Washington, D. C., high school boy. Mathis provided the first of the evening's three spectacular spills and Ewell went the whole way before he could apply his brakes. The former Penn starter had steam enough left, however, to win the re-run in :06.3.

Ed Dugger, former Tufts hurdler, took the 60 yard event in :07.7, with Donn Kinzie of the royal Canadian air force second.

James B. Herbert of the New York City Grand Street Boys' association won his fifth Mel Sheppard 600 title since 1937 by elbowing his way to the tape in 1:15, two yards ahead of Elmore T. Harris of the Shore A. C.

Field Recalled Once.

The start of the race was delayed when Harris, making his debut on the boards, tumbled on the first turn and the race was recalled. Herbert took the lead at the head of the final curve on the 11 lap track and defended it all the way.

Dick Forrestal of Michigan came up fast to take third with Cadet George Berger of West Point dropping out with a lap to go.

Corp. Milt Padway, who did his collegiate leaping for Wisconsin, annexed the pole vault with a 13 foot 6 inch try.

Sailors Beat DePauw; Face Badgers Today

After piling up a 33 to 13 half time score, Great Lakes coasted to a 53 to 37 victory over DePauw university last night at the naval training center. It was the fourth straight decision for the Sailors since they opened their war time schedule with the Indiana school in 1942.

Chief Forrest Anderson's starters accumulated a 27 to 6 margin in the first 12 minutes of play and reserves finished the game. The Sailors' added height was the key to the one sided decision.

Ten Great Lakes players divided the scoring with Jim Ove and Luke Majorki leading with 11 and nine points, respectively. Stanley London of the visitors outscored each with six field goals. The victory was the Sailors' 23d in 27 games this season. Wisconsin will play at the center this afternoon. The lineups:

KEARNS SEEKS TO MATCH LANE AND LEE SAVOLD

BY FRANK MASTRO.

Negotiations have been opened for a 10 round bout between Larry Lane, Trenton, N. J., heavyweight, and Lee Savold of St. Paul in the Coliseum Feb. 23, Matchmaker Jack Kearns announced yesterday. He said Lane, who was forced to cancel a scheduled contest against Lee on Nov. 8 because of a leg injury already has accepted terms. Savold's status is undetermined following rumors of his retirement from the ring, an item which Kearns denies.

Kearns said his show in the Coliseum on Friday lost $1,600, raising to $3,700, the total dropped on two cards offered in the Wabash av. arena this year. A crowd of 1,641 contributed a gross gate of $4,122.30 to see Pvt. Joe Maxim, Cleveland heavyweight stationed at Camp Malden, Mo., deal Johnny Flanagan, 1944 city Golden Gloves finalist, his first defeat in eight professional fights.

Three Principals Fail to Appear.

Considerable comment was caused by the nonappearance of three principals in three supporting matches—O'Neil Bell, Detroit welterweight; Jack Eaton, middleweight, also of Detroit, and Larry O'Connor, Cleveland 160 pounder. Jackie Gaines, Cleveland, replaced Bell against Jimmy Sherrer, Milwaukee; Abe Thomas, Chicago, supplanted Eaton against Mike Sopko, Indiana Harbor, and no substitute was available for O'Connor against Bob Satterfield, a fact which necessitated Satterfield's removal from the card. Sherrer stopped Gaines in four rounds, and Sopko knocked out Thomas in the first.

Sheldon Clark, Illinois athletic commission chairman, said Kearns wasn't responsible for changes on the preliminary program. Altho he admitted none of the absentees had signed contracts, it was verified they had agreed to appear.

Rules Made Elastic.

According to Illinois rules, signed contracts of principals must be filed at the commission five days in advance of a show and any violation leaves promoters open to suspension or revocation of their license.

In clearing Kearns of any wrongdoing, Clark said, "things are different today and our rules are being made elastic for the benefit of promoters and boxers who may be working in defense plants and find it difficult to obtain leave from their jobs."

Bell is employed in a Detroit war plant, but his inability to appear was due to a hand injury suffered while defeating Pete Deruzza of New York in Chicago Stadium on Jan. 19.

Gubbins A. C. Holds Skate Races Today

The second annual ice skating meet sponsored by the Joseph F. Gubbins Athletic club will be held this afternoon on the east lagoon in Humboldt part. The program is to be headed by a 5 mile race for senior men in which the winner will receive the Gov. Dwight H. Green trophy.

At least 15 of the top flight skaters in the middle west will face the starter in the five miler, including Seaman 2d Class Ray Blum, former middle Atlantic champion who since being stationed in Chicago has won the Silver Skates, Illinois state, and Tri-State titles.

C. Y. O. Well Represented.

The C. Y. O. will be well represented in this race by Buddy Solem, who made the best time this season in the 2 mile race [skating the distance at the C. Y. O. Derby in 6:14.6], and Max Kargol, winner of the city championship 2 mile race in 6:35. Bob Nutting, Marshall Klemundt, Frank Brilando, and Don Fahrenback are a foursome of C. Y. O. boys who may figure prominently in the long grind.

Lowell Miller, runner-up in the Silver Skates 2 mile race and present high point scorer, may not start in this race as his studies as a medical student on the navy V-12 program have been keeping him busy.

22 Events on Program.

Elaine Bogda Gordon, senior women's champion, may have keen competition in the 440 yard and ¾ mile races. In the sprint Marion Laise of the C. Y. O. is a strong favorite.

Twenty-two events are on the program, including beginners' races for midget, juvenile, and junior boys and girls. The beginners will begin their race at 1:30 p. m., with the regular program starting 30 minutes later.

Some Veterans Are Back.

Altho the war has shuffled the deck for the 10th annual Oklahoma City tournament, one defending champion and two former titleholders will compete.

Gilbert Howell, stocky southpaw lightweight ruler of a year ago, who missed the Chicago tournament because of a broken thumb; Jack Bruza, lightweight champion in 1941, but now a welterweight; and Bracy Murrow, who has moved up to the bantamweight class since winning his 1941 flyweight crown, are the boys getting most of the pre-tournament attention.

O. competition; Eddie Marotta, bantamweight high school student; Lightweights Le Roy Koeth and Vince Lanese, stablemates and close friends who work as mechanics in the same garage, and Heavyweight Charles Lester, 17 year old 258 pounder.

Spotting the Pins

BY ROBERT BEACH.

Do you remember the old story about the chap who backed from the ocean's edge some 20 feet, took a mad dash toward the water, gave a huge leap into it, and had to be fished out? His explanation was, if you recall, that he had taken a bet at a million to one that he couldn't jump across the ocean, and at those odds he just couldn't turn it down.

Barney Hochstadter has put the lesser bowler in the same predicament. He has boosted the top prize in his popular Junior Classic to $2,500 and, the entry fee being the $10 it is, the odds are 250 to 1 for the winner. The event, which will run April 14 and 15, resumes April 28 to last thru May 27 without interruption, is restricted to bowlers who have not had a sanctioned league average of more than 185 during the last three years. This eliminates the Days and the Bomars and the Fleschs and the Krumskes, and assures the boys of competition in their own class. Entries, of which there are expected to be 3,072, will close March 25.

The tournament will be held in Archer-35th recreation and is the fifth annual which Barney has presented, an event which has grown in those five years from a meager 512 entry to the surprising figure this season's chapter will draw.

Capt. Ceres Celebrates 55th Birthday by Bowling 288.

CHATTER—Capt. Frederick F. Ceres, medical officer in charge of the United States naval hospital at Great Lakes, celebrated his 55th birthday Thursday night by bowling a 288 game on the hospital alleys, a single game record for those drives. His series total was 645. . . . Poor Axel Sandquist. As anchor for the Mobilgas team of the Samuelson Major, he shot a dandy 673 series against Monarch Encore only to finish third best on his team. Herb Engstrom had a 713 with a 277, and Chuck Kellner rolled a 706 with a 259. John Petri had a 623 and Ray Schmitz a 615 to give the team a 3,330 total. Marty Cassio of Rahway, N. J., says he will bowl any man in the world for $2,500, providing Marty's half of the home and home match is held in Joe Falcaro's Staten Island establishment. The 49th annual Illinois state tournament for 1946 will be held in Elgin's Bowlway Recreation beginning April 1, no foolin'. . . . Augie Feinendegen and Johnny Schageman have been bowling in the Chicago Rapid Transit league for 29 successive years. . . . The 10 sons of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Westerman, Elgin, will hold their annual family bowling tournament next Sunday in Schneider Brothers' alleys.

Stock Yards Association Tournament Opens March 3.

The Stock Yards Bowling association's 28th annual tournament will be held in Queen's recreation, 6236 S. Ashland av., March 3, 10, 17, and 24. The association consists of all packing house leagues, numbering 128 teams. . . . The Marvin Ericksons won Pete Howley's father and son tournament with 1,196, a 600 by sr. and a 596 by jr. The meet drew 91 teams. . . . Isabel Erxleben's 209, 221—574 and Helen Nagle's 201—570 led the feminine portion of Evergreen Tower's Sunday Night Mixed. Cony Piper with 576 and Maurice Mahoney with 573 topped the men. . . . Thompson's Restaurants and Keeley Half and Halfs are tied for the top spot in the North End Traveling. Tomorrow night the Restaurants meet the Meister Braus in Goldammer's 20th Century and Keeleys face Marigolds on the latter's drives. . The fourth annual Irving Park individual sweeper for bowlers with averages of 185 or less, will run at Leo Krisch's spot April 20, 21, 22, and 27, 28, 29. Entry fee is $25 and top prize will be $2,000.

Open Play-Off for Stanley Cup March 20

MONTREAL, Que., Feb. 3 (AP).—The board of governors of the National Hockey league has decided to continue the same form of play-off arrangement as used last year, with the first place team meeting the third place team and the second meeting the fourth place club in the first series for the Stanley cup.

The winners of these two series will be matched in the cup final. All series will be best-of-seven games, with the teams placing highest in league standing having the choice of ice for the first two, and the fifth and seventh games.

Maj. Conny Smythe of the Toronto Maple Leafs filed a notice of motion to be presented to the league's annual meeting in June, to amend the constitution to permit renewal of the league agreement for the next 15 years.

Another motion from Smythe, authorizing President Melvyn [Red] Dutton to investigate "responsible persons" in United States cities who would apply for two new league franchises at the next annual meeting, under section 1 of the constitution. These franchises would be operative as soon as possible.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

They laughed in the small hours of last Monday morning when one Al Heiden, a Detroit factory foreman, rolled himself a 1,577 for his eight game stint in the $43,200 Petersen classic on the second day of action in the big show at the Archer-35th recreation. Sure, it was a tidy enough score, but the idea of it's standing up thru a week's bombardment was sort of on the silly side.

Yet, 18 squads, 576 bowlers and six days later, Mr. Heiden's modest total has grown in stature. It had become such a strike-proof numeral that the only approach to it as the final squad of yesterday's program went to work at 9:30 last night, was the 1,574 fired by Frank [Bud] Wright of Chicago's Meister Braus, on Friday's second detail.

Heading the first three squads yesterday were pacemakers Howard Pousett of St. Paul, 1,531; Bernie Drees of Kansas City, 1,500, and Ray C. [Tim] Miller of Detroit, 1,528. Miller had the best opportunity of the day, reaching the five game mark with a 1,023 and hanging on thru six with a 1,204 total. He faltered on his last two, however, shooting 163 and 161 to beat out Harold Allen, veteran Detroit proprietor, for the squad prize of $100 by 23 pins.

Next Saturday's penultimate bill will send out 32 man crews at 12:30 noon, 3:15 p. m., 6:15 p. m., and 9 p. m. The concluding program next Sunday calls for squads at 11 a. m., 1:45 p. m., 5:15 p. m., and 8 p. m.

WORKER DRAFT IS NOT NEEDED, SAYS INDUSTRY

Local Efforts Find Labor Sources.

New York, Feb. 3 [Special].—A country-wide survey of critical war production areas has proved industrial management is opposed to national service legislation, the National Association of Manufacturers announced today.

The survey showed that management in coöperation with organized labor and local war man power commission officials "even now is producing the needed workers" for a shortage estimated by the N. A. M. at 150,000.

Other Findings Detailed.

The survey also showed that:

1. Lower employment ceilings in less essential plants "can flush enough needed skills into high priority war production to meet any labor shortages which may result from the prospective draft of 700,000 war workers for service in the fighting forces."

2. Coöperation among industry, labor, and WMC offices has been recruiting workers "by the thousand" thru public appeals.

3. Also effective are reductions of absenteeism, "efforts to eliminate labor practices which retard production," and shifting of skilled men to more urgent jobs.

Of Chicago the survey report said: "With a shortage of 4,399 workers, the city needs only a relatively few 4-Fs and skilled workers from less essential industries to solve its 'must' requirements."

Detroit Has 70,000 Idle.

And of Detroit:

Unfilled jobs on priority orders dropped to 2,822 from 3,829 since Jan. 12 and reports from the city "not only said it was easily meeting its own problem, but was urgently seeking more war orders to ease a total community unemployment of 70,000."

The survey received replies from organizations affiliated with the N. A. M. and scores of individual companies.

"Constantly reiterated in the survey replies was the assertion that production schedules, altho constantly increasing in many 'must' industries, were being met community by community," the N. A. M. said. "Community after community reported success resulting from local recruiting drives, conservation of vital labor, and additional man power from plant ceilings and use of the work-or-fight principle."

Many industries told of gains of 20 per cent in tires and trucks to 150 per cent in aircraft and more than 200 per cent in rockets.

CEILINGS RAISED IN SUNDAY COAL MINE OPERATION

Washington, D. C., Feb. 3 (AP).—The OPA today authorized southern Appalachian soft coal producers to increase ceiling prices temporarily to compensate partly for Sunday operation of mines tomorrow and Feb. 18 at additional costs.

The increases, 5 to 15 cents a ton, will not be passed on to domestic consumers, but will be shown in prices to industrial customers. The solid fuels administration has asked operation of the mines the two Sundays to help meet a "serious shortage" of high-grade southern bituminous coal.

People and Events

Beardsley Ruml, sponsor of the pay-as-you-go tax plan, will speak at the annual banquet of the Stock Brokers' associates tomorrow night in the Morrison hotel. Ruml, chairman of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York and treasurer of R. H. Macy & Co., will discuss his plan for the United States' future fiscal policy.

Mikesell, chief cleark in the coal freight department in Chicago, advanced to Detroit to succeed Lynn.

WPB Speeds War Contracts for All of 1945

Washington, D. C., Feb. 3 (AP).—A general acceleration in war contracting was announced today after the war production board requested the army and navy to place orders as soon as possible for all of 1945.

Chairman Krug of WPB said the new program would permit manufacturers and their contractors to "pull out the stops" and drive for the year's record breaking war production goal "fortified by a realistic picture of requirements."

Prompt Ordering Required.

Krug also announced the army, navy, maritime commission, and treasury department have directed that government contracts hereafter shall contain clauses requiring:

1. That prime contractors place all necessary subcontracts and materials orders promptly to assure that needed parts arrive in time to meet delivery schedules for the finished weapons.

2. That each contractor include in his subcontracts a similar clause requiring the subcontractor to make equally prompt placement of orders for supplies.

Hope to Forestall Delays.

Coupled with the prompt placement of government orders for the entire year, these moves should remedy delays in deliveries of parts "which threaten to delay production of vital war items," said Krug.

"A parts manufacturer may readily produce ahead of his contract if he feels reasonably sure that the items he is making will be called for in the near future," Krug explained. "But if the future demand for the products becomes too much of a gamble, he is apt to draw on his inventories instead of keeping his production rates up."

FHA WITHHOLDS COMMITMENTS ON WAR HOUSING

Washington, D. C., Feb. 3 (AP).—The federal housing administration said today that for the present no more commitments will be issued to insure mortgages on privately built war housing under title VI. of the national housing act.

FHA said that because the present insurance authorization of 1 billion 700 million dollars is near exhaustion, state and district directors have been notified to issue commitments on cases received thru Feb. 1, and to continue processing applications for title VI. insurance, but without issuance of commitments.

The action in no way affects other operations and where projects are located to meet FHA title II. requirements, applications will be accepted for insurance, FHA said. Title VI. includes all privately built war housing to be insured, and title II. includes that housing which approaches peace time standards.

SMALL EARNINGS DIP IS REPORTED BY YOUNGSTOWN

Youngstown Sheet and Tube company in a preliminary report yesterday reported net income last year was $7,944,921, equal to $4.25 per share, compared with $8,037,442, or $4.31 a share, in 1943. Profit was computed after setting aside $11,375,000 for taxes and $1,600,000 for contingencies, against similar provisions in 1943 of $18,400,000 and $1,650,000.

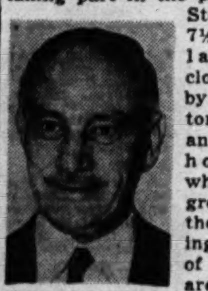
STEVENS HOTEL SALE DETAILS ARE DISCLOSED

Property Transfer Set for Feb. 15.

Identities of the principal groups taking part in the purchase of the Stevens hotel for 7½ million dollars were disclosed yesterday by Conrad N. Hilton, California and New York hotel operator, who headed the group. Details of the sale, including the transfer of the property, are scheduled to be concluded Feb. 15.



Conrad N. Hilton.

In a statement issued in Chicago thru his attorneys giving the status of the transaction Hilton said that a purchase contract has been entered into between Avenue Hotel corporation, the owner, of which Stephen A. Healy, Chicago contractor, is chairman, and Stevens Hotel corporation of which he, Hilton, is president.

Bought Old Corporation.

Stevens Hotel corporation was the company that sold the 3,000 room hotel to the army in July, 1942, for 6 million dollars. A Delaware corporation, it was subsequently bought by Hilton to protect the Stevens name and is being used as the instrument for the purchase of the property.

Hilton said principal stockholders of Stevens Hotel corporation, who make up the purchasing group, upon completion of the transaction will include:

Hilton; the City Investing company, New York, of which Robert Dowling, a director of City Farmers Trust company, New York, is president; Richard L. Stern, Chicago capitalist and former president of Balaban & Katz; Mrs. Helen S. Stern, wife of Lawrence Stern, president of American National Bank and Trust company; P. J. Dee, president, Alliance Theater company, Chicago; Willard Keith, Los Angeles insurance man, and Sam D. Young, president of El Paso National bank. Other California and Texas interests will also be included.

Will Bear Two Mortgages.

The Stevens property is to be transferred to the Hilton group subject to an existing first mortgage of $3,055,000. The balance of the purchase price is to be met thru a second mortgage of 1½ million, payable in 20 monthly instalments, and $2,945,000 in cash. Upon signing of the contract the Hilton group paid $250,000 in earnest money.

Purchase of the Stevens Hotel corporation by Hilton served to prevent use of the Stevens name by others. Hilton at one time was reported to be planning to sue the Healy group on the ground that he held the right to use of the name. The Healy attorneys contended that the name went with the hotel building.

Bought for 5¼ Million.

The Healy group paid the army $5,251,000 for the hotel which when completed in 1928 was said to have represented an investment of 28 million dollars.

Stephen Healy, who was the principal stockholder in the group, was said to have wished to sell the property despite the fact that it is being operated at capacity, first, because he is a contractor and does not like the hotel business and, second, because of the income tax problem. Had he retained the property he would have had to dip heavily into reserves to meet income tax payments, it was said.

Grains Push to Peaks for Current Rise

Grain futures moved up slowly but steadily on the Chicago Board of Trade yesterday, closing at new highs for the current movement. Wheat gained ⅜ to ⅝ cent and rye ⅝ to ⅞ cent a bushel. Corn was ½ cent higher to ¼ cent lower. Oats rose ⅞ to 1⅛ cents and barley was up ⅜ to ½ cent.

Winnipeg rye futures closed 1¼ to 1⅜ cents higher, recording a new seasonal high for the third consecutive day.

Strength in securities and some inflation sentiment combined with a growing belief that peace in Europe may be followed by large exports of American grain provided the background for its advance.

Mills Buy May Future.

Mills bought May wheat, reportedly because limited receipts of grain forced them to protect their flour sales. In Minneapolis, however, wheat was not in urgent demand as earlier in the week. Complaints of inability to obtain cars for flour shipment increased, and one large eastern macaroni manufacturer was reported to have closed down because of lack of flour.

Northwestern elevator firms said that many country elevators were full of grain and may be forced to close until they can obtain box cars and make room for new purchases from farmers.

Causes Artificial Scarcity.

Large quantities of wheat, corn, and oats have been sold for shipment to terminal markets, but lack of cars to move it has produced an artificial scarcity of grain offerings at leading markets and forced prices up to the ceiling, brokers said.

Reports that England would need large amounts of feed grains failed to affect corn prices because elevator men said they were not in a position to provide corn and supplies of oats were so small that eastern users had to import large quantities from Canada. The oats futures advance was attributed partly to buying in Chicago against sales in Minneapolis by spreaders.

EFFECT OF STOCK SPLITS.

The frequency with which common stocks are split into a larger number of units demonstrates that many corporation managements are convinced that important market advantages result from such action.

An explanation often given is that directors in recommending a stock split wish to bring the price of the stock within the reach of a larger number of buyers, thus improving marketability, and incidentally reducing spreads between bid and asked prices.

Perhaps there is a belief also that the split units are likely to sell for a higher combined sum than a single share of the original stock. Altho there may be some basis for the supposition, it is difficult to prove it with exactness. Of course, the splitting of a stock in no way changes the respective claims of the shareholders on earnings and assets.

The theory that marketability is improved by splits apparently rests largely on the preference of many investors and traders to deal in round lots—usually 100 shares on the New York Stock exchange—rather than odd lots. The odd lot system functions efficiently on the stock exchanges, however. It is just as easy to buy 20 shares of a stock selling at $100 as 100 shares at $20.

A little more expense is incurred by the odd lot buyer, chiefly because of the added price differential, usually 12½ cents a share over a simultaneous transaction in a round lot. On the other hand, there has been a tendency in recent years to reduce the round lot in the case of less active stocks, to as small as 10 shares.

Sometimes the market is quick to assume that a split is the forerunner of a cash dividend increase. But obviously, if a company's position warrants such action, the total cash disbursement could as easily be increased before as after a stock split.

That the market recently has been inclined to exaggerate the benefits of splits is suggested by the ease with which some stocks have fallen back after sharp price gains attributed mainly to proposed splits. Examples are Loew's, Westinghouse Electric, and Dresser Industries, all of which lost 8 to 10 points from the top prices. A less recent example is Royal Typewriter.

STOCKS EXTEND CLIMB DESPITE PROFIT CASHING

Utility Average Sets Peak Since 1940.

New York, Feb. 3 (AP).—Numerous steels, rails, motors, utilities, and industrials made further modest advances in today's stock market, but some leaders met profit cashing after a week in which the list as a whole rose.

Swelled by further large blocks of low priced issues, the turnover was one of the heaviest on a Saturday in recent months. Pivotal issues stiffened here and there toward the close and advances outnumbered losses by 2 to 1 margin.

The federal reserve board's increase in margins as a step to prevent runaway markets had scant effect on prices. Most brokerage business has been on virtually a cash basis for months.

Market Broad on Volume Gain.

The Associated Press 60 stock composite rose 0.1 to 59.5 and in the week had a net gain of 0.5. The utility average went to another new high since 1940. The market was broad for Saturday. Of 843 issues registered 433 were up, 208 down, and 202 unchanged. Transfers of 1,034,800 shares compared with 743,300 a week ago.

Stronger issues included Alleghany common and preferred, at peaks for 1944-'45 in the wake of a big bank loan to further the company's refunding program; Superheater, United States Steel, Youngstown Sheet, Chrysler, Packard, Goodrich, American Telephone, Standard Oil of California, Atlantic Coast Line, Delaware and Hudson, Allied Chemical, and Aviation corporation.

RAIL BONDS ADVANCE.

New York, Feb. 3 (AP).—Another heavy turnover in railroad issues today lifted bond market activity to $5,093,000, a high Saturday level. Most of the rails advanced fractions to more than a point. Industrials and utilities closed about even. Brazilian bonds added to recent advances to help boost the foreign average slightly. United States government loans were steady.

Trading in Finnish bonds, suspended last July, will be resumed Monday as a result of the treasury's issuance of licenses for resumption of interest payments on the securities. The affected issues are Finland 6s and City of Helsingfors 6½s.

CHICAGO RISE EXTENDED.

Price gains were extended yesterday on the Chicago Stock exchange. Among leaders in a 35,000 share turnover were Aviation corporation, up ⅜; Radio corporation, up ⅛ to a 1944-'45 high of 12⅝; Chicago corporation common, up ⅛, and Standard Dredging and Asbestos Manufacturing, both unchanged.

Kansas City, Kas., Feb. 3 (AP).—The North American bomber plant in Kansas City set a new record in January by delivering 315 B-25 bombers. Figures released today showed the plant also delivered the equivalent to 20 more B-25s in parts and equipment.

Cattle Price Rule Disrupts Feeder Trade

BY ARNOLD ERICKSON.

Since the announcement of the cattle price ceiling, which became effective last Monday, the selling of short-fed steers has increased and the buying of replacement cattle by farmers has fallen off, the department of agriculture reported yesterday. Current buying of stockers and feeders in the leading markets is the smallest for this season since 1940.

Farmers bought 19 per cent fewer replacement cattle at the four biggest stocker and feeder markets than in the same weeks last year, 20 per cent fewer than in 1943, and 27 per cent fewer than three years ago. The January purchases were slightly more than half the size of those in December, the department said.

Withdraw from Bidding.

Competition among packers for cheaper grades of cattle, including many of the kinds that should go back for longer corn feeding, has increased the cost of refilling feedlots so much that many cattle feeders have withdrawn from the bidding.

Farmers last month paid an average of $11.35 for stockers and feeders, the second highest January average on record. On the average it cost farmers about 75 cents a hundred pounds more than a year ago to fill their lots with thin stock and average returns from the sale of fat cattle were 50 cents below 1944 and the lowest for a winter season in three years.

The department's survey showed that Chicago, Kansas City, Omaha, and St. Paul moved out a four weeks' total of 48,644 cattle and calves to farmers last month, compared with 93,526 in December, 60,064 a year ago, 61,298 two years ago, and 67,209 three years ago.

Meat Supply Tighter.

The meat situation thruout the country last week was regarded as tightest in the history of the packing industry, and stock yards leaders said they did not expect immediate relief because of the shrinking supply of hogs which more than offset the increase in beef tonnage resulting from the slaughtering of cattle ordinarily purchased for feeding. Last week's hog receipts at 20 markets were 15 per cent below the light supply received in the preceding week and 59 per cent under a year ago.

Hog prices were "frozen" at OPA ceilings all week, averaging $14.70, a hundred pounds and equaling the highest since October, 1943. The steer average rose 25 cents, to $15, and the lamb average advanced 50 cents to $16, highest since last May.

MARGIN HIKE'S INFLUENCE ON STOCKS SLIGHT

Reserve Board Rule Is Approved.

The federal reserve board's order of Friday raising margin requirements for purchase of registered securities from 40 to 50 per cent will have little or no effect in Chicago, spokesmen for the Chicago Stock exchange and representative brokerage houses said yesterday.

Most current transactions are cash deals, they said, and margins of many of the other accounts already exceed the new requirements. One representative said that the order, besides having a "good psychological effect" now, would provide a means of stimulation if the market turns weak. Another pointed out that present accounts are not affected.

May Borrow Only Half.

The requirement, effective tomorrow, means that if a person is buying $1,000 of securities, he may borrow $500 against the securities but must provide the other $500 himself.

Representatives of the following organizations expressed these views on the order:

Chicago Stock exchange: "The order will make no substantial difference because the majority of accounts are either cash accounts or are margined with sufficient equity to meet new requirements. The ruling affects only new commitments and does not affect accounts as they exist now."

May Prevent "Pyramiding."

Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Beane: "The ruling will not have very much effect because most people have 50 per cent or more margin on their accounts now and much of the speculating is done with cash anyway. It may be a good thing if it stops 'pyramiding' while the market is on the way up."

A. L. Baker & Co.: "The order is of negligible importance as a practical matter because the predominant portion of our transactions is for cash and relatively few are on margin, but it should have a good psychological effect. It is a wise move because the raising of requirements now leaves room to lower them safely to encourage trading if we have a weak market at some future date. Speculation in low priced common stocks has been tremendous, but it has been mostly for cash."

Another spokesman said, "We don't regard the ruling as anything more than natural in view of the increased volume of trading. It seems simply a precautionary measure. We have had a big market."

Easter FASHION NOTE for Men:

OLD CLOTHES WILL BE WORN!

■ ■ ■ Your last year's spring clothes will be quite the style in this year's Easter parade ... So predicted The Wall Street Journal recently.

When W. P. B. diverted all worsted yarn produced between January 14 and June 2 to Government use, Wall Street Journal reporters swung into action immediately ... interviewed the country's leading clothing manufacturers ... learned that the supply of men's suits this spring will be at best only 50% of last year's.

In the same article an even more severe shortage of men's topcoats was forecast—result of a W.P.B. order by which a large part of civilian manufacturing facilities must be devoted to army-overcoat production.

This is an instance of The Wall Street Journal's presentation of the news behind the news ... briefly, factually, interestingly—in terms of importance to its readers.

For The Wall Street Journal is a different kind of newspaper—streamlined for the busy reader who must get the important facts and what they mean ... in shortest possible reading time.

When you take advantage of this time-saving brevity, remember that The Wall Street Journal is the complete business daily ... with the largest staff of writers on business and financial subjects ... and, in addition, it is the only business paper served by all four big press associations.

Definitely, The Wall Street Journal makes it easier for you to keep abreast of the indispensable news and its effect on you and your business.

Our acceptance of subscriptions ($18 a year in U. S.) may be subject to delay because of wartime limitations on publishers' use of paper.

As an ARTIST SEES the WAR

The paintings reproduced on this page were done in Europe by Gary Sheahan, Tribune artist-war correspondent. Sheahan's many paintings and his sketches of Chicagoland soldiers and sailors have appeared frequently in The Tribune.

WORD FROM HOME. Artist Sheahan comments: "No matter what the subject of the card or letter, it has seemed to me that the soldiers have always had a puzzled look on their faces, as if it can't be true that this is really my wife, my baby, my home. They take the card closer to the light and study it."

Troops of the 10th infantry regiment cautiously move down Strasbergerstrasse, Metz. They wear the red diamond of the 5th infantry division. There is fighting still going on near the turn of the street where the building stands on the left in the distance.

Lt. John Ewing, Brownstown, Ill., directs artillery fire by means of walkie-talkie radio, while Capt. Carl Weinrich, Evanston, watches out the window of their observation post in the steel town of Maizieres, France. The third officer on the left is Capt. Isadore F. Hoffman, Atlanta. This observation post is a hot spot—only a few buildings away from the enemy. Lieutenant Ewing has punched a hole in the wall in order to observe effect of American shells which pass close overhead.

HERE IS YOUR SOLDIER

What you can do to help him make his transition to civilian life.

By NORMA LEE BROWNING

YOU MAY NOT recognize him at first. They've fixed up his face so you'd never know part of it was torn by machine gun bullets. But plastic surgery can't do much to hide what has happened inside of him.

It shows in his eyes, the way they look at you with fleeting and cynical amusement and the way they look thru you with a curious and complete detachment.

It shows in the way his hands tremble and are never quiet.

It shows in the way he talks—hesitant, cautious, often inarticulate.

You have to go easy with him, this soldier who is just back from Bastogne or Italy, Leyte or Burma. He isn't that same excited and loquacious youngster who hurriedly kissed you good-by at the depot.

He's changed a lot. He's leery of people. And he isn't doing much talking. At least he doesn't talk about the things you expect him to. But he's been doing a lot of thinking, and if you strike it just right you're apt to set off the sleeping volcano that lies within him. He becomes suddenly articulate.

Then you find out a lot of things about him that maybe you didn't know before. What he thinks of the kind of world he's come back to may jolt your smug complacency. He is bitter.

"People here don't know there's a war going on," he will tell you. "What they need is a couple of robot bombs to wake them up."

He is resentful.—"They're rolling in dough. Yet every day you pick up the papers and read about strikes in war plants. What kind of money do they think we're making?"

He is disillusioned.—"Something terrible has happened to the womanhood of our country. How do you think we feel to come back and find our wives and our sweethearts running around with somebody else?"

He is cynical.—"Maybe it's just because we've been in the army too long, but we get so we don't trust anybody. If some one starts being nice to us we wonder what's the angle."

He has an inferiority complex.—"People think if you're an enlisted man you're not fit to associate with. And they talk about democracy and equality!"

He is skeptical.—"The G. I. bill of rights sounds good—at a distance. But there's always a hitch somewhere. So much red tape you wonder if it's worth the effort. And there is nothing fair at all about the mustering-out pay."

He is realistic.—"We don't pay much attention to things like the Atlantic Charter, Bretton Woods, Dumbarton Oaks. Who do those guys think they're kidding? There'll always be wars as long as there are big shots to make money out of them."

The returned soldier asks nothing, expects nothing, except for one thing. He wants to be free.

He is tired of the army, and he (Continued on page four.)

AMERICAN HEROES OF WORLD WAR II.

This is another of the series on outstanding American heroes of the present war. Subjects for the series are chosen from among heroes who have been decorated for valor. Illustrations are by Clara Fargo Thomas and Alexander Vernak.

By JOHN A. MENAUGH

FEW IF ANY heroes of any war have been able to pack as much action into the brief space of 24 hours as did Staff Sgt. Walter D. Ehlers of Manhattan, Kas., on last June 9 and 10. For his glorious feats then, performed with the American 1st division as it was fighting inland from the beaches of France thru a nest of hedgerows in the vicinity of Caumont, Ehlers has been promoted to lieutenant and awarded his country's highest military decoration, the medal of honor (congressional medal).

Among his achievements in the 24 hour exhibition of superbravery were the destruction of two German machine gun emplacements and two mortar positions. In hand-to-hand fighting he accounted for four of the enemy. Altogether, up to the time that the medal of honor was presented to Ehlers on Dec. 8, 1944, he believed he had killed 18 Germans. One of these was an enemy sniper whom he picked off with his Garand rifle at 100 yards after the German had shot him.

During the action of June 9 and 10 Ehlers led his squad forward, protecting his men at his own expense. He exposed himself to the deadliest of fire, entered places which only strongly armed patrols would have been expected to attack, and performed services which normally would have required at least a platoon.

Leading an attack near Goville, France, he found himself, as usual, out in front of his squad as he approached a German machine gun nest. Encountering some of the enemy in advance, he resorted to his bayonet, fighting the Germans two at a time. As he and his men moved on, seven Germans lay dead on the field. Then Ehlers alone rushed the German machine gun nest and captured it. Next, with the aid of his comrades, he took two enemy mortar positions, killing or capturing all of the mortars' crews. Another machine gun position he took with a rush and a burst of fire from an automatic rifle.

The following day Ehlers and his squad covered the withdrawal of a platoon under heavy attack from the enemy. Wounded by sniper fire, he carried to safety a more seriously wounded companion. Then he returned to recover the automatic rifle which his companion had left on the field.

Watch for this series of sketches and stories every Sunday.

LIGHTLY and POLITELY

By SHEILA JOHN DALY

(Copyright: 1945: The Chicago Tribune.)

THIS IS IT—a bright lights evening that you will mark off in red on your calendar for weeks before and mark down in black and white in your diary to remember long afterward. It's the night of the junior prom or any other big school dance, an important evening, a night that just has to be fun. And to make things go smoothly, just to be sure you're on the ball and enjoying the evening at the same time, here's a quick list of the most important "do's and don'ts" for dances. Give it the once over and check your etiquet rating.

If you're sending your gal a corsage (and any girl will love you for it), put a little pre-thought into your choice. If you don't want to come out bluntly and ask the girl if she's going to be the "fragile or dramatic" type for the big evening, perhaps one of her friends will give you a hint about what color of evening dress your current honey chile will be wearing.

Flowers never really clash in color, but sweet peas might be sweeter with white net, while a bunch of dark purple pansies might be just right with shades of blue or green. Use originality in your choice. Remember there are other flowers besides gardenias! Try a camellia in season, a cluster of violets, or two long-stemmed red roses. Girls never like big or heavy corsages, and no gal wants to wear more than three average sized flowers at the same time. Choose your flowers with a thought to simplicity and effectiveness and either bring the corsage with you or have the florist deliver it ahead of time.

Among teen-agers it is never necessary to introduce a friend as "Miss Honey Chile" or "Mr. Jackson"—just say "Sally" or "Joe," presuming that the two introduced will be real friends before long. A fellow is always introduced to a girl: "Sally, may I present Joe Jackson?" and if a girl or fellow is to be introduced to a small group or to more than two friends at one time, say simply, "Sally, may I present——" and then present your friends by name as they come.

Tho it may seem limited, there is only one accepted way to acknowledge an introduction—just plain "How do you do?" Never "Pleased to meet you" or "Pleased to make your acquaintance."

If the sentiment is sincere you might add, "I am so glad to meet you, for Sally has spoken of you so often," or some such comment, to the original acknowledgment of "How do you do?" Make introductions short and simple; conversation will come in due time.

Fellows always shake hands when introduced, and when a boy is introduced to a girl she usually just smiles. However, if she wishes to shake hands it is her place to offer her hand first. In saying good-by to a new acquaintance with whom you have spent some time you may say: "Good-by. I am very glad to have met you." To which your new friend may answer simply, "Thank you," or "I've enjoyed meeting you." If you really have enjoyed it, whatever you say will sound sincere, but do say something.

A fellow may ask a girl to dance by saying, "May I have this dance?" or "Would you care to dance?" and she can take care of response with "Certainly" or "Yes, I'd like to very much." When the dance is over the boy always thanks the girl, and, especially if the dance has been a long one, the girl may answer, "It was wonderful," "Thank you, too," or whatever seems appropriate.

If a girl wishes to refuse to dance she should do so politely by saying, "No, thank you" or "I would rather sit this one out," but once a dance has been refused to one fellow, she should under no conditions accept that same dance with another. Also, a girl who is already dancing should never refuse to change partners when a boy cuts in. And for those rules about cutting in, the partner who was first dancing with a girl must not cut back on the boy who took her from him, tho he can cut in on a third fellow. Also (to avoid trouble!), he must not continue to cut in on the same fellow when the latter dances with other girls.

If this is a really big evening, with trimmings, you and your date may choose somewhere extra special to go after the dance. In that case, here are a few tips to remember: Because night spots are particularly crowded these days, it is best to call ahead for a reservation. Simply ask for the head waiter, tell him the size of your party and when you expect to arrive. He will let you know if he can accommodate you.

When entering a restaurant or hotel dining room always stand near the door. The head waiter will then show you to your table and will pull out one chair for the "lady guest" (take it—that's you!) A girl should always follow the head waiter to the table, and her date will follow directly behind.

In ordering a girl may let her date choose for both, or she may tell him her preferences and let him give both orders to the waiter. If the couple wishes to dance, the gal should always lead the way to and from the dance floor.

When the evening is over, 10 per cent of the total check is still the accepted tip for the waiter, and from a high school fellow no waiter will look for more. The usual tip for a girl to leave in the powder room, or in the ladies' checkroom if she has checked her coat, is 25 cents.

Good manners are just a part of having a good time. It makes an evening easier to know when and what you are expected to do. So brush up on the rules; you're sure to be right that way.

THE HAL OF FAME—OR MILEAGE OF McINTYRE

Hal McIntyre . . . freedom of the high C's.

AS LONG AGO as 1942 the college music fans voted Hal McIntyre the top sweet-swing band of the country. Orchestra World that year marked him as the best new band leader. All that happened just a year after Hal had concluded five years in Glenn Miller's sax section by taking Glenn's advice and starting a band of his own to express his individual ideas about popular music. Hal had shown this talent early. In his home town, Cromwell, Conn., he organized his first band, eight pieces, in 1936, and played many a dance date in addition to a weekly show on the local radio station. It was Benny Goodman who heard the young sax and clarinet player and first encouraged him. For 10 exciting days Hal sat in with the Goodman band, then took the job with Miller.

In his own band McIntyre blends sweet, swing, and jazz techniques, altho jazz purists will probably object that strictly speaking that is impossible. However, Hal believes in giving his instrumentalists more room for improvisation than is the rule in most commercial bands of the sweet-swing label. In one of his best recordings to date, "Saturday Night" (BLUEBIRD), Hal achieves splendid unison, but it doesn't hamper his own superb sax, nor that superlative trumpet. There is excellent rhythm, excellent interplay between the brasses. Another, older release, BLUEBIRD's "Peter, Peter, Pumpkin Eater," is a righteous jump tune starting with that angelic trumpet, pausing for a pace-setting handclap interlude before the trombones start a crescendo drive. All the while the trumpets are silvering up the background and finally break thru for a sharp display that is capped by Hal's sax solo. Another BLUEBIRD waxing of Hal's is less impelling but good workmanship—"I'm in a Jam with Baby"—"I'm Making Believe." "Saturday Night" is backed by "My Funny Valentine," and "Peter" by the ubiquitous "Don't Fence Me In." Ruth Gaylor is the gorgeous vocalist, with Al Nobel representing the males.

On the basis of recordings only, what band has done the best job since the ban was lifted last fall? Your opinion means a lot to your favorite leader.—W. D.

LOOKING AT HOLLYWOOD WITH HEDDA HOPPER

(Copyright: 1945: The Chicago Tribune.)

Hollywood.

THAT WISECRACK about "the higher they fly the farther they fall" must have been made with motion picture stars in mind. For it requires a miracle of sorts to bring back a star who has once slipped at the box office.

With this in mind, chalk 1945 down as the year of miracles—the year in which more comebacks will be successfully made and attempted than any other in motion picture history.

There are Joan Blondell and James Dunn in "A Tree Grows in Brooklyn," to begin with, with Jimmy staging that most difficult of all comebacks, a star role on the very lot which nine years ago counted him among its brightest box office successes. Both Joan and Jimmy hold long-term contracts at Twentieth Century-Fox since executives chalked off their excellent performances, Joan as Aunt Sissy, and Jimmy as Johnny Nolan, the famous singing waiter of Betty Smith's novel.

Joan Blondell was to a certain extent responsible for her exile from the screen. She was tired of playing an endless succession of animated, gum-chewing typists, alternating with wisecracking blonde showgirls or fresh-as-paint salesladies from basement department stores. Then, too, her husband, Dick Powell, was trying to get away from singing parts and into real acting ones. But the producers didn't seem to want him in either during this period. So Joan, not wanting to embarrass him, stopped taking parts when he couldn't get any. And isn't it ironic that Dick, too, has made a comeback since their divorce, in "Murder, My Sweet."

Joan toured our army camps for 13 months—went into remote posts as far north as Labrador and gave homesick boys of her rich, vibrant personality. She followed this with an uninterrupted go of over two years on Broadway, all of which made four full years from her last bumptious, bouncing blonde to the role of Aunt Sissy in the Brooklyn classic. The new Blondell proves that she can be something more than a big-hearted baggage with a head of gold. Director Elia Kazan tells me she gives some gradations in her performance of Aunt Sissy that bode well for future efforts. From now on Joan Blondell, who is as quick-thinking and fast-talking off the screen as she is when in character, will have the sort of thing she wants to play. She chose for her second comeback role the part of one of Bill Bendix's wives in "Two-Faced Quilligan." Joan likes the role because it is integrated into a story with an original and convincing plot—a meaty tale bought from one of our big national magazines.

James Dunn in "A Tree Grows in Brooklyn."

Jimmy Dunn never actually left the screen or the stage. But for nine years—since 1931, when he played "Bad Girl"—he appeared in minor movies of a type that didn't reach audiences that knew him as a star. In Broadway plays his characterizations landed in the "good" or "adequate" group—that casual phrase which gets you nowhere in the theater. So once again Dunn lost out with his large established following, even when he was giving very fine performances. He also worked in radio, where he was a new and unknown name. So Jimmy Dunn became stymied in that hardest rut of all to get out of—that interval between star billing and the halfway mark.

Joan Crawford makes her screen comeback this year.

And when casting time for "A Tree Grows in Brooklyn" filled his agent with enthusiastic ambitions, Jimmy said: "Skip it. You're wasting your time. I used to be a big star on that lot—they'd never let me do it." The role of Johnny Nolan is one of those human, weak charmers audiences invariably love. And Darryl Zanuck was determined the screen Johnny would live up to the singing waiter of the book. So he ordered every possible applicant tested until the perfect person showed up. The perfect person turned out to be Ex-Twentieth Star James Dunn.

Few actors are as frank as Jimmy in talking of the things which helped him to lose out in his profession. "I began watching the money clauses in my contracts, Hedda, instead of reading the scripts carefully," he said with commendable frankness. "So I got the dough, but I began to slip at the box office."

Jimmy Durante's comeback in all the mediums—night clubs, radio, motion pictures—notably "Music for Millions," with Margaret O'Brien, is one of the bright spots of the year just past, and will carry on into 1945, for Jimmy is back to stay.

This year Joan Crawford, after many hesitations, ruminations, and consultations, will essay her screen comeback in "Mildred Pierce," a red-blooded story by James M. Cain which was once talked of as a Bette Davis vehicle. In choosing "Mildred Pierce" Joan Crawford does a courageous thing—she'll either be all in all or not at all—you can't be half way about a tale of that sort. Mildred is definitely disagreeable and refreshingly frank and obvious about it. Like "Double Indemnity," the story has a local atmosphere—Glendale, Los Angeles, and Pasadena—and is laid along hard, cruel, inevitable dramatic lines.

Joan fought and waited until the right breaks came. The first one was postponement of the life of Cole Porter because Cary Grant, who's starring in it, staged a reconciliation with his wife and wanted time off. That also left Ace Director Mike Curtiz (the guy every star in town fights to get) with some time on his hands, and Joan got him for her picture. Also thru that postponement Joan got Ace Camera Man Ernest Haller. So by waiting, fighting, and sheer luck, plus an excellent story, Joan Crawford's comeback is practically here.

Ex-Paramount Star Sylvia Sidney will make her comeback gesture with Jimmy Cagney in "Blood on the Sun." No star ever had more nostalgic charm than the little Sidney. It was coupled with good dramatic sense, too. She'll get a fair chance with Cagney—an artist who respects the talents of others and who wants a well rounded picture with full story and character values.

These are some of the comebacks that enter the mind at the moment. Not all attempts to resume a star status, sometimes lightly laid aside, are successful. I'm thinking now of the many times Gloria Swanson was scheduled for a big comeback which never came off. The late Harry Langdon tried to step back into the top comedy niche he once occupied, without much luck. Buster Keaton is another who never got back where he once had been. Ramon Novarro's frequent attempts to star were failures, once his lucky period had passed. Yes, a comeback is a sort of minor miracle in the entertainment world, but Frank Fay has proved it can happen, and it will happen again and again and again. Not since Frank Bacon in "Lightnin'" has anything hit Broadway like Frank Fay and Harvey. He's taken over New York town, and our town, which not only closed but locked its gates against him, is mighty sorry now that a tiny crack wasn't left open for him to ease thru. There isn't a studio here that wouldn't let him write his own ticket and terms.

Yes, that's the miracle of show business—down one year, sitting on top of the world the next. And with a sense of humor you can take both in stride and even laugh at the term "comeback.".

At right: Joan Blondell, along with Jimmy Dunn, made a great hit in "A Tree Grows in Brooklyn."

doesn't mind admitting it. His ambition is to get out of it as soon as possible and go some place where nobody can tell him what to do and when.

He wants no part of a glorified WPA for soldiers; he is sick of regulation and red tape. He wants neither pity nor charity. He believes he can take care of himself. All he asks is to be let alone.

In a hospital there is much time for thinking, for trying to pull together scattered fragments of emotion and impressions just to see how they all add up.

Let's visit the patients of an army station hospital—Camp Ellis, for instance, about 60 miles from Peoria and Galesburg. Camp Ellis has the largest station hospital in the 6th service command and one of the finest reconditioning programs in the nation. The soldier patients won't object too much. They're too tired.

Here's a Purple Heart lad—Roy S. Smith. Private Smith, 22, of Mount Vernon, Ill. He was with the 9th infantry division in the European area.

A jeep was blown out from under Private Smith. It got him in the back. He was paralyzed for three months. He spent seven months in a hospital overseas.

(Posed by Robert Hutton and Joan Leslie.)

This soldier of yours isn't that same excited and loquacious youngster who hurriedly kissed you good-by at the depot.

It's swell to be back in the States, Private Smith tells you, but he'd rather be home in Mount Vernon.

Does he have a wife waiting for him in Mount Vernon?

"I did have one," he says, "until I got back."

You see, it was like this: She didn't expect him to come back. . . .

"Something's happened to the people over here," he said. "They don't seem to know there's a war on. . . . I saw a civilian laugh at a buddy of mine because he had a bad limp from a leg wound. . . . When I was home on furlough I went to the grocery store with my mother, and I heard a woman say she hoped the war would never end because she was making more money and having more fun than she'd ever had before.

"When you see some of the things that are going on over here it almost makes you want to turn around and go right back."

"It's better that a guy doesn't think too much, but sometimes you can't help it."

This speaker is Sgt. Pete Whitehead of Detroit, Mich., who spent 27 months and seven days on New Guinea.

"Some of my division are still over there, and I know I'm lucky to be back. But I've found out one thing since I got back: There's a lot more civilians than you can imagine that don't know there's a war going on.

"We're out there fightin' in trenches and mud, and we're just damn lucky when we can find a tree to lean against to get a few minutes' sleep. Then we pick up the news from Frisco and read about strikes back here, and I tell you you just can't realize what it does to us. It's worse than being under fire.

"Sure, I was a union man before I joined the army. But just suppose we'd gone on strike in New Guinea?

"People here figure the war's over; they're talkin' peace plans already. If they don't do any better than they did after the last war there won't be any peace.

"As long as I'm able to work I'm not worried. To hell with their pensions. And I'd go down in the swamps and just sit there before I'd go on any kind of a soldiers' WPA.

"The mustering-out pay isn't fair. You can serve here in this country a couple of months and get $200; you stay overseas three years and get $300. Just a hundred bucks difference. There's no comparison. But that isn't worrying me, either. I can take care of myself."

Sgt. Jess La Gest of Niagara, Wis., feels the same way. Sergeant La Gest was an infantryman in Italy and North Africa. He has a Purple Heart and one Presidential citation.

Pvt. Max E. McCarthy, four times wounded, talks with Sgt. Seymour Raven on how he can finish his war-interrupted education.

"These pensions and so-called 'security' are the biggest bunch of malarky I ever heard of. They just lead to government control, and if the government keeps up at the rate it's going the same thing is going to happen here that happened in Germany.

"These big shots are making money off the war and plenty of it, and I wish I had some of them where I could tell them. They yelp about a man power shortage. They keep promising us a discharge, and here we sit, waiting and doing nothing except being an expense to the government. We could be working, helping get the equipment over to Eisenhower.

"Believe me, if I was head boss I'd send every one of these strikers up to the line."

"There was many a day on Guadalcanal when I'd like to have gone on strike," said a sandy-haired G. I. from Chicago. "But I couldn't, naturally. I happened to be fighting a war."

He spent 29 months on Guadalcanal. He had no Purple Heart. Purple Hearts are not given to victims of shattered nerves or "battle fatigue." He wouldn't give his name.

"All I want to do is get out of here," he said; "be free again, go some place where people can't be always telling me what to do, and sleep until noon if I want to."

"Why should the fellows pay any attention to all these plans for a permanent peace? They know there ain't no such animal. . . . Just an Irish hunch of mine."

". . . a solitary figure in fatigues. He was playing the harmonica." (Pvt. Edward Gulczynski, Chicago.)

Pvt. Max E. McCarthy, 22, shrugged his shoulders and maneuvered a sly Irish grin as he talked. His face was scarred but still round and almost surprisingly jolly, and his eyes mirrored no bitterness, in spite of what he had gone thru for the Purple Heart with three clusters and the distinguished service cross.

"There'll always be wars," he said. "There are too many countries that think they're superior to all others. Not only Germany and Russia, but England and America as well. And as long as they keep trying to outsuper the rest there'll always be wars . . . just an Irish hunch of mine."

Private McCarthy, who is the son of Mrs. Velma Kirwan of 9138 S. Lowe av., Chicago, was seriously wounded in Sicily. He was awarded the distinguished service cross for extraordinary heroism when he manned an anti-tank gun, succeeded in destroying two enemy tanks, continued firing at the remaining tanks after he was wounded, until they closed on his position and destroyed his gun with a direct hit.

With part of his face torn off and four machine gun bullets in his stomach as well as one in his leg, Private McCarthy crawled into a foxhole, then dragged himself to an Italian farmhouse, where he lapsed into unconsciousness.

He was taken on board a navy ship and operated on. He was unconscious for 10 days and on board the ship for two months. Back in this country, he underwent two more operations in Deshon hospital near Pittsburgh and has another coming up.

McCarthy was studying engineering at the University of Illinois before he went into the service. [He recently was honorably discharged from the service and reported for duty several weeks ago in a Chicago war industry.]

"There's only one thing that gets my goat, and that's the way these German prisoners are treated," he said. "To see them running around here you'd think they were guests of the United States government on a pleasure trip."

This sentiment is shared by other patients at Camp Ellis, where hundreds of German prisoners of war have been sent.

"It makes me boil every time I see a p. w. [prisoner of war]," said Sgt. Thomas Kovac of Milwaukee, Wis. "They're sure getting off easy here. It's like a tea party compared to the way we're treated by the Germans."

Sergeant Kovac ought to know. He was captured by the Germans in Tunisia, escaped with two others from the prison camp, and spent 10 months hiding out in caves in the mountains of Italy.

"One slip and you're a goner," he said, describing the mountain paths which were often banked with several feet of snow. "We begged food from poor Italian farm people, living on polenta [corn meal mush] for five months. It was no picnic. But I guess I was lucky at that. Three-fourths of my battalion were wiped out. That was hard to take. We'd been thru a lot together."

He quickly changed the subject.

"See that?" he asked, and he pushed up the sleeve of his red hospital pajamas and showed his left arm. It was crooked, with an enormous bulge at the elbow.

"That's what the German doctors do for you," he said. "They waited three days before they even looked at it. It isn't set right."

Like many of his buddies, Sergeant Kovac also has a new divorce. He said:

"Our wives seem to have a mistaken idea that all we do over there is run around. They think they're missing out on something, so they start making up for lost time. . . . But there are more pleasant things to talk about.

"Chicago, for instance. There's one nice man in Chicago. I don't know his name. But he gave me a lift once from Bloomington to Chicago. We got there at 3 in the morning, and he took me to his home, and his wife made us sandwiches and coffee. The man offered me a job when I get out of the army. It makes you feel good to meet a person like that."

After his discharge Sergeant Kovac wants to find a "quiet spot" in northern Wisconsin where he

YOUTH ON THE CAMPUS

By ELEANOR NANGLE

Fredericksburg, Va.

ONE OF THE most charming colleges in the south is Mary Washington, formerly a teachers' college; now—since last June—the woman's college of the University of Virginia. Mary Washington, as one of its own handsome brochures quite truthfully states, is unique in name, location, and environment.

The college is at Fredericksburg, some 70 miles from the very ancient, distinguished, and beautiful monument to Thomas Jefferson which is the parent institution, the university at Charlottesville. It is situated in this quiet town of great historic significance on a rise known as Marye's Heights, scene of one of the major battles of the Civil war, from which it overlooks the home and tomb of the woman for whom it was named, the boyhood home of her son George, and gracious, famous old Kenmore, the home of her daughter, Betty Washington Lewis.

The campus here, as one might expect, is in the best and most beautiful southern tradition, distinguished by stately colonial pillars, stretches of rolling lawn, and foliage of breath-taking lushness. But the buildings are not old as buildings go in the south, and there is every indication that dilapidation—in anything—is abhorrent to the administrators of Mary Washington. There are no sagging stairs or creaky hinges, and ivy and wisteria are not charming camouflage for disrepair.

There are 1,900 young women enrolled at Mary Washington, most of them from the southern states—among them a small, enthusiastic band of midwesterners. Lois Anderson, a sophomore, lives in Skokie, Ill.; Dorothy Ann Brown, a junior, is from River Forest; Carol Hafner, a sophomore, is a native of Glen Ellyn; Alice Casriel, a freshman, is an Evanstonian, and Catherine Moore, another freshman, hails from Springfield. Others are Shirley Zimmerman of Pontiac, Mich.; Carmen Valley of Pembine, Wis.; Adola Buczkowski and Betty Jean Potts, both of Belleville, Mich.; and Anne Dewidelt of Ferndale, Mich.

In many respects Mary Washington's rules of conduct for its students represent the last stand of the old, strict traditions. There are no slacks to be seen, of course, and smoking is discouraged wholeheartedly and done only in the privacy of the students' rooms. There is a stateliness about the place that is perhaps an echo of the dean of women's opinion about feminine behavior. Freshmen are thoroly drilled not only in becoming dress but in becoming behavior.

All young men who call on students at Mary Washington must be on what is known as the approved calling list, and a student must have written approval from her parents or guardian sent to the dean in order to have an out-of-town boy's name placed on this list; town boys must make arrangements with the dean of women in person. Every date calls first at the dean's office for an official guest card for each visit to the campus, and any young man who gets himself off the calling list is denied the social courtesies of the campus, with considerable risk of not being reinstated.

This is not to imply that the atmosphere at Mary Washington is stifling. It is not; it is refreshing and attractive and rather gay. Academic standards are high, and Mary Washington girls are "20th century" in the ways that count and that are most enchanting in young girls. Their college is marvelously equipped for everything from indoor and outdoor sports to the most gracious kind of dancing parties in the beautiful Hall of Mirrors in George Washington hall. The dormitories are as gracious, as comfortable, and as tastefully done as any we have seen anywhere in the country.

Joyce Cissel, freshman, of Washington, D. C., a Spanish major.

Hunting and riding are tremendously popular sports at Mary Washington, which lies close to Middleboro and Warrenton, the famous "horse counties" of Virginia. All day long, it seemed to us, groups of riding students shuttle back and forth between the lovely campus and Oak Hill stables, where students take instruction and start their hunts.

Here at the stable William Walther, the riding instructor, keeps seven or eight couples of long-eared, sad-eyed foxhounds, and from around the first of November all thru the winter qualified riders, under Walther's guidance, may go on fox hunts twice a week, tearing, pink-cheeked and pink-coated, over some of the most charming countryside in Virginia.

Virginia hall, sophomore and junior dormitory, is in Mary Washington's predominant architectural pattern, red brick with gleaming white colonnades.

Letters published in this department should be written on one side of the paper. If you wish a personal reply please inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Dear Mae Tinée: Will you please tell me if "Keys of the Kingdom" has been completed? I'm very anxious to see it and would also like you to print a picture of Gregory Peck. I understand he plays the leading role, and I've never seen him. Thanks a lot!

S. E.

Gregory Peck

"Keys of the Kingdom" has been completed and is scheduled for release in the middle west some time soon. Mr. Peck is a newcomer to the screen, and since a number of readers have inquired about him, we're obliging with a picture. He has also finished work on "The Valley of Decision," not set for release as yet.

Dear Mae Tinée: My mother and I have a difference of opinion. It's all about who played the lead with Clark Gable in "Gone with the Wind." N. J. M.

Surely you haven't forgotten Vivien Leigh!

"I'm writing an article on keeping clothes gay—It tells gals about TWICE the Wear with Ivory Flakes care!"

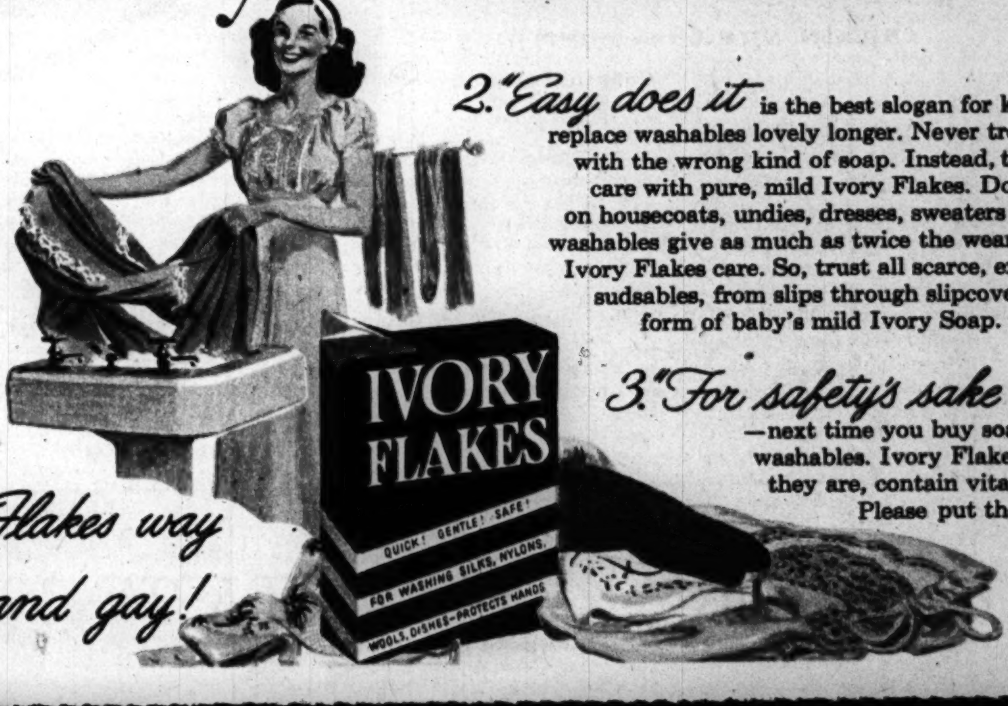
1. "What a whirl I'm in these days," says Navy bride Mrs. Allen Churchill of Greenwich, Conn., "writing, keeping house and dancing for the boys at camp shows. My husband, who's stationed fairly near home, says I ought to tell all the gals how I help my clothes stay so bright and pretty in spite of all my activity. Having heard about twice the wear with Ivory Flakes care is the secret of it all, of course.



2. "Easy does it is the best slogan for keeping hard-to-replace washables lovely longer. Never treat things roughly with the wrong kind of soap. Instead, try baby-gentle care with pure, mild Ivory Flakes. Dozens of wash tests on housecoats, undies, dresses, sweaters prove washables give as much as twice the wear with Ivory Flakes care. So, trust all scarce, expensive sudsables, from slips through slipcovers, to the flake form of baby's mild Ivory Soap.

3. "For safety's sake say 'Ivory Flakes'—next time you buy soap for your pretty washables. Ivory Flakes, pure and mild as they are, contain vital war materials. Please put the brakes on waste."

Wash tests prove the Ivory Flakes way Helps keep "pretties" bright and gay!

"MURDER, MY SWEET"

2 Linking Velma to the theft of a necklace, Marlowe visits the owner of the jewelry, Mrs. Grayle (Claire Trevor). There he meets elderly Mr. Grayle (Miles Mander) and his daughter, Ann (Anne Shirley). Later Marlowe learns that one of Mrs. Grayle's admirers has been murdered.

1 Private Detective Philip Marlowe (Dick Powell) is hired by ex-Convict Moose Malloy (Mike Majurki) to find Moose's girl friend, Velma.

5 At left: Grayle refuses to listen to Marlowe's accusations or to let him go to Mrs. Grayle's beach home. Ann gets the keys, however.

3 The trail leads to Amthor (Otto Kruger), a quack psychologist and blackmailer. Learning Marlowe is interested in the necklace, Amthor has Moose slug the detective when he refuses to join forces with Amthor.

6 At left: He finds Mrs. Grayle, pretends interest in her. She asks him to bring Amthor to her, so she can kill him.

4 Marlowe finally escapes and goes to Ann's apartment. From her he learns Mrs. Grayle has disappeared. He gets Ann to co-operate with him, altho he suspects her stepmother of complicity in the murder.

7 Going to Amthor's apartment, he finds the blackmailer murdered.

8 Convinced now that Mrs. Grayle is the missing Velma, Marlowe leaves Moose on the beach to await his signal. In the house Mrs. Grayle shows Marlowe the missing necklace, admitting she had hidden it and reported it stolen to trick Amthor.

9 Unbeknown to her, Ann has brought Mr. Grayle to the beach house. He hears Mrs. Grayle tell her story and kills her with Marlowe's gun when she threatens to shoot both the detective and Ann.

10 When the bullets that killed Mrs. Grayle are traced to Marlowe's gun he is questioned by police, but he manages to convince them of his innocence.

11 Grayle is exonerated when it is shown he was defending the detective and Ann. So it is that the hard-boiled "private eye" finds he's in love. Fortunately for him, Ann is in love with him, too.

ONLY THOSE THUNDERBOLTS
COULD HAVE SAVED OUR BACON THIS MORNING!

"You all know how bad A-2 needs pictures for the big "blitz" they're planning . . . The C. O. told us to get'em . . . and he don't mean maybe . . . It was another job of sweating it out, and brothers did we sweat . . . the flak looked like a solid wall and about the time we managed to sneak through and get a couple of swell takes, things began to happen . . . A flock of those one-o-nines that Heinie's been saving, took us on as their personal meat . . . my port number two quit cold . . . starboard number one started smoking . . . our navigator copped a packet, the intercom went . . . then, just as I was begining to wonder what a shor'nuff pair o' wings would feel like, assorted hell broke out among Schickelgruber's spiteful lads . . . One burst into flame off my port wing, a gent making a head-on run disintegrated . . . and by the time I limped around and headed for home, two more Jerrys were spinning down and the rest of the visiting firemen hightailed away from there . . . Believe me, chums, I was between a gulp and a prayer when two *P47's, who'd apparently been the total rescue squad, lined up over our tail, proceeded to wet nurse us home, and, as though it were just another routine chore, flipped around and went calmly back to the wars."

There is something at once pathetic and hopeful in the way the Yank overseas has clung tenaciously to the thought of home—his mother and dad, the kid brother or sister. It is a steady prop in the wobbly world he's come back to.

Sergeant La Gest expresses it this way:

"Girls have been spoiled by the war. They're a bunch of roughnecks, tavern troupers, and nine out of ten marriages will end in the divorce court. But I'm getting married anyway. Why? Well, I'll tell you why. Because I've got a swell mother and three wonderful sisters."

The oppressive stillness of the hospital was suddeny lightened by the far-off sound of music. It came softly, gently, like a will-o'-the-wisp, down the thin white corridors, and it beckoned with its plaintive, elusive enchantment.

Inside a ward, a great, long room with army cots lining both sides and lockers in neat rows at the foot of each bed, lay one solitary figure in fatigues. He had one leg propped up on the bed; his eyes were fixed dreamily on the ceiling; his hands moved quiveringly back and forth across his mouth.

He was playing a harmonica.

The tune was a familiar one, made even more haunting by the soft, tremulous tone of the mouth organ.

"Home—home on the range—where the deer and the antelope play . . . ."

The best way to find out how the G. I.'s feel about things, what is uppermost in their minds, is to catch a group of them together and just listen.

At Camp Ellis several patients were lounging in a recreation room, smoking and apathetically watching a pingpong game.

"You know what I'm going to do as soon as I get out of this place?" asked one. "I'm going to find me a nice little acre some place and relax."

"I'm going back to my boat dock," said a sergeant from Guadalcanal, who used to be a school teacher. "No more teaching for me. I'm going to be my own boss for a change. This boat dock was just a hobby in the summer, but I'm going back there and raise a little patch of potatoes and tomatoes and let the rest of the world go by."

Pvt. Leonard Krajeski of Chicago said: "When I get out I'm going on a farm where it's nice and quiet and not so much noise." Private Krajeski is a veteran of Tunisia, Sicily, Casablanca.

Camp Ellis became the first to use beagling as part of its reconditioning program.

A red-cheeked lad from Georgia drawled:

"You know the first thing I'm going to do, the very first thing? Well, I'll tell you-all. I got myself a certain second looey all picked out to punch in the nose. When that's done, then I'll start relaxing."

"They ought to give strikers a taste of overseas fighting," said 24-year-old Staff Sgt. Elmer Strong of Jackson, Ky., who was a litter bearer on the Anzio beachhead. "I wonder if they think we're having fun laying out there under artillery fire, with bombing, shelling, and strafing all the time."

"We were up there working 72 hours straight and no overtime," said Lyle Buchanan of Janesville, Wis., technician third class, who served in the Attu and Kiska campaigns as a flight surgeon's assistant. "Then we'd pick up the papers and read about strikes holding up production. It just didn't add up."

"They ought to stick all the men strikers in the army and the women in the WACS," said Sergeant Kovac, the three-time Purple Hearter who escaped from a German prison camp.

"I wonder what kind of money they think we're making," said an unfamiliar voice from a corner. It was the homesick harmonica player—Pvt. Edward Gulczynski, 20, of 4926 N. Kedzie av., Chicago. He was a sophomore in St. Mel High school, planning to be a commercial artist, before the army took him. A veteran of the Italian and North African campaigns, he was pensive and quiet and declined to take part in the bull session until the subject of strikers came up.

He didn't say much even then.

"I don't like strikers," he said simply. "In fact, I think they're about the lowest kind of people in the world."

Like it or not, that's how your returning G. I. feels about it. Maybe you're disappointed; so was he. He has no illusions about babbling phrases like "a war for democracy," "a permanent peace," and "future world security."

Until he is free to start over again as a civilian there is an in-between period in the returning soldier's life, a stretch of no man's land that belongs neither to his past nor the future. It is a period of waiting.

It is that interminable stint in the hospital, at the end of which the soldier will return to active duty or be discharged into civilian life.

While he is convalescing his world is the world of endless white hospital corridors, permeated with the pungent odors of antiseptics, medicine. There is nothing to do but smell, mope, and wait.

Until a few months ago this was the daily routine at the Camp Ellis station hospital.

Perceiving that such a routine was certainly not good for what ailed them, Col. Herman A. Jacobson, commanding officer of the hospital and former attending surgeon at the Cook County hospital, decided to brighten the lot of the cheerless soldier patients.

It was last June that Colonel Jacobson gave the orders which almost overnight transformed the hospital into a place of color and liveliness and which within a few months gained for Camp Ellis the reputation of having the outstanding reconditioning program in the 6th service command and one of the best in the country.

Lt. William P. Stansbury of Middleport, O., was appointed director of reconditioning, and to him should go much of the credit for the success of the program.

He hand picked his staff of assistants from the ranks of enlisted men, some of whom themselves were hospital patients and four of whom have masters' degrees.

Classes in commercial art and drawing are conducted by Pfc. Quinton Carriles, who in civilian life was a drummer with Xavier Cugat's band and studied art as a hobby.

The mechanical shop, where patients repair motors and vehicles, is supervised by Sgt. Donald Penz, a former truck line operator in Chicago.

Sgt. Seymour S. Raven, former pianist with the Chicago Civic Opera, gives music instruction to patients who want it, edits the weekly newspaper published by and for the patients, and leads group discussions on topics of current interest.

In charge of the extensive physical reconditioning program are Corp. James Bass and Staff Sgt. Carus S. Hicks, the latter of whom is a two-time World war veteran, having served overseas in both wars. He returned recently from Guadalcanal, a malaria victim. Both men were former teachers of physical education and athletic coaches.

The hospital's colorful and unique hobby shop is under the supervision of Corp. Burt C. Haddad, a former investigator for the federal narcotics bureau, who also is instructor in judo and boxing at Camp Ellis.

The hobby shop, sometimes known as "hobby lobby" or "the remedy for what ails you," is an oasis in the desert of human depression. Here the patient has no time to brood or mope. He is concentrating on crisscrossing those threads just right in the scarf he's making for mom, or burning the initials in a piece of leather that will soon be a purse for his sister, or carving out a model ship for the kid brother.

"At least it's something to pass the time and keep your mind off of things," said a soldier with a cast on his leg as he reached in a box and tossed 29 colorful pot holders on the table in front of him.

One of the most unusual hobbies in the shop is fly tying. It was introduced at Camp Ellis by Pfc. Marvin L. Miller from Perth-Amboy, N. J., whose hobby, of course, is fishing. He learned the delicate and precise art of tying his own flies from another patient in another hospital—a battle victim hit at Anzio who was waiting to be fitted with two artificial limbs, a leg and an arm.

"He learned how to do it with only one arm and his teeth," said Private Miller. "And my flies still aren't as good as his."

The hobby shop, which occupies one full building on the army post, was the first step taken in the reconditioning program. It was set up within 48 hours from the time orders were given to begin. It is complete with all kinds of tools and workbenches, and decorated gaily with bright woven rugs, neckpieces, belts, model boats and planes and whatnots, and smart leather accessories.

Most popular outdoor sport is beagling—hunting rabbits with beagle hounds. Camp Ellis became the first to use beagling as part of its reconditioning program when the sport was introduced last October by Lieutenant Stansbury, himself a sportsman and dog lover.

The hospital acquired a pack of eight thorobred hounds, all registered with the American Kennel club, and named "the Sullivan hounds" in honor of the commanding officer of the camp, Col. John S. Sullivan.

Only by going on a beagling jaunt can one know the effect of this sport on the patients and see first hand the translation of the word "reconditioning" into actual human values.

These hunters are hospital patients. They are the same patients who expressed that discouraging, to-hell-with-everything attitude.

Their faces break into smiles as the yelping dogs greet them, frisking excitedly, frantic to get off on the hunt.

They start off together across the nubby fields. The dogs stick close to the patients, some of whom are still limping.

Suddenly a little black beagle picks up the scent and takes off. His ecstatic clarion calls, different from any sound you ever heard before, make melody on the crisp wind. The excited cries of the hunters cut the air and blend joyously into the wild outdoor symphony.

They run after the hounds; their limps are forgotten.

Presently there is a loud rustle in the scrubby underbrush, accompanied by short, golden-throated yips as the beagle ferrets out the rabbit.

That's all there is to it.

But the way it transforms a bitter, dejected overseas veteran into a human being again is a miracle to behold.

Pvt. Glynn Strader, St. Louis, demonstrates to a Red Cross Gray Lady how he ties flies.

All over this area more and more housewives now accept only the wieners they know are made of higher quality meats.

To make such wieners, we follow a recipe which requires pork, beef, and veal, in precise amounts—carefully selected with special attention to the correct proportion of tender lean meat.

Adding only mild seasoning to these selected meats (and absolutely no cereal) brings out the full rich flavor of these meats. This is a costlier way of making wieners, but it gives Yellow Band Wieners a flavor we cannot obtain in any other way.

News of the care that goes into the making of Oscar Mayer Wieners has brought thousands to serve them oftener. Try them today. Look in the meat case for the wieners in the continuous Yellow Band—they'll bring a new delight to you!

The biggest style news in hair does not concern hairdress at all. It's sheen and softness that rank first, with arrangement secondary. Scalp massage, good cleansings, and above all daily brushings are musts for every woman if she wants her hair to have high luster and therefore high style. (Posed by Ann Miller.)

QUALITY COUNTS IN HAIR

By ELEANOR NANGLE

THIS YEAR it's the quality of hair that counts. Style is secondary. No matter how the hair is arranged, it has no chic in the 1945 sense of that word as applied to the crowning glory unless it is distinguished by polish, softness, and rich color. It profits a woman nothing to arrange her hair dramatically or glamorously if the hair itself is dingy.

This year you'll notice that high style in hairdress has killed off the pompadour and the restless little sausage curls and all but killed off the wave. Take a good look at the fashion models; their hair is sleek and smooth and ever so simply arranged. But it has silky sheen invariably.

For most women this sheen is not something that comes out of the beauty shops unless they can afford the good professional treatments regularly. Most of us have to cultivate the prettiness of our hair, which has nothing to do with the way it is dressed, all by ourselves.

This quality of prettiness in hair springs right from scalp health. That's a bit of logic you can't get past. Not all the curling, cutting, or spraying in the world will make hair attractive if the scalp which nurtures it is ailing.

Scalps need stimulation more than most of us realize, and the usual routine of a shampoo once every 10 days, with no brushing or massage in between, simply does not offer enough. If your scalp is dry and tight, and your hair inevitably limp and lusterless, begin your hair improvement program with daily scalp massage, as vigorous as you can possibly make it. Lift the scalp, and pull it, and swing it around in small circles.

It can take a lot—and the more you give it the healthier it will be.

This alone is normalizing; it will step up the supply of oil that is vital to sheen of the hair strands. But it isn't enough in itself. You have to keep your scalp clean—not just by good scrubbing every so often, but by brush cleansings or even lotion cleansings every day. Dust, perspiration, and the natural secretions make your scalp dirty—really dirty—24 hours after a shampoo. Brisk brushings every day serve a twofold purpose—they provide that stimulation we speak of, and they help remove each day's accumulation of soil.

They serve another purpose, too. If you're consistent about massage the oil flow of your scalp will be normalized; it will exude a certain amount of the precious oil steadily. Brushing helps to distribute this oil along the shafts, and it polishes each shaft. This actually is what makes hair look pretty—gleaming and clean, lively but soft.

If hair is frightfully dry and brittle you might go on strike against sitting under the dryer, drying your hair by hand with soft towels and a clean brush. This upsets the "setting" routine, but it's good for your hair, and don't let any one tell you it isn't.

The most beautiful hair you see anywhere now is that belonging to the school girls. They shampoo their own hair every five or six days as a rule; they dry their hair in the sun when they can.

They brush it not just at night but any time of the day when they have a few spare minutes. It seems to us that the time has come when we might as well face the fact that hand-dried hair is usually far better in sheen and texture than the hair that is subjected to a weekly session under the hot dryers.

It's high fashion now, too, not to have hair look religiously set. Smooth it down, arrange it simply and becomingly, and call it a coiffure. Sheen counts for more than style, you know, and this is a season when you can cultivate sheen and let fussy styles go by the board.

In between shampoos, brush cleansings help stimulate and cleanse the scalp and bring to each hair strand the oiling and polishing necessary to luster. Occasional between-shampoo scalp cleansings with a freshening lotion will keep the scalp free from accumulated dust, perspiration, and oily secretion.

TIME SAVING, THIS FLOUR

By MARY MEADE

SELF-RISING flour is familiar to every southern housewife, but many northern women are perplexed when they see recipes which call for it. Self-rising flour is simply flour with the leavening agent in it, which spares the cook the trouble of measuring baking powder. Self-rising cake flour contains both baking powder and salt and may be used in any cake recipe if these ingredients are omitted.

A time-saving flour like this has many uses besides cake making. Waffles and pancakes may be made quickly with it. Cookies and the quick kind of coffee cake are other possibilities.

Add these good cookies to your collection of recipes using breakfast cereals in new and interesting ways:

FARINA CRISPS
(30 2½-inch cookies)

- ½ cup margarine
- 1 cup sugar
- 1 teaspoon grated orange or lemon rind
- 1 egg
- 1½ cups self-rising cake flour
- ¾ cup farina (uncooked)
- ⅓ cup milk

Cream margarine, sugar, and rind. Add egg. Sift and measure flour and stir in farina. Add dry mixture and milk in alternate portions to creamed fat and sugar. Drop cookie mix by teaspoonfuls onto greased sheet and press down with bottom of tumbler which has been dipped quickly in water, then into sugar and cinnamon. Bake cookies 12 minutes in a 400 degree oven.

Flake ring is an unusual kind of coffee cake:

FLAKE RING
(Serves six or more)

- ¼ cup margarine
- 2¼ cups sifted self-rising flour
- 1 egg
- ⅔ cup milk
- Melted margarine
- ¼ cup sugar
- ½ teaspoon cinnamon

Cut margarine into flour until mixture has consistency of corn meal. Combine egg and milk and add to flour mixture, tossing with a fork. Knead gently until smooth. Roll out thin on a lightly floured pastry cloth. Brush sheet of dough with melted margarine and sprinkle with mixture of sugar and cinnamon. Cut with small biscuit cutter. Arrange rounds in stacks, six to a stack, and place in small greased ring mold so that the coffee cake will have a circular shape.

Reroll the scraps of dough and cut as before. Place these rounds on the stacks in the pan. Bake the coffee cake in a 450 degree oven for 15-20 minutes. Serve hot.

TURN IN WASTE FATS FOR POINTS AND PENNIES!

A Mascara That Doesn't Sting or Bead

THIS is all about a mascara, and these are the recommendations made by pretty and intelligent women who have tried it for me. Then I tried it too and it is the only mascara that I have ever been able to use successfully. Eye makeup is difficult and invariably I splash a little in my eye or rub my eyes after I have used it, and then they smart. The general opinion is that there isn't a sting in a carload of this mascara. I asked the manufacturer why, and he said that it has a beeswax base instead of a soap base, and that may be the answer.

One woman said, "Best of all is the fact that it would take a torrent of tears to make the mascara run. It doesn't even run when you dash water in your face. It seems to me to be as waterproof as any mascara could be without being a dye."

I want to add that it does not form a beaded effect which you get with so many eyelash darkeners. Another thing I want to tell you is that it is inexpensive when you buy it and the refills will cost you little.

ARMY'S WATER WEASEL

By JOHN A. MENAUGH

FOR a good many months the public has had knowledge of an American army personnel and cargo carrier, popularly known as the "Weasel," a track type powered vehicle capable of speedy travel over deepest snow, over swamps, thru thick brush, and up and down over the steepest hills.

Now this vehicle, removal of censorship restrictions reveals, has been further developed so that it can travel over the surface of water in the manner of a boat. The newest version of the vehicle is the M-29C or "Water Weasel." It is an example of the teamwork of the office of scientific research and development, the war department, and the Studebaker corporation of South Bend, Ind. It is at the manufacturing plant of the last named that the newest and an earlier model of the Weasel are built.

The M-28, predecessor of the Water Weasel. It has no boatlike hull.

The Water Weasel is powered by the Studebaker Champion six cylinder passenger car engine, which is mounted forward at the driver's right. Behind the driver is a seat wide enough for three passengers, within a space that may be used, if required, for carrying cargo. The body of the vehicle is watertight and buoyant, with watertight air compartments at each end for extra buoyancy, and the front is shaped somewhat in the fashion of a boat's bow. At the square stern are two hinged rudders that may be released and lowered into the water for steering the vehicle when traveling afloat.

There is no propeller on the M-29C, the ribbed semi-flexible tracks driving the craft over the water. These tracks, each 20 inches wide, make it possible also for the vehicle to negotiate the softest of boglands and the deepest snow and to obtain traction on the steepest and slipperiest inclines.

According to Studebaker engineers, the water version of the Weasel has advantages over other amphibious craft in its ability to climb easily steep, slippery banks of rivers and lakes and in its ready conversion to water travel.

Details as to speed of the M-29C over land and water remain restricted, but an earlier model of the Weasel, the M-29, is capable of speeds of 35 miles an hour on land. The M-29 is much like the M-29C except that it has a square front body. Its self-laying tracks also are 20 inches wide and it travels over snow, over swamps, and up and down steep hills. Not being constructed to travel on water, however, it lacks rudders.

A still earlier model, the original model of the Weasel, is the M-28. Its tracks are only 15 inches wide and thus do not provide traction equal to that of the later models. Due to the sloping position of the bogey wheels of this first model, the track often was thrown off, a fault that led to the discontinuance of the model.

"Back to Bataan!"

These words, based upon a solemn pledge made by Gen. Douglas MacArthur, appear today for the first time in the upper right hand corner of page one of the main news section of The Tribune. They will appear there several weeks as a slogan for patriotic Americans.

According to neutral sources which supplied this picture, it shows the heroes of Bataan starting the infamous "death march."

"BACK TO BATAAN!" No slogan more fitting has been originated for American people in this great world war.

It puts into cogent words Gen. Douglas MacArthur's pledge which he made on his arrival in Australia from beleaguered Bataan and Corregidor:

"I came thru, and I shall return!"

The story of the resistance of American and Filipino soldiers on Bataan peninsula has been told many times. How they fought against the overpowering strength of the Japanese invaders, hoping almost to the end that reënforcements would arrive in time to save the situation, is an epic of heroism.

Slowly but surely the Japanese closed in upon them after their retirement from the battlefields around Manila. Slowly but surely their area of operations was whittled down by the relentless enemy. Every inch of ground was contested by these heroes. Japanese sharpshooters, camouflaged by uniforms of jungle shade and with their faces painted green, turned their lethal fire upon them from lofty perches in palm trees. But one by one these ruthless snipers were singled out and slain.

Losing a trench or a gun position here or there, the Americans and Filipinos would counter-attack valiantly, win back a few feet or a few yards of ground, and stave off the defeat that grew more certain every day as no help came.

It was not a lack of courage in any instance nor even a lack of fighting qualities that brought to an end America's resistance on Bataan on April 9, 1942, but a lack of men, a lack of ammunition, of weapons, food, and supplies.

When American resistance finally was restricted to Corregidor, the fortress rock at the entrance to Manila bay, it became the old story over again. Too few men, too little ammunition, too scant food, supplies, and medicine eventually brought the surrender of Corregidor on May 6.

But in the meantime MacArthur had gone to Australia to organize the offensive that was to carry the American flag back to the Philippines. The pledge that MacArthur made has been fulfilled. Already his superb 6th army is battling gloriously on Luzon. The heroes of Bataan and Corregidor are being avenged with interest by new heroes who have plenty of guns, ammunition, tanks, and planes. Even the Japanese now understand the meaning of America's slogan: "Back to Bataan!"

When a Body Meets THE BODY

THE GOOD FOLK of Burgin, Ky., knew her as Marie Frye. They knew her mother as Marie McDonald, former Ziegfeld girl. But they didn't know either very long, for little Marie went to school in Hazard, Ky., and while still in grade school moved to New York with her family. She got her first taste of business as a cigaret girl in New York's Central club during vacations. After high school she went to work as a Powers model, and that led to a singing and dancing role in George White's "Scandals." The show toured to Los Angeles, but the Fairy Prince didn't find her that trip. Later she went west on her own, but not until her last night in Hollywood did she get the break that started her toward a movie career. Tommy Dorsey heard her sing and signed her at once as his band vocalist. She sang with T. D. and with Johnny Long and Charlie Barnett; also did song and dance specialties at Leon and Eddie's. It was while she was with Barnett that the movie scout saw her, tested her, signed her. She started her film career as Marie McDonald in 1941 in "It Started with Eve." After several other pictures she switched studios and did a series culminating in "Our Hearts Were Young and Gay." Free-lancing, she was signed to a personal contract by Producer Hunt Stromberg and cast as the flip cover girl model in "Guest in the House." It was while working in this picture that she got the nickname "The Body." Her most recent adventure was contracting measles while on a public appearance tour.

Genuine Hops Grown on Saazer Roots

Delicate
Hop Flavors
Percolated
thru the brew

Maybe it looked like I was worried over nothing, years ago, before growers were encouraged to go over to Czechoslovakia and get the roots of some hop plants. But I'm mighty glad now.

Those roots and thousands more are growing over here now. Yes, out on the west coast, field after field of hops is growing on genuine Saazer roots imported from Czechoslovakia.

That means we don't have to depend on imports. It means we get a hop flavor different from that which comes from hops grown on other roots.

In making Meister Brau, we percolate these fine hops right thru the brew. Only the delicate flavors are admitted. There is no harshness.

We age this brew live and sparkling with natural draft beer carbonation. I'll never let it go flat in the ageing tanks.

Please try the treat our old-time methods bring. Ask for Meister Brau at your retailer's. You'll be glad we planned ahead for your pleasure.

MOSTLY ABOUT DOGS

By BOB BECKER

Robin Hill Pilot Light is the name of this champion Sealyham terrier owned by Mrs. R. B. Choate, eastern Sealyham breeder.

WITH so many good-sized dogs being used in this war, some dog owners are apt to get the impression that only big breeds can be trained in obedience and taught to do useful things for man. Another common but erroneous belief is that it's impossible to teach a mature dog obedience and good manners.

The old saying, "You can't teach an old dog new tricks," isn't true. You can—and by teaching we mean obedience training, tricks, house manners, and even retrieving, for hunting breeds.

We have brought quite a few mature dogs into our home. These were kennel-raised dogs which had no house manners. Each learned how to behave in the home after just one or two corrections. One dog, a terrier, which came to us when it was more than 5 years old, learned several tricks, his house manners, and about 15 new words in a comparatively short time.

We saw one 7-year-old Gordon setter, which formerly never would retrieve a game bird, taught in a couple of months to pick up its birds perfectly. It proved to be a nonslip retriever of the first order on subsequent hunting trips.

It may not be as easy to give an old dog a course in obedience training as it is to lead a young dog into the right routine, because the trainer often has to eliminate bad habits in the old pet as well as teach it. Nevertheless it can be done.

Any dog owner who has attended an obedience test knows that little Yorkshire terriers, Pekingese, Pomeranians, Bostons, and other small breeds are just as competent to absorb obedience training as the big, burly dogs which are doing such a wonderful job on the fighting fronts as scout, messenger, and attack dogs. One of the most entertaining exhibitions of obedience training we've ever seen was furnished by a little Yorkshire terrier, a breed that never has been given an I. Q. rating comparable with that of a shepherd by the average owner. Yet this toy went thru the obedience routine like a breeze.

There isn't any doubt that this country is going to pay more attention to obedience training of the average home dog after the war. Many families which have ignored this all-important angle of dog ownership already are being forced to learn something about the dog's mind, the training required to make it obedient and well mannered, and how to control a trained dog, because of the return of canine war veterans which have been in the service.

Cocker spaniels at a dog show. The dog being used as a pillow is Mistress Roberta. The particolored one is Black Pepper of Storkdale. Both are owned by Carl Littlejohn, De Kalb, Ill. (Tribune photo.)

We doubt if soldiers, marines, and coast guardsmen who have seen or worked with well trained dogs ever will be satisfied with a companion dog that runs the other way when it is called and does what it pleases at all times. They will want trained dogs for pets, which will stimulate (we hope) more interest in obedience training.

The average dog owner who has a pet which misbehaves in any of the following ways can't help but be interested in training that corrects these faults: Excessive barking and whining when left alone; refusing to come when called; barking and refusing to sit down on command when the doorbell rings; refusing to walk at heel on command; snarling at the owner when forced to do something it doesn't like; and ignoring commands when off leash.

These are faults of the untrained dog—the pet that hasn't been taught to respect the owner and mind the owner's commands. You can whack these dogs with folded newspapers or wallop them with your hand, but these corrective measures rarely effect a complete cure of the spoiled, uncontroled pet. The dog is smart. He knows he can do pretty much as he pleases, so why worry about an occasional whack from a newspaper?

The cure is training which reaches down deep into the dog's thinking processes and instills in his mind the fact that he must respect the owner and yield to the authority in the owner's voice. When that is accomplished the dog is happier, because he gets into less trouble every day, he has more respect and affection for the owner, and the latter experiences 100 per cent more pleasure in owning a dog.

How to go after a COLD

Take these basic steps advised by physicians, in addition to temporary relief measures, to help your system throw off a cold. See how lemons help:

	5 BASIC STEPS ADVISED BY PHYSICIANS	LEMONS HELP WITH ALL 5
1	Get plenty of rest; overcome fatigue; build resistance.	Lemons are among the richest sources of vitamin C, which combats fatigue and fights infection.
2	Alkalinize your system.	Lemon juice with water and baking soda forms sodium citrate, an excellent alkalinizer.
3	Insure regular elimination.	Lemon juice and water, with or without soda, is mildly laxative for most people.
4	Eat lightly. Take plenty of liquids, especially citrus juices.	Fresh lemon drinks are favorites.
5	Keep warm; avoid further chill. If cold persists, see your doctor.	Hot lemonade is almost universally prescribed.

TRY THIS NEW COLD ROUTINE WITH LEMON AND SODA

At first sign of a cold drink a glass of lemon and soda. Take another every 3 or 4 hours.

To induce perspiration, take a hot lemonade when you go to bed.

Lemon and soda forms natural sodium citrate. Supplies vitamins and all other benefits of fresh lemon juice, plus an increased alkalinizing effect. Consumed at once, soda does not appreciably reduce vitamin content.

To make lemon & soda pour juice of 1 lemon in a half glass of water. Add — slowly — half teaspoon baking soda (bicarbonate). Drink as foaming quiets.

To avoid colds build your resistance! Join the millions who now drink lemon and water daily. Juice of 1 lemon, in glass of plain water, first thing on arising.

EXCLUSIVE PARIS FASHIONS OF THE HOUR

Sped to Chicago by air mail, these photographs visualize three fashions newly originated by Paris couturiers. The pictures were taken by Scaioni, celebrated Paris photographer, exclusively for the Tribune.

A most unusual combination of silky black Hudson sealskin with beige wool makes this effective street toque, designed by Le Monnier. The beige wool fashions the soft bows that tie under the chin.

Maggy Rouff, one of the famous members of the old Grand Couture, designed this handsome dressing gown. Beautifully patterned silver brocade is the effective fabric so exquisitely draped and moulded to the figure in the bodice and so ably dramatized in the swirl of the wide, floor length skirt.

Paquin's lush ball gown of pale apricot satin, at the right, is made with a modified empire silhouette. The small, fitted waistline is achieved with fine shirring; stitched-on strips of matching satin are used to make the waistline even more slender. Deep pockets are hidden in the lavish folds at the side of the floor length skirt.

DOCTORS PROVE

2 out of 3 women can have Lovelier Skin in 14 Days

14-Day Palmolive Plan tested on 1285 women with all types of skin!

"My complexion had lost its soft, smooth look," says Ivabell Means of Brooklyn, N. Y. "So I said 'yes' when I was invited to try the new 14-Day Palmolive Plan—along with 1284 other women of all ages—from fifteen to fifty! My group reported to a New York skin doctor. Some of us had dry skins; some oily; some average. After a careful examination, we were given the Palmolive Plan to use at home for 14 days.

"Here's the Palmolive Plan: I washed my face 3 times a day with Palmolive Soap. Then—each time—for a full 60 seconds—massaged onto my skin Palmolive's lovely soft lather, as you would a cream. Then rinsed. This cleansing massage brought my skin the full, beautifying effect of Palmolive's lather. After 14 days, my doctor agreed my skin was cleaner, smoother, finer. You must try this wonderful plan!"

IT'S NEW! IT'S BIG! BATH SIZE PALMOLIVE!

Use it for tub or shower. Solid. Thrifty. Long lasting. And how a man enjoys its rich, generous lather!

DOCTORS PROVE PALMOLIVE'S BEAUTY RESULTS!

YOU, TOO, may look for these skin improvements in only 14 Days!

Less oiliness, Less dryness!

"Less oily," reports Dorothy Hanson of San Francisco. "Less dry!" says Mary Adam of Los Angeles. Of the 1285 women who tested the new 14-Day Palmolive Plan, 696 had too oily or too dry skins to start, according to examining doctors. But at the end of 14 days, 566 of these women actually showed definite, positive gains.

Finer texture, Better tone!

Lillian Coogan of New York reported finer texture after trying the Palmolive Plan for just 14 days! The 36 doctors reported 63% of all the women gained better texture . . . 65% gained better tone. Reason enough for every woman who longs for a lovelier complexion to start this new proved way of using Palmolive!

Smoother! Fewer blemishes!

"Skin smoother!" reports Beatrice Scott of Los Angeles. "Fewer blemishes!" says Dorothy Garfield of Boston. The 36 doctors found gratifying evidence of increased smoothness in almost two-thirds of the women who tested the 14-Day Palmolive Plan. And over half of the skins had fewer blemishes.

Fresher, Clearer color!

"Skin fresher!" reports Corinne Cooper of St. Louis, listing her complexion's gains from testing the 14-Day Palmolive Plan. The 36 examining doctors report this same important improvement for 2 skins out of 3 among the 1285 women. See if this Plan won't bring you fresher skin—and in only 14 days!

Burgundy

SO FINE AND FULL FLAVORED

it makes every Meal a Gala Occasion

Think back to the moments you treasure most! Certainly among them is that gay dinner party at which you first discovered the glorious flavor of choice Burgundy.

Burgundy brings to your table such a festive air. And this is notably true of Valliant California Burgundy. Its deep ruby color and fine fruity flavor are proof that the vines of Valliant & Son boast an old world ancestry.

Conscientious blending and developing—in accordance with time-honored methods—further impart to Valliant Burgundy its delightful smoothness and well-rounded flavor. And to fully protect its precious bouquet, it is bottled by the winery in California.

Valliant Burgundy is particularly appreciated by men, for rare is the man who does not enjoy its zestful, pleasantly tart flavor—the very quality needed in a table wine. Sip Valliant Burgundy with food—and you will realize how its rich tang enlivens main course dishes. You will enjoy it day after day.

Also try the Valliant California appetizer and dessert wines: Valliant Dry Sherry, Valliant Sherry, Valliant Port, Valliant Muscatel. Sole distributors for U. S. A., W. A. Taylor & Company, New York City.

GOOD TASTE WITH ANY FOOD

Few households keep an assortment of table wines. Many choose Burgundy because they like its flavor best. So—forget the "do's and don'ts" you've heard about serving wine and just remember that "Valliant Burgundy is good taste with any food."

THE RHYMING RABBIT

THE Chinaman had visited the Rhyming Rabbit who lived under a big rock near the Teenie Weenie village and the little chap told the Teenie Weenies that the rabbit was sick and in need of food. The little people had often carried food to the old rabbit when he was too crippled with rheumatism to go out and get it for himself, and the General asked several of the men to go to a grocery store some distance from the Teenie Weenie village where food could often be found.

Back of the grocery the Teenie Weenies sometimes found things which had been thrown away because they were partly spoiled, and often the little people were able to find parts that were perfectly good to eat.

"We ought to find something there for the rabbit," the General told the Teenie Weenies.

"Ah, shucks!" protested the Dunce. "Some of us were going skating."

"Well, you can go skating when you have taken something to the rabbit," said the General.

"Jimminie Christmas!" exploded the Dunce. "It'll take half a day to drag food over to the old pest. Seems to me we are all the time getting something for that lazy rabbit."

"Why, Dunce," said the General, "I'm surprised to hear you talk that way. This poor old rabbit is crippled and can't get out to find his food. You are a very selfish Teenie Weenie."

"Well, I don't care," growled the Dunce. "I want to go skating. Let him get his own food."

"Do you remember when you sprained your ankle?" asked the General. "You couldn't get around, and the Cook made special dishes for you and the Lady of Fashion carried them up to your bed. Then the Turk whittled out a couple of crutches for you so you could get about. You'd have had a rather hard time of it if they hadn't helped you, wouldn't you?"

"Yes," answered the Dunce, and he hung his head in shame. "I'm sorry for what I said and I'll be glad to help the rabbit."

A number of the Teenie Weenie men found a big stalk of celery back of the grocery and they dragged it over the snow to the Rhyming Rabbit's hole. The rabbit was so overcome with gratitude he cried real tears and for once he was unable to rhyme his thanks, but that made no difference to the Teenie Weenies, for they were happy to help the old rabbit, and no one was really happier than the Dunce

ANOTHER WAR ERA RETURNS IN LINCOLN SHOW

Scenes Depict Life of Emancipator.

BY GENEVIEVE FLAVIN.

To live the past—the days that Abraham Lincoln knew—will be the adventure of persons visiting the Lincoln rooms at the museum of the Chicago Historical society, Clark st. at North av., during a special exhibit scheduled to open Thursday and continue thru Feb. 19.

The society is believed to possess the outstanding Lincoln collection in existence, and includes possessions from the Hodgensville, Ky., cabin, where the Great Emancipator was born in 1809 as well as those used during his life as President

To Show Gettysburg Draft.

An original draft of the Gettysburg address, one of the five known copies, has been brought from Springfield, Ill., for the display. The scene of the address is included in the 20 dioramas housed on the main floor of the museum. This series presents a chronological view of the highlights in the President's life, beginning with the Kentucky birthplace and ending with a reproduction of the Lincoln memorial in Washington, D. C.

These dioramas are reputedly perfect in detail. Fifty craftsmen were engaged two years in modeling, carving, and designing colorful backgrounds and 10,000 figures used in the various scenes. The figures have individual characteristics and vary from ½ inch to 19 inches in height.

Wheel Actually Spins.

The tiny spinning wheel in the Spencer [Ind. home diorama actually works, and the rag rug on the floor was woven in the manner of a full size rug.

Also on view will be two carriages used by Lincoln. In one he rode to his second inauguration. The other was purchased in 1861 for $1,400 and used as the family carriage. This vehicle was kept by Mrs. Lincoln and brought to Chicago when she took up residence here after her husband's death.

His Shawl and Frock Coat.

Personal apparel will be displayed in Lincoln hall. A gray brown shawl is reminiscent of Lincoln's good-by to friends and neighbors at the station in Springfield on the eve of his departure for the nation's capital. It also covered the shoulders of the President during his days in the White House, when he bore the burdens of a nation at war.

More dramatic than words or pictures are the black silk stock, the black frock coat, and the faded handkerchief worn by Lincoln to Ford's theater April 14, 1865, the night of his assassination.

Other Lincolnia in Exhibit.

The table on which the Emancipation Proclamation was drafted, the penholder, which, according to Mrs. Lincoln, was used to sign the proclamation, as well as replicas of the Lincoln Springfield parlor and the Petersen bedroom, in which he died in Washington, D. C., are included in the exhibit.

Documents in Lincoln's own handwriting and books from his library, together with dresses of the period, complete the display.

Phi Kap Mothers of N. U. Will Meet for Luncheon

The Phi Kappa Sigma Mother's club of Northwestern university will hold a business meeting and luncheon at 12:30 p. m. tomorrow at the Dominion room, 501 Davis st., Evanston. Mrs. Philip Davis, Wilmette, and Ella M. Beatty, 6438 N. Sacramento av., are on the arrangements committee.

The Great Emancipator Again Trods Memory's Hall at Chicago Museum

In observance of Lincoln's birthday the Chicago Historical society, believed to possess the outstanding collection of the Great Emancipator's possessions, will open the Lincoln rooms of the museum, Clark st. at North av., in a special exhibit. The show will begin Thursday and continue thru Feb. 19. Jan Richardson, 1220 N. State pkwy., garbed in a gown of the period, plays a Schomacker grand piano purchased by President Lincoln during his first term in the White House. Final approval of the instrument, which cost over a thousand dollars, was given by Mary Todd Lincoln, according to records of the manufacturer.

In a replica of the Lincoln parlor in Springfield, surrounded with the original furniture used by Honest Abe and his family when they resided in the state capitol, Cornelia Barclay, 1340 N. State st., examines Mrs. Lincoln's sewing box.

The scene of the Gettysburg address is reproduced in detail in the diorama on the first floor of the museum. This is one of 20 depicting highlights in the life of Lincoln. The Chicago Tribune of Nov. 20, 1863, declared, "the dedicatory remarks by President Lincoln will live among the annals of the war." Mrs. Edward Stratton, 4706 Beacon st., pauses to study the diorama.

Twirling her parasol, Carol Stanton, 1442 Cuyler av., halts beside the carriage in which President Lincoln rode at the time of his second inaugural in 1865. The vehicle first was used by Lafayette during his tour of the eastern states in 1824.

STOP FOR REPAIR JOB IN PACIFIC UNITES 2 BROTHERS OF N. SIDE

Bad luck for his squadron was good luck for Ensign Robert J. Marguerite, naval bomber pilot, when his group had to stop for repairs Dec. 23 at the Admiralty Islands. Knowing that his brother, Lt. Milton L. Marguerite, whom he had not seen in more than a year, was stationed in the islands, the ensign succeeded in finding him after an hour or so on the telephone.

Ensign Marguerite and his plane crew were cited for meritorious service last October when they rescued four survivors of a bomber crash from sea at night.

The lieutenant's wife and year old son, Jimmy, live at 1035 Hull st., Evanston. Mrs. Robert Marguerite and 4 month old daughter, Ann Frances, whom the ensign has not seen, live at 6430 N. Artesian av.

HELP SHORTAGE CLOSES NURSERY DOORS TO BABIES

Handle Only Third of Workers' Requests.

Less than one-third of 7,767 applications for enrollment in 1944 could be accepted by Chicago's 49 war nurseries and child care centers, chiefly because of a lack of volunteer workers. The estimate is made by members of the OCD child care committee, of which Miss Mary E. Murphy, director of the Elizabeth McCormick Memorial fund, is chairman.

An increase in applications is expected this year, and at least 300 additional volunteers, willing to give six hours a week to this service, are sought by the committee to staff the centers. Equipment and space to open new centers are available but workers are lacking, the committee said.

A seven week training course for volunteers will open tomorrow in three sections of the Chicago area and will meet from 1 to 3 p. m. Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays. The three groups will hold a joint meeting at 1 p. m. tomorrow in the Peoples Gas Co., 122 S. Michigan av. On the north side, classes will begin Wednesday in the National College of Education, Evanston.

Edna Dean Baker, president of the college, will supervise the city-wide training program.

The child care aid assists in the routine care of small children—dressing, undressing, washing, and eating. She helps the teacher supervise outdoor and indoor play, and, if interested and qualified, may assist in story telling and music. Chief qualifications for the aid are good health and a liking for children, committee members said.

Nurseries are open 10 to 12 hours five or six days each week. North side centers include two in Evanston, two in Waukegan, one each in Winnetka and Zion, and nurseries in Christopher house, 2507 Greenview av.; Olivet institute, 1441 Cleveland av.; Parker school, 330 Webster av.; Stockton school, 4430 Beacon st., and Stone school, 6239 N. Leavitt st.

REVIVE SYSTEM OF SEMESTERS FOR LOYOLA U.

Freshmen Get Choice of 5 Courses.

The semester system will be revived at Loyola university with the opening of classes tomorrow in the college of arts and sciences on the north side campus. Students already enrolled on the quarter basis will continue on this plan until the end of the school year.

Return to the semester system, which was abandoned with the end of the scholastic year of 1943, was effected to accommodate students from midyear graduating classes of Chicago area secondary schools. Ordinarily these students would have to suspend their studies until March, when the new quarter begins in most colleges.

Enrollees in the freshman semester will have a choice of five courses: Bachelor of arts and pre-legal, bachelor of science and engineering, bachelor of philosophy, bachelor of science in commerce, and premedical and predental.

Classes on the new plan will be offered in biology, chemistry, drawing, economics, English, history, Latin, mathematics, psychology, religion, speech, and physical education.

Loyola's medical school, dental school, university college, graduate, commerce, and the school of social work and other downtown campus departments will continue on the quarter system.

NEW TRIER GOES AFTER A B-29; TURNS UP WITH 2

Double $600,000 Goal and Still Buying.

According to the arithmetic of students at New Trier High school, Winnetka, $600,000 equals one Super Fort. Double that amount makes two B-29s, of course. These will be paid for with $1,382,776.75 already raised in a war bond drive conducted by the student body.

Tho the campaign was to have been concluded last week, returns still are coming in to swell the total of the second bond drive sponsored by New Trier. Goal of the first drive, which took place last winter, was $75,000, cost of a Helldiver, but sales reached $480,000, cost of a Flying Fortress. Keeping this lesson in mind, New Trier raised its goal this year to $600,000 and again students doubled the figures.

Reached Goal in Nine Days.

The 2,500 students were organized into various squads for clerical and sales jobs in the current drive which opened Jan. 10. Assemblies, under direction of Davis Baldwin of Winnetka and his assembly department, got off to a flying start. Movies of a B-29 in action, together with instructions in the purchasing forms made up the first week's program. In two days sales had reached $109,624.

The following Monday enthusiasm ran high with rallies featuring the Navy pier band and the Art Van Damme radio quartet. Nine days after the drive began sales stood at $665,290.75, over the top. A breakdown of a recent report showed $882,776.75 raised thru student sales, and $500,000 pledged by a Chicago corporation and credited to the school.

Council Launched Drive.

The drive was launched by the school council and directed by leaders of the student war department, Jan Street of Kenilworth and Tom Shanesy of Wilmette. Nancy Bryson, Winnetka, directed a telephone squad which checked bond application mistakes, and Joe Coulter handled publicity.

Student squads made a house to house canvass of Winnetka, Glencoe, Kenilworth, and Wilmette. The premier of "Lagniappe," Tri-Ship boys' show, was opened to purchasers of $100 bonds. Reserved seats cost a $500 bond.

M. P. Gaffney, principal, and a committee of faculty sponsors have acted as an advisory board for the drive.

LAKE COUNTY'S CANNERS SAVE 3 MILLION POINTS

Lake county's community canning center in 1944 produced 83,968 cans of fruit, vegetables, meats, and specialties, with an estimated retail value of $20,754. The figures are revealed by the annual report of Mrs. Emmett M. McShane of Waukegan, director of the canning center, and announced by David Van Patten of Wadsworth, county supervisor.

The center, which is in North Chicago, saved consumers almost three million ration points on the basis of last year's ration schedule, or almost twice as many points under present rationing regulations. Exclusive of many varieties of foods packed for shipment overseas, a total of 52 different products was preserved, a 300 per cent increase over the 17 varieties canned by the center during 1943.

Products put up included 48,029 cans of 17 varieties of vegetables, with a value of 613,800 ration points under last year's ration system; 28,585 cans of 13 varieties of fruits, valued at more than two million ration points, and 6,354 cans of 22 varieties of meats and specialties such as candy, nuts, popcorn, cake, and cookies.

Participating in the project were 15 townships, nine schools, the county home, and the county hospital. Townships and the number

'ARMY' TO PUT SCRAP IN DRIVE FOR MORE TIN

Women, Children to Canvass Homes.

An army of school children and housewives will join members of OCD district 6 in launching an intensive conservation and salvage campaign this week on the north shore. They will canvass every home and store in the district in an effort to stimulate the drive.

Announcing the program, Lee Ross, division director, stated: "With tin about to be returned to the list of critical materials because our only source of supipy, the tin cans donated to the stock pile, are about exhausted, those now in use must be salvaged. Tin goes into every piece of fighting equipment and no substitute has been found for it."

Tin Supply Falling.

Ross also stated that the supply of scrap tin in Chicago has decreased steadily since July from 334 tons to 69 tons. This is a 250 per cent loss.

The supply of kitchen grease has dropped since March from 800,000 pounds to 500,000 pounds a month, in spite of Gen. Eisenhower's pleas for ammunition and other supplies.

Hoping to boost the total conservation of these vital materials, a committee of workers has volunteered its services for house to house coverage of the area.

Woman, 70, Sets Record.

Mrs. James O'Shea, 1833 Touhy av., a 70 year old housewife, will try to visit a few more of her neighbors to collect kitchen fats. Mrs. O'Shea already has set a record for her community by collecting between 7,500 to 8,000 pounds of "fighting grease" each month.

Others working as community conservation chairmen will be: Mrs. Margaret Koenig, 1905 Larrabee st.; Mrs. Rose Ackerman, 2241 Fremont st.; Mrs. Helen Burke, 2844 Orchard st.; Miss Marie Cleary, 576 Belmont av.; Miss Catherine Garvey, 1310 Addison st.; Mrs. Edward Burke, 4351 Greenview av., and Mrs. Henry H. Conrad, 2442 Pensacola av.

List Community Leaders.

Representing their communities as chairmen are Mrs. William A. Soderstrom, 5240 Glenwood av.; Edith Keller, 934 Winona av.; Mrs. George T. Combes, 2714 Leland av.; Mrs. Lee Freeman, 5555 Sheridan rd.; Mrs. Katherine McGrath, 6508 N. Richmond av.; Mrs. Jesse Scott, 6512 Greenview av., and Mrs. Grace Secord, 7519 Claremont av.

The paper salvage campaign will be under direction of the commander of each community who will coordinate workers from other agencies, including children from the public and parochial schools in his section.

Children to Collect Papers.

School children will call at homes in the area and collect newspapers, magazines, and cartons. The paper will be taken to the school to be sold. Proceeds will go to school funds, while OCD salvage and conservation sale funds will be used to defray the expense of each community's headquarters.

Within the last few months tonnage of paper collected has declined approximately 30 per cent. With all OCD headquarters open as salvage and conservation depots, total collections from the north shore area should swell the declining totals in all vital materials from 10 to 20 per cent.

SELECT CADET LEADERS FOR SULLIVAN HIGH

Richard Glick, 7021 Sheridan rd., has been named lieutenant colonel and commander of the R. O. T. C. battalion at Sullivan High school, according to an announcement by Sgt. George B. Epperson, military instructor at the school.

Other officers of the battalion for the new semester include Donald Wittenberg, 1205 Sherwin av., major and executive officer, and Robert Phillips, 1673 Pratt blvd., captain and adjutant. Company commanders, all captains, are Allan Sindell, Charles Strobeck, Norman Berliner, Lawrence Dell, and Fred Parker. Harold Shirin has been promoted to first lieutenant, and John Ohenesion to second lieutenant.

Because of a drop in enlistment at Sullivan, the unit has been cut from a regiment to battalion.

LUZON IS NO PICNIC, BUT THE INFANTRY GETS FRIED CHICKEN

It's no picnic for the infantry on Luzon Island in the Philippines any more than in any other war zone, but the men there do have one reminder of former summer time excursions—fried chicken! "We eat chicken, cooked every way, almost every day. So, don't worry, I get enough to eat," Pvt. Raymond Elie, 23, has written to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Elie, 1709 Fletcher st.

Pvt. Raymond Elie.

"It isn't much news," said Mrs. Elie, "but I'd like for other mothers of boys in the Philippines to know. Maybe they've been worried about the food situation, too."

A graduate of Lake View High school, Pvt. Elie has been in service since March, 1941, and overseas two years.

SUITS ARE RADICALLY DIFFERENT

Shoulders are softened, necklines are collarless. Waists are well defined, cleverly accentuated. Lines are soft and subtle like the lovely wool crepe suit we've pictured. Binding of the same fabric but in a contrasting shade is the trim. Front and back pleated skirt. In a variety of color combinations for all sizes up to 20. Plenty of other styles, too, in the largest selection of suits we've ever had.

W-G-N TO SOUND CALL TO JOBS TO SHORTEN WAR

America Unlimited Goes on Air Tomorrow.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

What Chicago, the heart of the nation's arsenal, can do to save fighting men's lives and end the war sooner will be shown dramatically in America Unlimited, a new series of broadcasts on W-G-N.

No. 1 priority war plants in this community that have critical needs in man power are coöperating with the army, navy, other war time agencies, THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE and W-G-N in these programs which will show the direct and vital part every war worker plays in achieving victory.

The first broadcast of America Unlimited, sounding the keynote of the series, will be aired from W-G-N's main studio from 9 to 9:30 tomorrow night. Thru original drama and narrative and specially composed music and choral effects the program will unfold a panoramic story of America. It will recall how America was born in conflict, with Valley Forge as a symbol, and show how the nation has mustered strength and courage and sacrifice to meet every great crisis.

Deal with Specific Points.

On successive Mondays America Unlimited will deal with specific war plants in the community—one each week—showing the battle uses of weapons produced by each and then revealing what a direct relation keeping workers on the job in the plants has to success in battle.

The coöperating companies include Republic Steel corporation, making ammunition; Pressed Steel Car Company, Inc., tanks; Ingersoll Steel and Disc division, Borg-Warner corporation, ammunition; Aluminum company of America, landing mats; Electro-Motive division, General Motors, diesel engines; Western Electric company, communications equipment; the Buda company, diesel engines and transportation equipment. Other companies will join later.

Direct Relation to Battle.

America Unlimited will emphasize the parallel between the roles of men at the front and war plant workers. Every G. I. Joe is in the war to the finish—he's often worn out and would like a day off, but must stick to his job, the program will show. The same applies to a lathe worker or any other man or woman in a war plant. The program also will point up concrete needs of each war plant and the opportunities that lie ahead for men and women on war jobs, or who will take them and stick to them.

The vital role of the war worker will be vividly depicted in a full page four color poster, titled "Shoulder to Shoulder," and drawn by Carey Orr, to appear on the back page of tomorrow's TRIBUNE. A brawny war worker at the lathe appears in the foreground; beside him a girl works at a punch press. In the background soldiers, sailors, and marines are depicted going into action. The page will be blown up to 30 by 40 inches and distributed for poster use in the war plants.

At 8:30 tomorrow night, prior to the broadcast, a preliminary program will be presented to the studio audience, which will be composed of executives of the participating plants and representatives of the military services and other war agencies participating.

Speakers for Program.

Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE TRIBUNE and president of W-G-N, will welcome the group. Other speakers will be William H. Spencer, regional director, war man power commission; Col. Dan A. Hardt, chairman, production urgency information committee, and Comdr. R. J. Twyman, district civilian personnel chief, 9th naval district. Other guests will be Col. John Slezak, Chicago ordnance district, and Maj. John W. Cummiskey, army air corps. These men and agencies have helped to make possible the program.

Special guests will be Capt. and Mrs. Maurice L. Britt, who are coming up from their home in Arkansas. Capt. Britt was the first American in this war to win all the top military decorations, including the congressional medal of honor. His story, as told to Carl Wiegman, is currently appearing in THE TRIBUNE.

Foote Will Be Soloist.

The musical score for the premiere broadcast was written by Robert Trendler; the story, largely in verse, by Jack La Frandre who will produce the show. Subsequent programs will be produced alternately by Sherman Dryer and La Frandre. Bruce Foote, baritone, will be the soloist tomorrow with support by a 20 voiced choir and the orchestra.

The dramatic cast includes Cliff Soubier, John Barclay, Jerry Walter, Carl Kroenke, William Everett, Rita Ascott, Laurette Fillbrandt, Arnold Robertson, Lee Bennett, John Mallow, and Tom Cafferty.

Following the broadcast the audience will see "Brought to Action," a navy documentary movie about the second battle of the Philippines.

Monday, Feb. 12, will be Republic Steel night.

Singing Sisters

The Dinning Sisters, Jean, Lou, and Ginger, who are featured on Swing's the Thing over W-G-N-Mutual at 9:30 p. m. Thursdays.

GOTTA GRIPE? TAKE IT TO PEEVE COURT ON W-G-N FOR RELIEF

Gotta pet peeve? Tell W-G-N about it and the station will do what it can to help you get relief. You may even be invited to come to the new Pet Peeve court, aired at 8:15 p. m. Fridays and lay your troubles before Edith Davis and Harold Isbell, the conductors of the new series.

EDITH DAVIS.

They don't pretend to know the solution to the problem of what to do with people who still bark: "Don't you know there's a war on," but they may be able to help you cope with minor annoyers such as persons who won't put the cap back on the toothpaste tube, strangers who try to engage you in conversation on crowded buses, or people who leave well filled ash trays on the arms of chairs.

Joan Davis, favorite radio comedienne, has signed a new contract for four years which will bring her a new sponsor next October at an announced figure of $1,000,000 a year, according to the Associated Press.

Salute Morton School on Citizens' Broadcast

The Citizens of Tomorrow broadcast will salute J. Sterling Morton High school of Cicero at 10 a. m. Saturday over W-G-N. W. P. MacLean, principal, will serve as host. The Morton Aeolian choir, directed by Cornelius H. Kickert, will sing two numbers. The Treble Clef trio, with Irene Hack, Lois Jacobs, and Joan Grim, will present Justis' "Singing To My Love." Bob Darcy, sports editor of the Mortonian, will read scholastic news.

2 WARDS VOTE TOMORROW ON NEW ALDERMEN

6th and 10th Have Special Election.

BY EDWARD SCHREIBER.

The 6th and 10th wards will have a special altermanic election tomorrow with the polls open from 6 a. m. to 5 p. m. A runoff will be held March 5 if the top candidate does not receive a majority of all votes cast.

In the 10th ward, a "cat and dog" fight has developed between Atty. Alfred O'Connor, 7929 Avenue J, the Republican entry, and Emil V. Pacini, 8607 Phillips av., who has the backing of the ward Democratic organization. A third candidate is Max A. Pieczynski, 8827 Dante av., nephew of the late Ald. William Pieczynski. He has the backing of County Treasurer Victor L. Schlaeger. The fact of two Democratic candidates is considered an important advantage to O'Connor.

Pacini Aided by Rowan.

Pacini, a veteran of World War I. and a former auto race driver and aviator, has represented ward interests before city bureaus since the death of Ald. Pieczynski last year. He was designated for this task by Rep. Rowan [2d] who also is ward committeeman. Pacini is secretary of the ward organization and a construction engineer.

O'Connor has been a practicing attorney on the south side 28 years. In his campaign literature and speeches he has promised recreation facilities, better street lighting, ward beautification, aid to returning war veterans, and immediate completion of the south district filtration plant now under construction at 79th st. and the lake.

Pieczynski Owns Tavern.

Pieczynski is a graduate of Immaculate Conception grammar school and Bowen High school. He formerly was secretary to his uncle, the late alderman, and spent several years as an assistant superintendent of a life insurance company. At present he is a tavern owner.

In the 6th ward, one Republican, George C. Johnson, 6600 Ellis av., son-in-law of the late alderman, Patrick Sheridan Smith, is being opposed by two Democrats. They are Atty. Francis J. Hogan, 7014 Vernon av., who has the backing of Democratic Committeeman James M. Whalen and Woodrow Wilson, 6653 Ingleside av., a discharged war veteran and an independent candidate who claims the support of a potent organization he has built up in the last several months. Wilson is an accountant and a war plant employe.

Women Aiding Johnson.

Johnson's campaign has been enlivened by the support of a woman's organization headed by his wife, Olive, which has systematically visited homes in the ward to get out a large feminine vote. At campaign meetings Johnson has promised a fight for better transportation facilities, improved street and alley upkeep and thoro coöperation with civic groups in the ward.

The election tomorrow legally is nonpartisan but all concerned admit that the support of a regular political organization is necessary to success.

True Sisters Lodge Will Hold Guest Day

Articles made by Friends of the Sightless will be sold at the annual Guest day of Sarah Greenebaum lodge of the United Order of True Sisters at 1 p. m. tomorrow in the lodge room, 32 W. Randolph st. Miss Olive O'Neil, soprano and dramatist, will present highlights from "Blossom Time."

S. SIDE FILIPINO CAPTAIN AWAITS WORD FROM KIN

Doctor in France, Folk in Islands.

Capt. Avelino E. Ablaza, 9054 Jeffery av., former staff physician of the South Chicago community hospital, who is attached to Lt. Gen. Patch's 7th army in France, may soon receive word of his two brothers and sister, who are in the Philippines and whom he has not heard from in more than four years.

Capt. Avelino Ablaza.

Capt. Ablaza is the nephew of Sergio Osmena, president of the Philippines, whom Mrs. Ablaza met last October in Chicago. At that time he was on his way to Australia and promised to let her know if he heard anything about her husband's relatives. Ten days later she heard President Osmena, who accompanied Gen. MacArthur when Leyete was invaded, broadcasting from the Philippines.

Came to Study: Stayed.

Capt. Ablaza, a native of Manila, came to the United States in June, 1919, to study medicine and stayed. He kept in touch with his family but has heard nothing from them since November, 1941. Christmas cards mailed to them that year were returned.

Capt. Ablaza, who maintained offices at 3255 E. 89th st. for 16 years, enlisted in December, 1942, and went overseas the following summer. It was his third attempt. The first ship he was on was aground five days off the Virginia cape and the second was torpedoed 36 hours after leaving port.

Serves in Italy First.

He served with the 5th army in Italy prior to the invasion of southern France last August. Since arriving overseas he has been stationed near the front lines almost continuously.

He was entertained in chateaus owned by people from the Chicago area when he was in the Riviera and wrote his wife to tell them their property still was intact. He acquired a fine set of surgical instruments from a wounded German physician who was being attended by Americans and who said he wouldn't need them any more.

He also sent a silver ring with an impression of Donald Duck on it to his daughter, Jean Ellen, 9. Other souvenirs, which he has sent home, include jewelry and cameos from Italy.

Four Babies Send Valentine Smiles to Fathers Overseas

Welcome Valentine greetings, in the form of V-mail pictures of the babies they have never seen, have been sent to four south side service men overseas. The pictures of the mothers and babies were made by the Metropolitan section of THE TRIBUNE and forwarded to the mothers for mailing.

Joan Chevalier is the 8 month old daughter of Chief Machinist's Mate Harold Chevalier, a Seabee in the Pacific. Her father is looking forward to the day when he will return home to buy a home large enough for Joan and her brother, Joseph, 3, and a yard for them to play in. Until then she, her mother, and brother are living with Mrs. Chevalier's mother, Mrs. T. K. Nelson, 7413 Chappel av. A former stationary engineer, Chevalier enlisted in March, 1942, and went overseas Jan. 15, 1944. His daughter was born last June 8. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Chevalier, 9235 Ada st.

Grandfather's in Service, Too.

Both Carole Patricia Lorenz's father and grandfather are in the service. Her father, Lt. [j. g.] Paul Lorenz is a naval aviation supply officer in the Central Pacific and her grandfather, Maj. George Fawcett, who recently returned from 19 months service overseas, is an air force administrative officer at Venice, Fla. Maj. Fawcett, a former sales executive, was an infantry corporal in World War I. and was overseas two years.

Carole was born last Sept. 23, four months after her daddy went overseas. She lives with her mother and grandmother at 7834 Jeffery av. A former accountant, Lt. Lorenz was commissioned in April, 1942, and called to active duty in January, 1943. He met his wife, Harriet, in 1941 when they were attending the University of Chicago school of business.

Junior's Reaction His Worry!

Harold E. Woodbury's chief concern these days is the reaction his son, Harold Jr., will have when they meet for the first time—will the baby be glad to see his daddy or will he start to cry. A painter 3d class in the Seabees in England, Woodbury will be eligible for return to the United States in the spring when he has been overseas 18 months.

His wife and son are living with Mrs. Woodbury's parents, Mr. and Mrs. S. W. Gibbs, 6430 Ellis av.

Mrs. Woodbury works four or five hours a day for her father, the officer manager of a trucking company hit by the man power shortage. A former decorator, Woodbury enlisted in April, 1943. His mother, Mrs. Alma Woodbury, lives at 1134 E. 65th st.

Father Fighting in Italy.

Altho Pvt. August S. Spalla II. was stationed on the east coast last April 6 when his son, August III., was born he left the country a few days later without seeing the baby. He is fighting now with the 5th army in Italy.

Mrs. Spalla and the baby are living with her father, Frank Parrilli, 250 W. 24th pl. A former truck driver, Spalla entered the army in August, 1943. His mother, Mrs. Agnes Spalla, lives at 261 W. 22d pl.

SCHOOLS ALLOT $6,225,000 FOR S. SIDE BUILDING

Project Will Bring Area Up to Date.

If federal funds are forthcoming the board of education this year, or as soon as war time building restrictions are lifted, will launch the most comprehensive construction program in Chicago's school history. The program calls for an expenditure of $6,225,000 in the next five years on the south side to bring the area's educational plant up to date. Cost for the city-wide program has been set at approximately $30,000,000.

The suggested project is largely one of modernization and replacement, rather than expansion, John C. Christensen, board architect who directed a survey of building needs, said. Plans for most of the buildings and additions have been drawn, the architect said, and there is reasonable assurance that federal aid will be granted. Christensen asserted that the building program would not raise the local school tax levy since Washington is expected to provide about 50 per cent of the money needed.

Plan Vocational School.

Largest south side projects contemplated are the $1,500,000 vocational school to be erected at 51st and State sts., and the $1,250,000 combination elementary and high school to be constructed at 108th st. and Avenue H.

Other new buildings planned on the south side include a $50,000 elementary school at 85th st. and Indiana av., a similar school at 97th st. and University av., a $265,000 elementary school at 73d and State sts., a $395,000 elementary at 57th st. and Lafayette av., and a $500,000 school for crippled children on a site yet to be selected.

To Raze Keith School.

One building on the south side, Keith school, 3400 Dearborn st., will be razed, parts of three will be razed and replaced, part of one will be razed, and additions will be built to six.

A $500,000 addition is planned for Dunbar school, 4430 St. Lawrence av., and a $350,000 structure will be added to Gillespie school, 9325 State st. At Moseley school, 2348 Michigan av., built in 1856, three detached shop buildings costing $70,000 are planned.

About $200,000 will be spent at South Shore High school, 7625 Constance av., where a gymnasium and music rooms will be built. A $200,000 addition at Tilden Tech, 4747 Union av., will include two shop buildings. At Webster school, 3315 Wentworth av., a $250,000, 12 room building is planned.

Ross to Get Building.

At Ross school, 6059 Wabash av., a 12 room structure built in 1894 will be razed and replaced by a modern edifice at a cost of $235,000. Similar action will be taken at Shakespeare school, 1119 E. 46th st., and J. N. Thorp school, 8914 Buffalo av. Newer facilities are adequate for enrolment of Sheridan school, 9035 Escanaba av., so a 10 room structure built in 1888 will be torn down.

Work on projects at Dunbar, Gillespie, and Mosely schools and on the new schools at 51st and State sts., 57th st. and Lafayette av., 97th st. and University av., 108th st. and Avenue H, and 73d and State sts., is scheduled to start this year if materials become available. Other projects will be completed in order of urgency established thru Christensen's survey.

Look to Child Safety.

Commenting on the work outlined the architect said that the building program is motivated by the possible danger to the safety of children and because sanitation in the buildings 50 to 90 years old is substandard.

In planning the building program Christensen tried to project population shifts. As a result some of the schools are being built in areas now comparatively sparsely populated while no improvements are planned for crowded sections where a projection has indicated a lessening of congestion within a few years.

W-G-N TO SOUND CALL TO JOBS TO SHORTEN WAR

America Unlimited Goes on Air Tomorrow.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

What Chicago, the heart of the nation's arsenal, can do to save fighting men's lives and end the war sooner will be shown dramatically in America Unlimited, a new series of broadcasts on W-G-N.

No. 1 priority war plants in this community that have critical needs in man power are coöperating with the army, navy, other war time agencies, THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE and W-G-N in these programs which will show the direct and vital part every war worker plays in achieving victory.

The first broadcast of America Unlimited, sounding the keynote of the series, will be aired from W-G-N's main studio from 9 to 9:30 tomorrow night. Thru original drama and narrative and specially composed music and choral effects the program will unfold a panoramic story of America. It will recall how America was born in conflict, with Valley Forge as a symbol, and show how the nation has mustered strength and courage and sacrifice to meet every great crisis.

Deal with Specific Points.

On successive Mondays America Unlimited will deal with specific war plants in the community—one each week—showing the battle uses of weapons produced by each and then revealing what a direct relation keeping workers on the job in the plants has to success in battle.

The coöperating companies include Republic Steel corporation, making ammunition; Pressed Steel Car Company, Inc., tanks; Ingersoll Steel and Disc division, Borg-Warner corporation, ammunition; Aluminum company of America, landing mats; Electro-Motive division, General Motors, diesel engines; Western Electric company, communications equipment; the Buda company, diesel engines and transportation equipment. Other companies will join later.

Direct Relation to Battle.

America Unlimited will emphasize the parallel between the roles of men at the front and war plant workers. Every G. I. Joe is in the war to the finish—he's often worn out and would like a day off, but must stick to his job, the program will show. The same applies to a lathe worker or any other man or woman in a war plant. The program also will point up concrete needs of each war plant and the opportunities that lie ahead for men and women on war jobs, or who will take them and stick to them.

The vital role of the war worker will be vividly depicted in a full page four color poster titled "Shoulder to Shoulder," and drawn by Carey Orr, to appear on the back page of tomorrow's TRIBUNE. A brawny war worker at the lathe appears in the foreground; beside him a girl works at a punch press. In the background soldiers, sailors, and marines are depicted going into action. The page will be blown up to 30 by 40 inches and distributed for poster use in the war plants.

At 8:30 tomorrow night, prior to the broadcast, a preliminary program will be presented to the studio audience, which will be composed of executives of the participating plants and representatives of the military services and other war agencies participating.

Speakers for Program.

Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE TRIBUNE and president of W-G-N, will welcome the group. Other speakers will be William H. Spencer, regional director, war man power commission; Col. Dan A. Hardt, chairman, production urgency information committee, and Comdr. R. J. Twyman, district civilian personnel chief, 9th naval district. Other guests will be Col. John Slezak, Chicago ordnance district, and Maj. John W. Cummiskey, army air corps. These men and agencies have helped to make possible the program.

Special guests will be Capt. and Mrs. Maurice L. Britt, who are coming up from their home in Arkansas. Capt. Britt was the first American in this war to win all the top military decorations, including the congressional medal of honor. His story, as told to Carl Wiegman, is currently appearing in THE TRIBUNE.

Foote Will Be Soloist.

The musical score for the premiere broadcast was written by Robert Trendler; the story, largely in verse, by Jack La Frandre who will produce the show. Subsequent programs will be produced alternately by Sherman Dryer and La Frandre. Bruce Foote, baritone, will be the soloist tomorrow with support by a 20 voiced choir and the orchestra.

The dramatic cast includes Cliff Soubier, John Barclay, Jerry Walter, Carl Kroenke, William Everett, Rita Ascott, Laurette Fillbrandt, Arnold Robertson, Lee Bennett, John Mallow, and Tom Cafferty.

Following the broadcast the audience will see "Brought to Action," a navy documentary movie about the second battle of the Philippines.

Monday, Feb. 12, will be Republic Steel night.

GOTTA GRIPE? TAKE IT TO PET PEEVE COURT

Gotta pet peeve? Tell W-G-N about it and the station will do what it can to help you get relief. You may even be invited to come to the new Pet Peeve court, aired at 8:15 p. m. Fridays and lay your troubles before Edith Davis and Harold Isbell, the conductors of the new series.

EDITH DAVIS.

They don't pretend to know the solution to the problem of what to do with people who still bark: "Don't you know there's a war on," but they may be able to help you cope with minor annoyers such as persons who won't put the cap back on the toothpaste tube, strangers who try to engage you in conversation on crowded buses, or people who leave well filled ash trays on the arms of chairs.

We've been hearing from blind people and others with poor vision about the news series called Chicago Reporter, aired at 6:45 p. m. weekdays, and 5:15 over WIND. The program is concerned exclusively with local news plus human interest items about Chicagoans. Rog Underhill conducts the broadcasts.

A typical comment: "Since I do not see well enough to read, the Chicago news is a great source of pleasure to me."

Perhaps you've been hearing a quiz kid with an accent recently. He is Gunther Hollander, 14, a student at Hyde Park High school. Gunther came to Chicago recently with his sister, Eva, 17. They escaped from Germany to England five and a half years ago. Their father, who was a judge, and mother when last heard from were in a German concentration camp. Their brother Gary is serving in the United States navy. Another brother, Kurt, is with the Royal Canadian Air Force. Edna Ferber, the novelist and a cousin of their mother, was instrumental in getting the youngsters to Chicago where they are living with friends. They mastered English during their years in Britain.

Joan Davis, favorite radio comedienne, has signed a new contract for four years which will bring her a new sponsor next October at an announced figure of $1,000,000 a year, according to the Associated Press. She plans to continue her current series until June and then will vacation until fall. Since Joan took over the old Rudy Vallee show she has been gaining steadily in the radio surveys.

'GOOD NEWS' IS NEXT SHOW FOR THEATER OF AIR

"Good News," popular musical comedy of the 1920s, will be presented on the Chicago Theater of the Air Saturday, from the stage of Medinah temple before an audience of more than 4500. The program will be broadcast from 9 to 10 p. m. [CWT], over W-G-N, WGNB, and the coast-to-coast Mutual network.

Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, will speak. Robert Trendler, who will conduct the W-G-N Symphony orchestra and chorus for this performance, has written special arrangements of the music.

Betty Mulliner, noted New York radio soprano, will sing the part of Connie Lane, a beautiful co-ed. Bruce Foote, baritone, will sing the role of Tom Marlowe, the football hero who is in love with Connie.

Paul Lukas to Be Guest on Kate Smith Program

Paul Lukas, stage and movie actor, will make a guest appearance on the Kate Smith show over WBBM-CBS at 6 tonight.

THORNTON TWP. HIGH HAS V-DAY PROGRAM READY

A sudden victory for the allies in Europe will not catch the student body of Thornton Township High school, Harvey, unawares. Preparation for a celebration of V-E day was begun early last fall, and a completed radio drama is now recorded and awaiting only for news of victory to be presented in each classroom thru the school's public address system.

The drama, written by Carol VanderKloot of Homewood, was produced thru the efforts of students in many departments, working under direction of Miss Mae Sexauer, director of the school's radio workshop. Titled merely "For V-E day," the play is in three scenes, depicting different reactions to the news in various parts of the world.

First Scene in Paris.

The first scene, laid in Paris, presents an American soldier in conversation with a grateful French woman and a Polish girl hopeful for the rebirth of her country. A Chinese air base is the site of the second scene, where an American flyer and a Chinese woman and collie serve to remind the listener that, while V-E day brings celebration, there is a long fight ahead in the Pacific. The final scene, State and Madison sts., shows typical reactions of the American citizen to the news that one enemy is defeated.

Miss VanderKloot's drama is the result of story conferences with three other students of the creative writing class. Under Miss Sexauer's leadership, the four, Miss VanderKloot, David Huston of Flossmoor, Loring Stevenson of Harvey, and Mary Whitford of Olympia Fields, decided on an outline for the presentation.

A Cappella Choir Sings.

With the script completed, a sound effects committee, headed by Charles Porter of Flossmoor, set to work enlisting the aid of the industrial arts department to build equipment for sound effects and of the music department, where the a cappella choir, led by Walter Armbruster, recorded the hymn "Beautiful Savior." Jack Trester, 14310 S. Parnell av., accordionist from the Thornton orchestra, provided music for street scenes.

CO. G OF ILLINOIS 8TH TO RECEIVE TRIBUNE TROPHY

Col. McCormick to Make Award Feb. 11.

BY GEORGE SCHREIBER.

Presentation of the the Chicago Tribune drill attendance trophy to company G, 8th infantry, Illinois reserve militia, will highligh ceremonies next Sunday in the armory, 3517 Giles av., in commemoration of Lincoln's birthday, Feb. 12.

All former officers of the old 8th infantry, progenitor of the present reserve regiment but now in federal service with other units of the Illinois national guard, and the general public are invited to be present for the afternoon and evening program. Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE TRIBUNE will make the trophy presentation.

To Display Arms, Equipment.

The Lincoln day program will start in the armory at 3 p. m. with an open house lasting to 4:30 o'clock. Col. Clifton E. Jones, regimental commander, with the assistance of the 6th service command, has arranged a public display of equipment and weapons used by the regiments, including field cooking ranges, and telephones and other signal devices.

Between 4:30 and 5:40 p. m. there will be a basketball game on the drill floor, the Big 5s playing the All-Stars, a team made up from the 1st and 2d battalions of the regiment. There is considerable rivalry between the two teams and the contest promises to be spirited.

Plan Vespers at 6 P. M.

At 6 p. m. there will be a vesper service conducted by Capt. Richard C. Keller, regimental chaplain. Music will be furnished by the choir of Beth Eden Baptist church. Capt. Keller is pastor there.

Presentation of the drill attendance trophy will follow a regimental review at which Company G, commanded by Capt. John R. Meadows, will be honored by the entire regiment. The actual presentation will take place at 6:30 o'clock.

Col. Jones Lauds Company G.

"We are very proud of Company G," said Col. Jones. "Those of us who have been in the national guard and later the reserve militia know how hard it is to keep up an attendance record. Many former members of this regiment are now serving the United States in the army and navy. Our turnover here has been large."

Among the invited guests are Gov. Green, Brig. Gen. Leo M. Boyle, the state adjutant general, and commanders of the 6th service command and the Great Lakes Naval Training center.

Col. McCormick to Make Awards.

The trophy to be awarded by Col. McCormick and THE TRIBUNE is for general excellence in attendance at drill. Company G., of which Robert O. Woods is 1st sergeant, placed highest among all those in the 8th regiment and also had the second highest average among the seven militia regiments in the state.

Capt. Dion A. Stams, regimental chemical warfare and public relations officer, is in charge of the program.

HINSDALE OLD TIMERS ROAM MEMORY LANE

Album Is Surrey for 368.

BY ONEY FRED SWEET.

Conning of a community album lent to the enjoyment of 368 Hinsdalians who recently attended the second annual Old Timers' reunion at the Hinsdale Community house.

It was with mixed emotions that residents of the suburb for more than 50 years studied photographs that recalled the long ago. There was the suspicion of moisture about the eyes as a graduation or a wedding picture poignantly brought to mind the glamor of younger days, and there were chuckles over the quaintness of the gay '90s that had seemed so modern and thrilling at the time they were unfolding.

Use Stereopticon Slides.

Showing of the album was made possible thru stereopticon slides with F. H. McElhone, village president, as narrator, and with Mrs. McElhone manipulating the machine that threw the scenes against a curtain on the stage of the Community house auditorium.

The mood of the evening was influenced early by the singing of a group of songs by a period costumed octet led by Mrs. T. C. Powers. Despite the beruffled gowns of the sopranos and contraltos, and the sideburns of the tenors and bassos, heart strings of the listeners could not resist the tug of "Believe Me If All Those Endearing Young Charms" and "Long, Long Ago."

"Youngster" Apologizes.

McElhone, as a resident of the village but 44 years, confessed his timidity at presenting history before so many old timers who might be in a position to correct some of his data. But who could say "This is the Edwards' house" or "This is the Collins' house" when the designation of a home that has changed owners is in accordance with the memories of new and old generations of villagers?

When an auditorium filled with people echoes with laughter at the familiar sight of the Wendell horse, Daisy, plodding down a dusty street, or a meeting of the first Cinch club in 1900, or the fire department's bucket brigade back in 1890, an outsider as an onlooker may well say that here are a people with much in common.

See First Auto, Dancer.

How amazing was the first auto owned by C. W. Melcher in 1904! Hinsdale, watching the car as it met the Burlington train, had entered a new era, and the pioneer exploits of Benjamin Fuller now belonged to the misty past.

McElhone displayed a photograph of Louie Fuller, whose serpentine dance made her internationally famous, but he debunked the legend that Lincoln had ever stayed over night in the Fullersburg that might have been Hinsdale had not the railroad slightly shifted its right of way.

Form 50 Year Club.

The picture show over, George Ruchty Jr., as master of ceremonies, announced the formation of the 50 Year club under the chairmanship of Hazen Dean. Edgar F. Davis, 86, oldest resident present at the reunion, was made honorary president of the new club and was asked to come forward to preside at the cutting of the birthday cake. Used in the cutting of the cake was a Civil war saber that had belonged to the grandfather of Douglass Doolittle, publicity chairman of the reunion.

Frank Krohn was paid tribute for having commuted between Chicago and Hinsdale 55 years. Krohn figured he had been on the "Q" trains 21,300 hours and that his travels back and forth had covered a mileage equivalent to 24 times around the world.

Thorsons Oldest Couple.

Mr. and Mrs. Swante Thorson were found to be the oldest married couple in the audience, their married happiness covering a period of 56 years. Mrs. Sarah Pfeifer, 80, was the oldest woman present.

Jay L. Hench, general chairman of the reunion, and Mrs. Courtney Freeman led the grand march that preceded the square dances and Virginia reels. Mrs. L. C. Gilbertson and Mrs. A. R. Rudd represented the Hinsdale Community house at the reunion. Helping to promote the atmosphere of friendliness was Otis Cushing.

Served on Committees.

Mrs. Robert Gibson encouraged the wearing of period costumes, Marshall Keig was chairman of transportation, and invitations were sent out by Mrs. Courtney Freeman, Mrs. James Walker, A. C. Wolf, J. J. Traynor, and Mrs. T. L. Powell.

Those in the receiving line were Mrs. Luella Holmes, chairman, Krohn, Mrs. P. R. Clarke, Mrs. Lois Shannon, Mrs. L. C. Cortis, George Ruchty Sr., Miss Alice Warren, Mrs. Caroline Dorstewitz, Mrs. Martha Heideman, Mrs. Harvey Dean, Mrs. T. C. Puetz, Miss Gladys Cable, and Mrs. R. M. Clubb.

WEST SUBURBAN YOUTH CONGRESS TO MEET TODAY

The Rev. Rolland W. Schloerb, pastor of Hyde Park Baptist church, will speak this afternoon at a Youth congress sponsored by the Youth Council of Religion at the Naperville Methodist church.

The program will start at 4 o'clock with music led by Edgar Cook. Quentin Lansman, youth leader of the First Evangelical church, will preside.

Elmer Eckdahl, commercial artist, will entertain with sketches during the fellowship period.

They Really Were Good Old Days in Early Hinsdale

"Should Auld Acquaintance Be Forgot?" Not in Hinsdale, where the old timers recently held their 2d annual reunion. Members of the choir who sang a group of old songs were (left to right) Herbert J. Crabb, Donald McKay, Mrs. T. C. Powers, Miss Leah Heidemann, Mrs. Raymond Friend, Mrs. Lloyd Bither, T. C. Powers, and Raleigh Klein. Reflective listeners in the audience included John A. Behm, left, and Bent Meyer in the foreground and, behind them, Miss Emma Ostrum, Miss Selma Ostrum, and Mrs. Emma Agnew.

Project Will Bring Area Up to Date.

If federal funds are forthcoming the board of education this year, or as soon as war time building restrictions are slackened, will launch the most comprehensive building program in Chicago's school history. Plans call for an expenditure of $3,210,000 in the next five years on the west side to bring the area's educational plant up to date. Cost for the city-wide program has been set at almost $30,000,000.

The suggested project is largely one of modernization and replacement, rather than expansion, John C. Christensen, board architect who surveyed building needs, said.

Most Plans Drawn.

Plans for most of the buildings have been drawn, the architect said, an there is reasonable assurance that federal aid will be granted. Christensen asserted that the building program woul not raise the local school tax levy as Washington is expected to provide about 50 per cent of the money needed.

Largest single project slated for the west side is the $500,000 addition to McKinley High school, 2040 Adams st. The addition will include a gymnasium, shops, music rooms, lunchroom, and R. O. T. C. quarters.

Allot Crane $200,000.

Other high school projects scheduled for the west side are a $200,000 rehabilitation job at Crane Tech, 2245 Jackson blvd., and a similar project at Harrison, 2850 24th st., to cost $350,000. At Farragut High, 2239 S. Christiana av., a $250,000 addition will be built.

Only one new building is scheduled for construction on the west side. The 50 year old Ericsson school, 2930 Harrison st., will be razed and replaced by a $305,000, 12 room building.

Will Raze Six Schools.

Six west side schools, pupils of which can be accommodated at nearby modern buildings, will be razed and not replaced. They are King, 2420 Harrison st.; Walsh, 2015 S. Peoria st.; Brainard, 2113 Washburne av.; Chalmers, 1220 S. Fairfield av.; Emerson, 1700 Walnut st., and Froebel, 2021 21st st.

Obsolete portions of two buildings will be razed. In each case newer sections of the school will accommodate the student body. The two are Foster, 720 O'Brien st., and Hammond, 2819 21st pl.

Parts of six buildings will be razed and replaced. They are Beidler, 3151 Walnut st.; Burr, 1621 Wabansia av.; Calhoun, 2850 Jackson blvd.; Cooper, 1624 19th st.; Grant, 2433 Wilcox st., and McLaren, 1500 Flournoy st.

Other Additions in Store.

Additions to four west side grade schools are planned. At Hayes school, 258 N. Leavitt st., eight classrooms will be constructed at a cost of $140,000. At May school, 512 S. La Vergne av., a gymnasium will be built at a cost of $45,000. The addition at Plamondon school, 1525 S. Washtenaw av., will cost $100,000, and the Spalding addition at 1628 Washington blvd. will cost $200,000.

Work on projects at Crane, Harrison, May, McKinley, and Spalding schools will start this year if materials become available. Other projects will be completed in the order of urgency established by Christensen's survey.

To Improve Sanitation.

Commenting on the work outlined, the architect said that the building program is motivated by the threat to safety of children and because sanitation facilities in the buildings, many of which are from 50 to 90 years old, are substandard.

In planning the building program Christensen tried to project population shifts. As a result some of the schools are to be built in areas now comparatively sparsely populated while no improvements are planned for crowded sections where a projection indicates a population shift.

FINDS ART OF 1ST RANK IN AMERICA AFTER 28 YEARS

Why Go to Europe to Study? Artist Asks.

BY ALBERT PUGNER.

America is the place for art and artists. No longer need our painters go abroad to study examples of the masters or to receive the best instruction. It's all right here in America.

Fred Oswald.

Take it from Fred Oswald, Flossmoor, who left Chicago for Europe in 1909, when the grassy slopes of Grant park and the shore line were piles of tin cans, when Wacker dr., lined with chicken coops, was a gathering place for commission merchants, when America, flexing its powerful industrial muscles, paid polite but scarcely enthusiastic attention to pioneers of art.

In Europe 28 Years.

For 28 years Oswald taught, studied, and painted in the old country. His summers were spent in Venice, where he found an ever-present inspiration in the constant play and reflection of light on the canals. He wintered in Germany, where he attended the great Wagnerian festivals and studied at the Royal academy in Munich until World War I.

He watched the stars of Mussolini and Hitler soar, and from a Venetian studio he heard shouts and gunfire as Black Shirts and Communists fought. Many times his hat was knocked off when he failed to remove it as the Italian Fascist flag passed or the party hymn was played.

Heard Duce in Venice.

Oswald first saw Mussolini when the Italian dictator, near the zenith of his power, spoke in Venice. Later in the same city Oswald heard Mussolini extoll the greatness of Italian people and their armies while a short, meek appearing little man—Adolf Hitler—stood to one side and listened.

It is Oswald's belief that Hitler and the militarists got their chief support from the Prussians. "Austrians and Bavarians built their lives around art, music, and the finer things of life, while the Prussians loved military pomp and seemed to be looking for a fight. The common explanation for quarrels in the Royal academy was " 'die Preissen'—the Prussians." Oswald declares that Bavaria and Austria should be separated from Germany as one foundation of future peace.

Remained in Italy.

Oswald never returned to Germany after World War I., but remained in Italy, where he painted, taught English, and wrote translations in the Armenian college in which Lord Byron wrote an Armenian-English dictionary.

At the suggestion of many friends who told him of America's awakening to art, Oswald returned to Chicago in 1937. The chicken coops had been replaced by a wide drive paralleling the river, the tin cans had been converted into spacious parks which stretched along the graceful curves of the Lake Michigan shore. Best of all, to Oswald, were the displays of merchandise containing pottery, furniture, and household utensils in attractive color combinations and in designs which to him reflected a union of art and commercialism.

Many Enter Classes.

Almost from the day of his arrival art enthusiasts sought his instruction. Altho he recently celebrated his 70th birthday, he is busy every week day conducting classes in Flossmoor, Beverly Hills, and Oak Park. Recently he started a new class at the Western Electric Hawthorne club, Cicero.

His classes at the John H. Vanderpoel Art gallery in Beverly Hills have renewed memories of Oswald's student days when he studied under Vanderpoel at the Chicago Art institute in the early 1900s. Oswald also taught at the Chicago institute, where Thomas Hart Benton, former director of the department of painting at the art institute, Kansas City, Mo., was his pupil.

Born in Chicago Heights.

Oswald was born in the town of Bloom, now Chicago Heights. His grandmother, Barbara Sauter, came to Chicago with the family of John Kinzie and moved to Chicago Heights in 1840, where she purchased 40 acres at $1.25 an acre. Oswald's father was postmaster, druggist, and general store proprietor there for 28 years.

"The way to learn to paint is to paint," Oswald said. His students use a brush from the first lesson without extensive preliminary sketching. He is a firm believer in freedom in government as well as in art, declaring, "An imperfect drawing done with freedom has more value than a perfect drawing done with timidity."

He's Fixing Things Up in Glen Ellyn

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Meet one of Chicagoland's youngest Mr. Fix-Its. He's John Woodmansee, 13, of Glen Ellyn, and he is doing a flourishing business repairing household equipment, bicycles, and tricycles. Harassed housewives greeted John's business enterprise with a cry of relief.

HE'S A WIZARD AT 13 MENDING WORN GADGETS

Fix-It Boy Earns War Bond, Too.

When their son, John, announced he had opened a fix-it shop in their basement, Mr. and Mrs. John J. Woodmansee, 634 Hillside av., Glen Ellyn, were somewhat concerned. John, a student at Glenbard Junior High school, is but 13. Now, after John has successfully met the needs of his customers for six weeks, they agree John's faith in himself has been justified.

On his own initiative, John undertook what to many adults would seem a big responsibility. Glen Ellynites with faulty gadgets were informed that "we repair lamps, toasters, electric cords, etc. New cords made." There was, further, an offer to repair bicycles and tricycles, with the promise that service would be prompt and efficient and that there would be "service while you wait on some items."

Not Baffled by Problems.

"John had agreed to do all this repair work before we knew anything about it," said Mrs. Woodmansee. "When we found he wasn't baffled by the mechanical problems by which he soon was confronted we let him have his way."

John always has liked to tinker and he has read all the books on electricity and things mechanical that are available at the Glen Ellyn Public library, his parents explained. With complete self-confidence, he has operated as a fix-it man after school hours and on Saturdays.

Age Proves No Handicap.

Washing machines, vacuum sweepers, and floor lamps that have ceased to function properly predominate among articles that find their way to the basement shop.

At first, John's parents were puzzled as they noted the youthfulness of the shop proprietor, but the boy's self-confidence and his ability to make things work again have overcome their doubts.

One result of John's ingenuity has been $50 in profit that has gone into the purchase of a war bond.

Urban League Names W. Side Drive Leader

Dr. Joshua M. Brown, 2009 Washington blvd., has been chosen director of the west side division in the Chicago Urban league's annual membership campaign. Benjamin Samuels is general chairman of the drive. Ald. Kells [28th] is head of the league's finance committee.

Members of Dr. Brown's planning committee are Mrs. Pearl Rodgers, 215 N. Campbell av.; Mrs. Sadie Gore, 2214 Warren av.; Mrs. Sarah Henderson, 2249 Maypole av.; Mrs. Anna Bowman, 2037 Warren av.; Mrs. Idella Tutwilder, 2136 Maypole av., and Mrs. Maggie Temple, 2746 Maypole av.

The financial goal of the campaign is $40,000, approximately half of the total needs for the year. Funds from the Community Chest will supplement the budget.

The women's division of the league, which is city-wide in scope, will present Dorothy Maynor in concert at the Civic Opera house April 8. Proceeds will go to the campaign fund.

For the last 10 years the Urban league has maintained a west side office. Mrs. Rachel Ridley is in charge of headquarters in this area, located at 2105 Washington blvd.

Battle Exploit Brings D. F. C. to West Sider

At recent ceremonies at a 15th air force base in Italy the distinguished flying cross was presented to Lt. Walter Hinton, 29, Glen Ellyn. He was decorated for action last August when he participated in an escort mission providing fighter cover for allied heavy bombers attacking installations in Germany.

Lt. Arthur Hinton.

After successfully providing escort to the target, Lt. Hinton turned back with his wingman in order to cover a number of crippled bombers trailing the force.

Ten minutes after escort for the stragglers was initiated, six enemy aircraft were observed making an attack on two B-17s five miles to the west. Instantly breaking to the right, Lt. Hinton led his element against the numerically superior formation, repulsing the attack. The allied planes were enabled to return to their home base without further aggression. During the encounter he destroyed one enemy aircraft, a Messerschmitt 109.

Flying from his Italian base, Lt. Hinton has completed more than 47 missions over Germany, Hungary, Romania, Austria, Yugoslavia, and Czechoslovakia. He also is credited with bringing down a Focke-Wulf plane July 26 near Zwolfaxing, Austria.

Lt. Hinton entered the air forces in November, 1941, and was awarded his pilot's wings at Brooks field in Texas in July, 1942. He was transferred overseas last January. He also has been awarded the air medal and four oak leaf clusters.

YANK SEES HIS FILL OF DEAD FOR LIFETIME

All Willis Lenehan Wants Is Home.

BY LARRY RUE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS — "We've seen enough dead Americans on the battlefields of Europe to last us a lifetime and we hope to go back home as soon as the job is finished here."

That is what Pvt. Willis E. Lenehan, whose mother resides at 5305 Quincy st., told THE TRIBUNE recently while he was spending two days furlough in Paris.

Meet in Red Cross.

Pvt. Lenehan, who was interviewed while sipping coffee and eating doughnuts at the Red Cross club, Rainbow corner, told of 240 German prisoners being sent to his post in Germany for evacuation to the rear.

Their morale, he said, was extremely low. They were dressed in varied uniforms, including one American, and they admitted they had been living mainly on black bread and were very hungry.

Nazis Are Discouraged.

There was nothing pugnacious about them and some admitted that when they had the advantage of surprise they were willing to fight, but got discouraged when the Americans got the upper hand.

Lenehan, who was formerly assistant cashier with the Continental Insurance company, 135 S. La Salle st., added, however, that German SS elite troops are the most determined fighters and among the toughest.

BERWYN YANK COMMISSIONED IN FIELD, HOME

Holder of the bronze star and the Purple Heart, Lt. James Kecheisen is returning from Italy to the United States for temporary duty after 26 months overseas. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Kecheisen, 3628 Wesley av., Berwyn. A member of the medical corps, he went overseas as a private and earned his bars in the field in the medical administration corps.

Lt. Kecheisen received the bronze star for rescuing a wounded man on Mount Battaglia in Italy. During a heavy shelling, he saw three men hit by shell fragments. All litter bearers available were busy carrying back other casualties. Proceeding up the slope in the deep, sticky mud, Lt. Keckeisen found two of the men dead. The third had been badly injured in the knee and was unable to walk. He carried the wounded man 250 yards to a battalion aid station.

At Casablanca First.

Entering the army in July, 1942, Lt. Keckeisen was transferred to North Africa the following November. His first post was at Casablanca, where he worked in an evacuation hospital.

Later, as section sergeant in an ambulance company, he participated in the Sicilian invasion and followed the campaign thru Sicily. On the Anzio beachhead last February, he was wounded while removing an injured man to an aid station under heavy fire. Lt. Keckeisen was evacuated to a hospital in Naples for treatment, and rejoined his outfit May 6.

He received his commission last June and was assigned to the 350th [Battle Mountain] infantry regiment on July 1, while the regiment was in the vicinity of Volterra.

Evacuated Eight Wounded.

Near Mount Grande, Lt. Keckeisen further distinguished himself by supervising the evacuation of eight wounded men from Hill 9 during a counter-attack.

Receiving a report that there were eight casualties on the hill, he took litter bearers with him to the position under attack. After sending three of the wounded men back to the aid station with the stretcher bearers, he remained for five hours under fire on the hill, treating the other wounded soldiers. He then secured German prisoners to carry down the remaining five casualties on extra litters which had been brought to the hill.

Lt. Keckeisen was graduated from Morton High school in 1938. Before his induction he was employed by the Western Electric company.

PROVISO GAINS TITLE TO NYA MACHINE SHOP

Proviso High school recently received full title to the building and equipment of a machine shop constructed several years ago on the school grounds by the national youth administration, according to the original agreement.

At the time of the disbanding of the NYA, the building was loaned to the school by an agreement dated Aug. 20, 1943, and regular classes have been conducted there by Proviso since. The recent transfer revokes the loan agreement and transfers full title to the building and its equipment to Proviso High school.

The building and machinery are valued at approximately $100,000. These facilities, added to the $75,000 machine shop in the main building, give Proviso an unusually extensive setup for the training of prospective machinists.

Lt. Col. Stephens.

A former student of the University of Illinois, he became an aviation cadet in May, 1940, completing his training at Kelly field in Texas in December of the same year. The squadron which he commands is part of the oldest heavy bombardment group in the Mediterranean theater.

More than 25,000 miles of combat flight in the European theater is the record achieved by Lt. Herbert Zaltzman, co-pilot of the Flying Fortress, Roanoke Magician. The son of Mrs. C. A. Zaltzman, 3551 W. 13th pl., he recently was awarded a fifth cluster to the air medal. During a recent air offensive aimed at Nazi oil resources he participated in assaults on Merseburg, Lutzkendorf, and Hamburg oil refineries. Six times he has helped to fly his Fortress back to its base after flak has knocked out one or more engines.

JOHN SULLIVAN PLUGS IN LAST CALL TO POLICE

After 39 years as a member of the Chicago police department, Patrolman-operator John G. Sullivan, 2133 S. Homan av., has turned in his badge. Sixty-three years old, he had reached the limit of his service under the compulsory retirement law. Sullivan, however, does not intend to "retire" in any real sense of the word. Still in vigorous health, he will step into another job as checker for the American Airlines.

John G. Sullivan.

During his years as a switchboard operator, Sullivan has seen many changes in methods of police procedure. As a young man working signal boards of various stations in the metropolitan area, he used to take calls from policemen who at that time had to report regularly from call boxes on their beats. The whole system was a far cry from the two way radios and the teletype machines now in use, Sullivan said, yet he is a staunch admirer of the men who worked under the old methods. Case for case, he believes, they "got their man" just about as frequently as do modern policemen.

Joins Force in 1906.

Joining the force July 3, 1906, Sullivan was assigned to the old Brighton Park police station. After that he worked as operator at several stations until 1911, when he was assigned to Maxwell st.

"Maxwell st. was a good district at that time," Sullivan recalled. "Holy Family, the old Jesuit parish, was in its prime. There used to be such crowds attending the services that people would have to wait in line on the sidewalks. And believe it or not, four sodalities flourished in the district."

Sees Change in Maxwell Street.

Prohibition, however, introduced a new era, and when Sullivan left the district in 1920, the whole complexion of the neighborhood had changed.

From Maxwell st., Sullivan went to the West Chicago station. There he met Capt. Matthew Zimmer who, in Sullivan's opinion, was "one of the greatest criminal investigators ever seen in Chicago."

Crime Files More Complex Now.

When Capt. Zimmer was made deputy superintendent of detectives in 1923, he placed Sullivan in charge of the homicide record bureau in the loop. Crime files at that period were far less detailed than now, and Sullivan set himself to the task of improving methods of record keeping.

In 1927 a major crime bureau was established to serve as a central clearing house for records of all felonies in the city. For putting the bureau on an efficient basis, Sullivan was given extra compensation during a two year period.

Operates West Side Boards.

In 1931 Sullivan left his downtown post. Until almost three years ago he operated the signal boards of west side police stations. Then in July, 1942, he again was transferred to the loop where, until his retirement, he served at OCD headquarters in the city hall.

Born and raised on the west side, Sullivan and his wife have lived in the same neighborhood since their marriage Oct. 28, 1908. The Sullivans have one daughter, Mrs. Nicholas Wittmer, and two grandchildren, Jean Marie Wittmer, 6, and Kay Wittmer, 3.

ON SHORT WAVES

LONDON.

The North American service of the BBC from London includes the following programs today.

W-G-N TO SOUND CALL TO JOBS TO SHORTEN WAR

America Unlimited Goes on Air Tomorrow.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

What Chicago, the heart of the nation's arsenal, can do to save fighting men's lives and end the war sooner will be shown dramatically in America Unlimited, a new series of broadcasts on W-G-N.

No. 1 priority war plants in this community that have critical needs in man power are coöperating with the army, navy, other war time agencies, THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE and W-G-N in these programs which will show the direct and vital part every war worker plays in achieving victory.

The first broadcast of America Unlimited, sounding the keynote of the series, will be aired from W-G-N's main studio from 9 to 9:30 tomorrow night. Thru original drama and narrative and specially composed music and choral effects the program will unfold a panoramic story of America. It will recall how America was born in conflict, with Valley Forge as a symbol, and show how the nation has mustered strength and courage and sacrifice to meet every great crisis.

Deal with Specific Points.

On successive Mondays America Unlimited will deal with specific war plants in the community—one each week—showing the battle uses of weapons produced by each and then revealing what a direct relation keeping workers on the job in the plants has to success in battle.

The coöperating companies include Republic Steel corporation, making ammunition; Pressed Steel Car Company, Inc., tanks; Ingersoll Steel and Disc division, Borg-Warner corporation, ammunition; Aluminum company of America, landing mats; Electro-Motive division, General Motors, diesel engines; Western Electric company, communications equipment; the Buda company, diesel engines and transportation equipment. Other companies will join later.

Direct Relation to Battle.

America Unlimited will emphasize the parallel between the roles of men at the front and war plant workers. Every G. I. Joe is in the war to the finish—he's often worn out and would like a day off, but must stick to his job, the program will show. The same applies to a lathe worker or any other man or woman in a war plant. The program also will point up concrete needs of each war plant and the opportunities that lie ahead for men and women on war jobs, or who will take them and stick to them.

The vital role of the war worker will be vividly depicted in a full page four color poster titled "Shoulder to Shoulder," and drawn by Carey Orr, to appear on the back page of tomorrow's TRIBUNE. A brawny war worker at the lathe appears in the foreground; beside him a girl works at a punch press. In the background soldiers, sailors, and marines are depicted going into action. The page will be blown up to 30 by 40 inches and distributed for poster use in the war plants.

At 8:30 tomorrow night, prior to the broadcast, a preliminary program will be presented to the studio audience, which will be composed of executives of the participating plants and representatives of the military services and other war agencies participating.

Speakers for Program.

Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE TRIBUNE and president of W-G-N, will welcome the group. Other speakers will be William H. Spencer, regional director, war man power commission; Col. Dan A. Hardt, chairman, production urgency committee, and Comdr. R. J. Twyman, district civilian personnel chief, 9th naval district. Other guests will be Col. John Slezak, Chicago ordnance district, and Maj. John W. Cummiskey, army air corps. These men and agencies have helped to make possible the program.

Special guests will be Capt. and Mrs. Maurice L. Britt, who are coming up from their home in Arkansas. Capt. Britt was the first American in this war to win all the top military decorations, including the congressional medal of honor. His story, as told to Carl Wiegman, is currently appearing in THE TRIBUNE.

Foote Will Be Soloist.

The musical score for the premiere broadcast was written by Robert Trendler; the story, largely in verse, by Jack La Frandre who will produce the show. Subsequent programs will be produced alternately by Sherman Dryer and La Frandre. Bruce Foote, baritone, will be the soloist tomorrow with support by a 20 voiced choir and the orchestra.

The dramatic cast includes Cliff Soubier, John Barclay, Jerry Walter, Carl Kroenke, William Everett, Rita Ascott, Laurette Fillbrandt, Arnold Robertson, Lee Bennett, John Mallow, and Tom Cafferty.

Following the broadcast the audience will see "Brought to Action," a navy documentary movie about the second battle of the Philippines.

GOTTA GRIPE? TAKE IT TO PET PEEVE COURT

W-G-N Tries to Give You Relief.

Gotta pet peeve? Tell W-G-N about it and the station will do what it can to help you get relief. You may even be invited to come to the new Pet Peeve court, aired at 8:15 p. m. Fridays and lay your troubles before Edith Davis and Harold Isbell, the conductors of the new series.

EDITH DAVIS.

They don't pretend to know the solution to the problem of what to do with people who still bark: "Don't you know there's a war on," but they may be able to help you cope with minor annoyers such as persons who won't put the cap back on the toothpaste tube, strangers who try to engage you in conversation on crowded buses, or people who leave well filled ash trays on the arms of chairs.

We've been hearing from blind people and others with poor vision about the news series called Chicago Reporter, aired at 6:45 p. m. weekdays, and 5:15 over WIND. The program is concerned exclusively with local news plus human interest items about Chicagoans. Rog Underhill conducts the broadcasts.

Perhaps you've been hearing a quiz kid with an accent recently. He is Gunther Hollander, 14, a student at Hyde Park High school. Gunther came to Chicago recently with his sister, Eva, 17. They escaped from Germany to England five and a half years ago. Their father, who was a judge, and mother when last heard from were in a German concentration camp. Their brother Gary is serving in the United States navy. Another brother, Kurt, is with the Royal Canadian Air Force. Edna Ferber, the novelist and a cousin of their mother, was instrumental in getting the youngsters to Chicago where they are living with friends. They mastered English during their years in Britain.

MORE DURABLE PAINT MADE FOR POST-WAR USE

Will Dry More Quickly and Cost Less.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

From those who are experts in the production of paints, varnish, and lacquer products come indications of developments that can be expected in post-war products. Apparently these developments will follow closely on the trend of the years immediately before the war with emphasis on the following classifications:

Paints will answer the popular demand for quick drying finishes and provide a higher hiding power with the maximum of durability and appearance value.

Paints will have a greater water resistance and colors will satisfy the inevitable post-war mood for brightness.

Will Resist Fire.

And last comes the promise of specialties such as fire resistant materials, mildew preventatives, paint deodorants, and reinforcing oils and liquids which will facilitate the painting of old gloss surfaces and varnished work.

While on the subject of paint, if you are a novice at painting and planning to do over some furniture or woodwork, you will find the chances of a satisfactory job are better if you contact your paint dealer for some first hand advice.

Tell your dealer just what you want to do and the kind of wood you are going to work on.

Must Not Hurry Job.

Make it a hard and fast rule that you won't hurry on any painting task and always let filler and undercoating dry thoroly. Have sandpaper on hand to smooth any rough spots before you apply enamel, and use this sandpaper lightly.

Always work in a room which is well ventilated and as free from dust as possible. Try to keep yourself free from interruptions while painting.

When you buy material in narrow mouthed or small containers you will find it will facilitate your work to collect some wide mouthed cans with tight fitting lids into which you can pour the entire contents of the paint and enamel tins before you start.

New Type Furnace.

There is a new type furnace which has been developed for post-war homes. This furnace needs no basement since it is set in the floor itself, and no ducts are needed.

In the average five room house air is warmed, sterilized, and circulated three to five times an hour and this air flow not only affords warm floors but distributes heat from floor to ceiling. Gas, oil, and butane models will be available in these floor furnaces. The same manufacturers also will offer other types of heating, including many space heater models and many sizes of central heating plants and water heaters.

Offer Free Advice.

These manufacturers offer a free booklet which gives information on heating of tomorrow.

Where space is crowded in a small home or apartment no unit is more helpful than a modern clothes dryer which will close flat against a wall. One such model, which will open to give about seven feet of drying space, is of hard, smooth wood with lacquer finish.

HEARTIES JOIN IN BOY SCOUTS' JUBILEE WEEK

Allen Sea Scouts to Hold Exhibit.

Typical of the 110 Chicago Sea Scout ships which will join the Boy Scouts in celebration of their 35th anniversary the week beginning Thursday in the S. S. S. Capt. Allen Clark.

At present the boys are working on an exhibit to be placed in a store window at Belmont and Central avs. during Boy Scout week. The display will be built around the nation-wide theme, "Scouts of the World—Brothers Together."

Named for Early Skipper.

The ship, one of the oldest on the northwest side, was named in honor of an early lakes skipper. Its 24 active members meet weekly in ship's quarters, 5934 Addison st. Officers include Henry Mazurek, 3223 N. Nagle av., skipper; William Deger, 3324 N. Newcastle av., 1st mate; Thomas Weltzer, 2704 Giddings st., 2d mate, and James Roessl, 5810 Henderson st., quartermaster.

An outgrowth of the Boy Scouts, Sea Scouting is a program for older boys—15 years and up. Its ultimate objective, like Boy Scouting, is citizenship training and character building. The main difference between the two is the type of activities and the uniforms.

During the summer various Chicago ships [groups] take turns using the cutters maintained for them by the Chicago Boy Scout council.

In winter classes are held at weekly meetings. The boys are taught sea history, navigation, piloting, marlinspike seamanship. They practice signaling, rope tying, drilling, and other subjects relative to marine activities. At present the S. S. S. Capt. Clark has 21 members in service—each in the navy or the merchant marine.

List Active Scouts.

Active Scouts of the Clark include Roland Christensen, 6225 School st.; Tim Toomey, 3057 N. Natchez st.; Jerome Pilarski, 5332 Newport av., and Edward Fiester, 7540 Addison st., all boatswain's mates.

Elmer Sereda, 3724 N. Oketo av., ordinary; Norbert Korcz, 5758 Warwick av.; Edwin Gorczynski, 5337 Cornelia av.; Raymond Czarny, 2820 N. Monitor av.; Henry Bochnik, 2818 N. Monitor av.; Sidney Stafford, 2830 N. Merrimac av.; Ralph Landsman, 3211 Sunnyside av.; John Klaska, 7440 Addison av.; Eugene Smuda, 2610 N. Meade av.; Anson Cranmer, 2810 N. Merrimac av.; Robert Skiba, 3845 Paris av.; Myron Price, 3636 N. Odell av.; Jack Seldon, 2900 N. Montclare av., and Forest Monkman, 5114 Bernice st., all apprentice Sea Scouts.

Thomas Heid, 3716 N. Pontiac av., and Henry Hansen, 3909 N. Pittsburgh av., are recruits.

13 WILL ENTER ADULT UNIT OF ROYAL LEAGUE

Thirteen northwest siders will be graduated from the junior to the adult department of the Royal League at ceremonies Thursday evening in the central Masonic temple. They are Walter J. Simo, 4640 Keystone av., Alfred Poxiechowski, 2340 Altgeld st., Norbert Blach, 3411 N. Central Park av., Margaret Shure, 3829 N. Pioneer av., Armell R. Klonowski, 5819 Ainslie st.

Phyllis Ann Gonyo, 3236 Hirsch st., Betty Neurauter, 2963 Nelson st., Doris Gnaedinger, 4053 N. Kedzie av., Juanita Jane Cairo, 1740 N. Rutherford av., Betty Jane Barth, 3717 Tripp av., and Ruth Stahlhofer, 4438 N. Sacramento av.

The Columbus council, Royal League, will observe its 58th anniversary with a ball Saturday night at 4221 Irving Park rd. Committee members include Ralph Thurman, William Kuehner, John Besch, Carl Margola, A. F. Von Plache, Margaret Peter, and Marie Besch.

Will Wed Saturday

LILLIAN THORNLEY.
[Hoffman Photo.]

Lillian Thornley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Thornley, 3903 Fullerton av., will become the bride of Alexander P. Dore, son of Mrs. Albert Schmitt, 559 Fullerton av., at 7 p. m. Saturday in her parents' home. A reception will be held at the Kelvyn Park Masonic temple. Miss Thornley, graduate of Foreman High school, has won numerous laurels in northwest area swimming meets.

Ahoy, Landlubbers! Let's Be Off to Sea

Jim Roessl, quartermaster, inspects the Yankee clipper ship model which he built while a crew member of the Sea Scout ship, Capt. Allen Clark, which meets at 5934 Addison st. The rank of quartermaster takes time and study to attain, therefore members of the ship were proud that out of the five rankings awarded in Chicago last year, three went to fellow crewmen.

During the winter Sea Scout activities take the form of classes. Teaching the boys the various sections of a boat is William Deger, 1st mate. Attending the lecture (1st row, left to right) are Elmer Sereda, Raymond Dzarny, and Henry Bochnik. In the 2d row are Jerome Pilarski, Norbert Korcz, Tim Toomey, Roland Christensen, and Ed Fiester. First Mate Deger is awaiting call into the merchant marine.

STEINMETZ HIGH WILL HOLD BOND SHOW SUNDAY

War Hero and Kelly to Take Part.

Steinmetz High school, which set out to purchase a hospital plane thru war bond sales, and later added 11 more hospital planes and a B-29 to its shopping list, will sponsor a war bond show at 2:30 p. m. next Sunday in the school auditorium, 3030 N. Mobile av.

The idea for the show originated with students in the Fix-it club, a school civic organization. Members of the club, along with the 3,500 students in the school, had been coöperating 100 per cent on the drive when the thought came to them, as Sima Paloian, club president put it, "to reward the people for making their purchase."

Committee Goes to Work.

A committee headed by Miss Paloian, Matilda Ottaviano, John Lowcewicz, and Don Delnick went to work. Approval was granted by the principal, Matthew Fitzgerald, the board of education, and the treasury department . . . plus full coöperation.

Arrangements were completed and Steinmetz found it will be welcoming a host of visiting celebrities taking part in the show. Among those appearing will be Mayor Kelly as OCD coördinator; James McCabe, president board of education; William McFetridge, director of OCD salvage for the city; Ted Weems' orchestra, and Philip Reagan, radio and movie singer.

War Hero to Appear.

In addition, the treasury department has promised to send a war hero and a movie star. Philip Maxwell of THE TRIBUNE will be master of ceremonies.

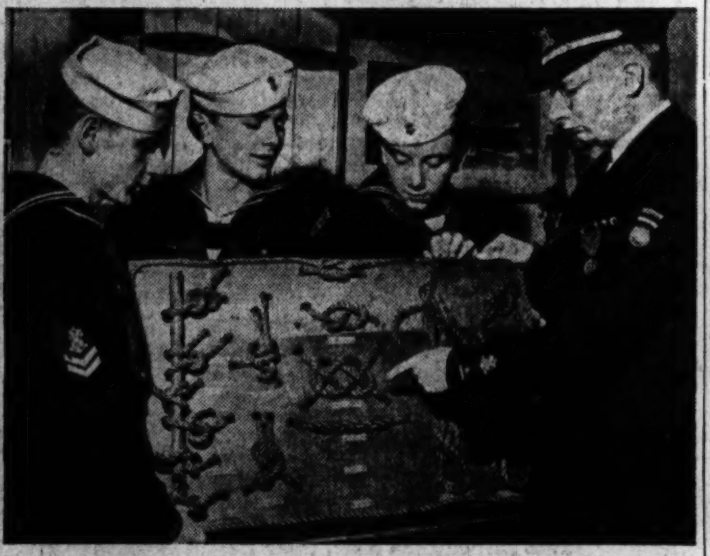
Last fall, when Steinmetz started its war bond drive, the goal was set at $125,000. Now, according to Fitzgerald, the drive is nearing the half million mark. He said: "We'll not stop there. We hope to sell at least 1½ million dollars' worth of bonds before we quit."

Students began by selling to small purchasers, their classmates and parents. Later the drive gained the aid of Mrs. M. F. Stein, PTA president, and Mrs. Frank McCarthy, school publicity director.

Women of Moose.

The Albany Park chapter, Women of the Moose, will meet at 8:30 p. m. Tuesday at 4350 N. Pulaski rd.

Taking the formal investiture into the ship are Edwin Gorczynski (left) and Sidney Stafford. Assisting at the ceremony are 1st Mate Deger and Henry Mazurek, skipper.



As with Boy Scouts, out of which they grew, Sea Scouts learn to tie various knots. Jerome Pilarski, Ed Fiester, Tim Toomey take a few pointers from Skipper Mazurek. Sea Scouts are assisting Boy Scouts in celebration of their 35th anniversary during the week beginning Thursday.

Des Plaines Firemen to Hold Dance Feb. 17

The Des Plaines fire department will hold its 27th annual dance Saturday night, Feb. 7, at Rand park fieldhouse. Funds will be used to purchase fire fighting equipment.

Logan Square Kiwanis Club Installs Officers

Earle S. Rappaport has been installed as president of the Logan Square Kiwanis club. Other new officers are Dr. Eric G. Tavs, vice president; John Milet, secretary.

18 BOYS, 9 PAIRS OF BROTHERS, MEET OVERSEAS

It's a Small World, and a Happy Day.

The old expression, "It's a small world," would receive hearty confirmation from nine pairs of northwest side brothers who recently have run into each other thousands of miles from home.

Perhaps most surprised of the group was Pvt. Anthony Plescia, who came in from washing his clothes in a New Britain stream to find his brother, Corp. Vincent, sitting on his cot. Anthony had been in New Britain some time, but had not yet learned that his brother had left California. The boys are the sons of Mrs. Rose Plescia, 4355 W. Palmer st.

Meet at Army Hospital.

An army hospital in England was the site of the first meeting in three years for Corp. Ray E. Fritchie and his brother, Sgt. Robert M. Fritchie, sons of Mrs. Mary Fritchie, 3208 N. Kildare av.

Their meeting occurred after Robert, newly arrived in England from the United States, heard from home that his brother had been returned to an English hospital from Belgium for an operation. Thru the Red Cross, he located the hospital and on his first pass surprised Ray. Both boys are graduates of Schurz High school.

First Meeting in Two Years.

Another reunion in England took place Dec. 30 when Corp. Norbert Piasecki, ball turret gunner on a bomber, and Sgt. Edwin Piasecki, infantry man who has been wounded twice, spent eight days together for their first meeting in two years. They are the sons of Mrs. Anthony Piasecki, 6264 Niagara av.

The Palazzo Venezia in Rome was the site of a meeting of Sgt. Charles Stachula and Corp. Raymond Stachula, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Stachula, 2119 Laurel st. In a letter to their sister, Mrs. Estelle Philipski, 5307 Belden av., Raymond wrote, "I was looking up at the big balcony where Mussolini used to beat his brains out when a fellow tapped me on the shoulder and said, 'Hey, bud, got the time?' I turned around. Yep, you guessed it, it was Charlie.

Had a Swell Time.

"Boy, were we happy! We danced around for a while and hugged each other and exchanged news. We sure had a swell time for the next couple days."

Sgt. Stachula, stationed near Rome with the air forces, has been overseas three years. Raymond, in the infantry, went overseas a year and a half ago.

For the third time in two years, Corp. Irving and Corp. Leon Stoller met at an overseas station, this time amid bursting enemy shells in the Philippines. The sons of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Stoller, 2716 Crystal st., they unexpectedly bumped into each other in Brisbane, Australia, and again at Rockhampton. They missed each other by two days when Irving's unit set sail for the Philippines where they later met again.

A. A. F. Arranges Meeting.

The army air forces arranged the overseas meeting of Casimar and Ed Strempek, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Karol Strempek, 5041 W. Altgeld st., for orders transferred Casimar from the artillery to Ed's B-26 squadron, stationed at a 9th air force bomber base in France.

Two pairs of brothers were reunited at 8th air force bomber stations in England. At the airdrome occupied by the 401st bomber group Sgt. Chester Szorc, stationed there as supervisor of maintenance and repair for several Flying Fortresses, and his brother, Pvt. Nestor Szorc, gunner in an anti-aircraft artillery battalion recently arrived in England, met for the first time in more than three years. Both boys' peace time address is 820 N. Marshfield av.

Two Others Meet.

At another 8th air force base, a reunion took place when Corp. Edmund N. Skiba, a code clerk, visited his brother, Sgt. Chester Skiba, an assistant crew chief of the 100th bomber group. The brothers, graduates of Schurz High school, are the sons of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Skiba, 5501 N. Luna av., where Edmund's wife also lives. Mrs. Chester Skiba lives at 3748 N. Spaulding av.

Two other northwest side brothers, Corp. Aaron Baron and Lt. Herman Baron, see each other daily in Italy, where they are members of the same crew of a Liberator with the 15th air force. After two years in service the boys were reunited last August at Boise, Idaho, where they finished training together and shipped to Italy together, after a furlough with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Baron, 4633 N. Drake st.

TWO N. W. SIDE SUBURBS 2D, 3D IN NEW HOMES

Two northwest suburbs, Des Plaines and Franklin Park, ranked second and third in the number and valuation of new homes built last year in all Chicago suburbs, a recent survey disclosed.

Two hundred forty-one new homes, valued at $1,161,683, were built in Des Plaines in 1944, and in Franklin Park 237 homes valued at $1,306,590 were built. Gary, Ind., was the only suburb with more home building last year.

Park Ridge was in sixth place among all suburbs with 143 homes valued at $773,200. Bensenville held 16th place with 43 homes having a valuation of $238,474, and Palatine was in 23d place with 21 homes valued at $121,950.

'Tis a Small World After All

Corp. Edmund Skiba (left) and Sgt. Chester W. Skiba are among nine pairs of northwest side brothers whom the fortunes of war have reunited on foreign soil. The Skibas met at an 8th air force bomber station in England.

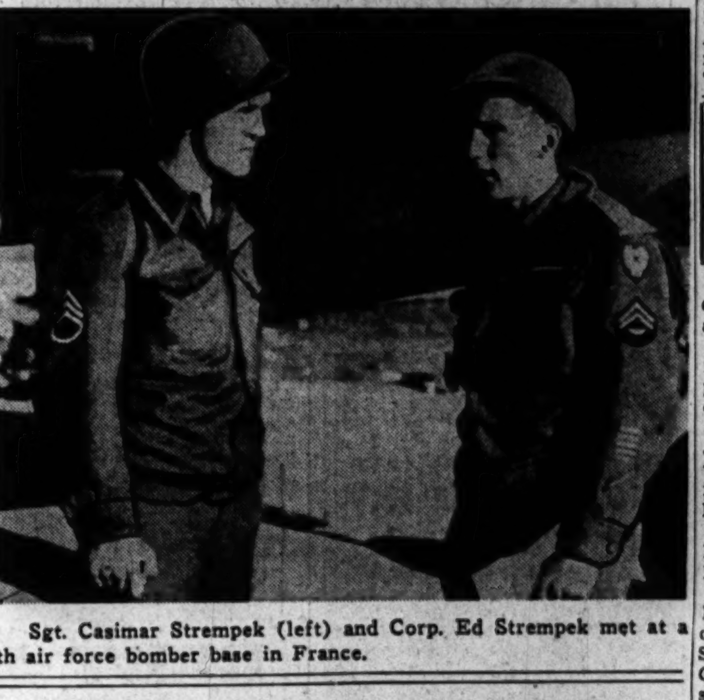
Pvt. Nestor Szorc (left) and Sgt. Chester Szorc were reunited at an 8th air force bomber station in England.

Pvt. Anthony Plescia (left) and Corp. Vincent Plescia met on New Britain after two years of separation.



Sgt. Casimar Strempek (left) and Corp. Ed Strempek met at a 9th air force bomber base in France.

Tuberculosis Clinic.

The Tuberculosis institute will hold a clinic Feb. 19 at the Des Plaines health center, 1561 Ellinwood av.

The Jack and Jill players will present "Once Upon a Clothesline" at 10 a. m. and 2 p. m. Saturday in Mary Wilson house, Park Ridge.

IRVING PARK Y SEEKS $120,000 FOR BUILDING

Expansion Program Under Way.

Plans for the expansion of the Irving Park Y. M. C. A., 4251 Irving Park rd., at a cost of $120,000, have been made by the future plans committee of the board of directors and a campaign to raise the building fund already is underway.

The directors, anticipating the Irving Park Y will add several hundred young people to its rolls in the next few months, have drawn tentative plans for a four story brick building adjoining the present structure for use as a boys' activities center.

Estimate Building at $75,000.

The new building will cost an estimated $75,000, and $25,000 will be spent for alterations to the present building to provide quarters for girls' activities. In addition, the organization contemplates spending $20,000 to erect four wooden bunkhouses at the Hastings Y. M. C. A. camp, 12 miles northwest of Waukegan.

W. S. Miller, executive secretary, said $15,000 already has been raised toward the building fund and the drive probably would continue until October. If priorities can be obtained, he said, construction may begin early next year. If priorities cannot be obtained, the expansion program will become a post-war project.

Plan Basement, First Floor.

Only the plans for the basement and first floor of the boys' activities building have been completed by the board of directors. The basement will contain a handicraft room, tool storage room, the boiler, and shower and locker rooms. The first floor will contain a social room, several clubrooms, and office space.

Two old residences adjoining the Y. M. C. A. have been purchased as a site for the boys' center, which will utilize the swimming pool and gymnasium at the south end of the present building, Miller said.

The Irving Park Y. M. C. A., with a membership of 4,000 last Oct. 1, has outgrown the physical equipment contained in the building erected in 1926, Miller said. Of the total membership, 1,605 are boys and girls under 18, and 521 of these pay no dues.

Expect Membership Rise.

The Y now grants free membership privileges to all boys and girls whose fathers are in military services, and this is expected to increase the membership by several hundred. This action was taken only recently by the directors and, said Miller, its full effect has not yet been determined.

Because it is located in an area composed largely of family dwellings and draws from a population of nearly 225,000, Irving Park Y logically expects to become an even greater center of community and youth activities in the years ahead and the expansion program is intended to help the organization prepare to meet its full task in the future, Miller said.

Bunkhouses to Sleep 80.

In recent years more than 500 young people have been accommodated each summer at Hastings camp. The new bunkhouses will provide additional sleeping quarters for 80 young people and eight adults supervisors.

Decision to build the boys' activities center and alter the present building was made because girls' activities do not include many athletic facilities needed by boys and the present structure could be converted more easily to girls' needs, Miller said.

W-G-N TO SOUND CALL TO JOBS TO SHORTEN WAR

America Unlimited Goes on Air Tomorrow.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

What Chicago, the heart of the nation's arsenal, can do to save fighting men's lives and end the war sooner will be shown dramatically in America Unlimited, a new series of broadcasts on W-G-N.

No. 1 priority war plants in this community that have critical needs in man power are coöperating with the army, navy, other war time agencies, THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE and W-G-N in these programs which will show the direct and vital part every war worker plays in achieving victory.

The first broadcast of America Unlimited, sounding the keynote of the series, will be aired from W-G-N's main studio from 9 to 9:30 tomorrow night. Thru original drama and narrative and specially composed music and choral effects the program will unfold a panoramic story of America. It will recall how America was born in conflict, with Valley Forge as a symbol, and show how the nation has mustered strength and courage and sacrifice to meet every great crisis.

Deal with Specific Points.

On successive Mondays America Unlimited will deal with specific war plants in the community—one each week—showing the battle uses of weapons produced by each and then revealing what a direct relation keeping workers on the job in the plants has to success in battle.

The coöperating companies include Republic Steel corporation, making ammunition; Pressed Steel Car Company, Inc., tanks; Ingersoll Steel and Disc division, Borg-Warner corporation, ammunition; Aluminum company of America, landing mats; Electro-Motive division, General Motors, diesel engines; Western Electric company, communications equipment; the Buda company, diesel engines and transportation equipment. Other companies will join later.

Direct Relation to Battle.

America Unlimited will emphasize the parallel between the roles of men at the front and war plant workers. Every G. I. Joe is in the war to the finish—he's often worn out and would like a day off, but must stick to his job, the program will show. The same applies to a lathe worker or any other man or woman in a war plant. The program also will point up concrete needs of each war plant and the opportunities that lie ahead for men and women on war jobs, or who will take them and stick to them.

The vital role of the war worker will be vividly depicted in a full page four color poster titled "Shoulder to Shoulder," and drawn by Carey Orr, to appear on the back page of tomorrow's TRIBUNE. A brawny war worker at the lathe appears in the foreground; beside him a girl works at a punch press. In the background soldiers, sailors, and marines are depicted going into action. The page will be blown up to 30 by 40 inches and distributed for poster use in the war plants.

At 8:30 tomorrow night, prior to the broadcast, a preliminary program will be presented to the studio audience, which will be composed of executives of the participating plants and representatives of the military services and other war agencies participating.

Speakers for Program.

Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE TRIBUNE and president of W-G-N, will welcome the group. Other speakers will be William H. Spencer, regional director, war man power commission; Col. Dan A. Hardt, chairman, production urgency information committee, and Comdr. R. J. Twyman, district civilian personnel chief, 9th naval district. Other guests will be Col. John Slezak, Chicago ordnance district, and Maj. John W. Cummiskey, army air corps. These men and agencies have helped to make possible the program.

Special guests will be Capt. and Mrs. Maurice L. Britt, who are coming up from their home in Arkansas. Capt. Britt was the first American in this war to win all the top military decorations, including the congressional medal of honor. His story, as told to Carl Wiegman, is currently appearing in THE TRIBUNE.

Foote Will Be Soloist.

The musical score for the premiere broadcast was written by Robert Trendler; the story, largely in verse, by Jack La Frandre who will produce the show. Subsequent programs will be produced alternately by Sherman Dryer and La Frandre. Bruce Foote, baritone, will be the soloist tomorrow with support by a 20 voiced choir and the orchestra.

The dramatic cast includes Cliff Soubier, John Barclay, Jerry Walter, Carl Kroenke, William Everett, Rita Ascott, Laurette Fillbrandt, Arnold Robertson, Lee Bennett, John Mallow, and Tom Cafferty.

Following the broadcast the audience will see "Brought to Action," a navy documentary movie about the second battle of the Philippines.

Monday, Feb. 12, will be Republic Steel night.

Singing Sisters

The Dinning Sisters, Jean, Lou, and Ginger, who are featured on Swing's the Thing over W-G-N-Mutual at 9:30 p. m. Thursdays.

GOTTA GRIPE? TAKE IT TO PET PEEVE COURT

EDITH DAVIS.

Gotta pet peeve? Tell W-G-N about it and the station will do what it can to help you get relief. You may even be invited to come to the new Pet Peeve court, aired at 8:15 p. m. Fridays and lay your troubles before Edith Davis and Harold Isbell, the conductors of the new series.

They don't pretend to know the solution to the problem of what to do with people who still bark: "Don't you know there's a war on," but they may be able to help you cope with minor annoyers such as persons who won't put the cap back on the toothpaste tube, strangers who try to engage you in conversation on crowded buses, or people who leave well filled ash trays on the arms of chairs.

We've been hearing from blind people and others with poor vision about the news series called Chicago Reporter, aired at 6:45 p. m. weekdays, and 5:15 over WIND. The program is concerned exclusively with local news plus human interest items about Chicagoans. Rog Underhill conducts the broadcasts.

Perhaps you've been hearing a quiz kid with an accent recently. He is Gunther Hollander, 14, a student at Hyde Park High school. Gunther came to Chicago recently with his sister, Eva, 17. They escaped from Germany to England five and a half years ago. Their father, who was a judge, and mother when last heard from were in a German concentration camp. Their brother Gary is serving in the United States navy. Another brother, Kurt, is with the Royal Canadian Air Force. Edna Ferber, the novelist and a cousin of their mother, was instrumental in getting the youngsters to Chicago where they are living with friends. They mastered English during their years in Britain.

Joan Davis, favorite radio comedienne, has signed a new contract for four years which will bring her a new sponsor next October at an announced figure of $1,000,000 a year, according to the Associated Press. She plans to continue her current series until June and then will vacation until fall. Since Joan took over the old Rudy Vallee show she has been gaining steadily in the radio surveys.

Chicago Sunday Tribune
THE WORLD'S GREATEST NEWSPAPER

SW FEBRUARY 4, 1945.

14 VALENTINES TO GLADDEN 14 FIGHTER DADS

They're V-Mails of New Babies.

Perhaps the most cheering valentines 14 southwest side service men ever will receive are V-mail pictures of their wives and babies which THE TRIBUNE has sent to homes for remailing overseas. None of the fathers has seen his new son or daughter.

Mrs. Malcolm C. Fogle, 1340 Campbell av., Chicago Heights, and her husband, a navy petty officer in the Pacific, still joke about the birth date of their daughter Karen Jean. Pumpkin is a nickname the Fogles have used for each other for a long time and Karen Jean was born on Oct. 31, 1943—Halloween.

Father in Navy.

Jacqueline Kimpel, almost 2, and her mother live with her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Davidson, 10501 Wood st. Her father, Storekeeper Robert W. Kimpel, has been in the navy four years and overseas one. Jacqueline is a great-granddaughter of Gov. Goodland of Wisconsin.

The father of Marshall E. Brown Jr., 15 months old, is a petty officer in a naval construction battalion which has received five Presidential citations. He wears three battle stars and has been in the South Pacific for 19 months and in service two years. Mrs. Brown lives at 11118 Artesian av. and also has a daughter, Jean Ellen, 3. Also living with them is their grandmother, Mrs. Eileen Ayers. The navy officer's parents are Mr. and Mrs. William M. Brown, Blue Island.

What! A Girl?

With two children named Tom and Dick, Seaman Louis W. Hollatz and his wife expected to name their next baby Harry, but instead it's Nancy Lou, now 4 months old. Mrs. Hollatz, her three children, and her mother, Mrs. L. J. Witkowski, are waiting for her husband's return at 5722 S. Winchester av. He is a radioman with the navy in the South Pacific. Mrs. Hollatz's brother, Lt. Leon Witkowski, is a surgeon with the army in England.

Waiting for Pvt. Michael J. Boyle of the infantry to return from Europe are his wife and 8 month old son, Michael Joseph III. They are living with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Emerich Dietz, at 4432 S. Shields av. Pvt. Boyle has served in France and Belgium and has received the Purple Heart and the combat infantryman badge. His father is Capt. Michael J. Boyle, 4901 Princeton av., of the Chicago fire department.

Dad in Service 4 Years.

Judy Rose Vignono's father, Sgt. Elmo Vignono, has been in service four years. He has taken part in two major battles on Guam and Leyte. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. John G. Vignono, live with his wife at 7610 S. May st.

Paulette Natalie Rahn was born on Aug. 15, 1944. Her father, Pvt. Paul Harry Rahn, is overseas with the army military police. She is living with her mother and sister, Patricia Jean, 3, at 15911 Loomis av., Harvey.

Sgt. James C. Norman, will receive his picture at an air force base in Italy. His wife and 7 month old baby, James Alexander, live at 3305 W. 161st st., Markham, with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. O. O. Ewing.

Sends Skirt, but It's a Boy.

Pvt. Michael S. Busic, stationed in the Southwest Pacific with the air forces, thought his baby was going to be a girl, so he sent home a small hula skirt. Instead, Michael Stephen Jr. was born. He and his mother live at 2447 W. 63d st. with Mrs. Edna Woodward, his maternal grandmother.

Suzanne Louise Dunne, 3 months old; her brother, Edward, 2½, and her mother are waiting for daddy at 233 W. 108th pl., home of Mrs. Dunne's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Horace Griffith. Suzanne's father, Storekeeper Joseph Dunne, recently sent his daughter native sandals from Hawaii. Dunne's brother, Bernard, is a paratrooper with the army in the Philippines. Mrs. Dunne's brother, Russel Griffith, was killed in action while serving with the navy at Guadalcanal. Harry Griffith, another brother, is stationed at an army school in Madison, Wis.

Has Three in Service.

Mrs. Rudolph Anderson, 1006 W. 77th st., mother of James Duncan Anderson, 5 months old, has a husband and two brothers in service. Her husband, Petty Officer Rudolph Anderson of the Seabees, is stationed on New Guinea, where recently he met his brother-in-law, Sgt. James Angus, a technical sergeant with the army air forces.

Sgt. Frank Decker Jr. was sent to England with the army air forces on Sept. 3, 1943, just five days before the birth of his daughter Bonnie Lee. She and her mother are waiting for him at 5254 S. Princeton av., with Mrs. Decker's mother, Mrs. Rose Loughran. Her brother, Pvt. Arthur Loughran, has seen her husband in England.

With Medics in England.

Pvt. Robert Mitchell will receive his picture at an army medical corps post in England. His son, Robert Lee, and Mrs. Mitchell are living at 5329 S. Paulina st. Mrs. Mitchell's brother is with the army paratroopers in Europe and has been awarded the Purple Heart.

The father of Maryn John Porrey Jr., recently returned to Holland, his native country, as a corporal with the 9th air force. His wife and 1 year old baby live at 312 W. 52d pl. Corp. Porrey has been recommended for the soldier's medal. His twin brother, John, was given a medical discharge after six months of overseas service.

G. I. OF S. W. SIDE TERMS FRANCE 'HELL ON EARTH'

Ready for Home When Job Is Done.

BY LARRY RUE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS.—"We've seen enough dead Americans on the battlefields of Europe to last us a lifetime and we hope to go back home and stay home as soon as the job is finished here."

That is what a Chicago G. I., who recently spent two days in Paris, told THE TRIBUNE recently as he sat leisurely in the Red Cross club, Rainbow corner, sipping coffee and eating doughnuts.

Wears Purple Heart.

He is 26 year old Corp. Don Bailey, 720 W. Marquette rd., who wears a Purple Heart for wounds received when the troopship bringing him to France was torpedoed.

Bailey, who strings communication wires at the front lines, said he thought this is one of the most dangerous jobs in the war because most of the time he and his buddies are only a mile or so from enemy lines and they are subject to strafing by German planes, snipers, and mortar fire.

"Real Hell on Earth."

Before being sent to the German border he saw fighting around Brest where, he said, he had a tough time. "I was real scared one night," he said, "when perched up on a hillock laying wires I suddenly became the target of a barrage of machine gun fire, snipers' bullets, and mortar fire. My position seemed hopeless but the job had to be done. The combat boys, however, quickly got things under control and I did finish the job. Then I crawled back to the rear."

He wants his father to know that life on the battle fronts of Europe is "real hell on earth."

CAPTURES NAZI MACHINE GUNS, GRANTED D.S.C.

S.W. Sider Wounded in Daring Exploit.

The distinguished service cross, second only to the congressional medal of honor, has been awarded Staff Sgt. David Lopez, whose wife and baby daughter live at 4548 S. Justine st. The award was made at Mayo General hospital, Galesburg, Ill., where Sgt. Lopez is undergoing treatment for leg wounds. He saw action with the 34th infantry division at Anzio, Cassino, Volturno, and at the Gothic line.

David Lopez.

During an attack on a strong enemy position Sgt. Lopez's company was pinned down by fire from two well placed enemy machine guns. Lopez voluntarily advanced up a knoll to a point 30 yards from one of the emplacements, opened fire with his submachine gun, wounded the enemy gunner, and forced four other members of the crew to surrender.

Still under fire from the other machine gun emplacement, Lopez and another man advanced toward it and killed four Germans of its crew.

But in neutralizing the second enemy machine Lopez suffered a shattered leg. Unable to move and unwilling to become a burden to his comrades, he remained behind and was captured by the Germans in a counter-attack. Despite his painful wound he obtained valuable information. When his company attacked again Lopez rejoined his comrades with this information, which aided them in repelling another German counter-attack.

He ordered the rest of the platoon to take cover, then with one marine he moved across the terrain under fire to the wounded man and carried him to safety.

Sgt. W. S. Bunyea.

MARK 3 YEARS OF OPEN HOUSE TO 5,000 YANKS

Frank H. Whites to Hold Celebration.

For three years the door at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank H. White, 1716 W. 103d st. has been open to service men. Shortly after Pearl Harbor an army officer told Mrs. White what the average service man needs most during his free time is a place, similar to his own home, in which he can relax.

Relax is all that service men have to do at the Whites unless they want to sing, play pingpong, listen to the radio, raid the icebox, or attend one of the monthly dances given at the nearby 102d st. fieldhouse, 1518 W. 102d pl.

Party at Fieldhouse.

The fieldhouse will be the scene of a party and dance at 7:30 p. m. Saturday in celebration of the third anniversary of Frank White's open house plan. Members of Mrs. White's girls committee will present a floor show to the music of an orchestra composed of Morgan Park High school students under direction of James Webb.

Betty Mirrielees, Mary Lou Sorna, Marilyn Olson, and Louise Mohr will give comedy impersonations of radio artists; Arleen Gillespie will do a solo tap dance, and a dance team composed of Jean Testin and Joseph Coates, a sailor, will perform a tango and a jitterbug dance.

Will Provide Dates.

Dates will be provided for service men by Mrs. White from her committee of 350 girls. More than 5,000 men have been entertained by the Whites, many of whom have stayed at the Whites during their furloughs. Several neighborhood families hold rooms open for the overnight guests the Whites cannot accommodate.

Such hospitality is not new to the Whites, says Mrs. Roland Allen, a neighbor who is on the women's committee which helps to round up food and generally aids Mrs. White. Mrs. Allen relates that a neighbor, confined to bed many years ago, had difficulty sleeping and, instead of counting sheep, she counted the number of persons coming in and out of the Whites.

Others Aid Whites.

Other members of the women's committee who have been active all three years are Mrs. Alex Robinson, Mrs. Robert Kraft, and Mrs. Kingsley Coleman, who spends her weekends playing requests ranging from classics to boogie woogie on the Whites' piano. Officers of the men's committee who help to finance the program are Eugene Schobinger, president; Harry Wulfing, vice president; Paul Behrens, secretary, and Marvin Mowatt, treasurer. Mrs. White says she never has had to ask for help when her neighbors found out what she was doing they offered both time and money.

White, who is supervisor of industrial power sales for the Commonwealth Edison company, yet has to find a service man who can beat him at ping-pong. In addition to providing the house, he raises a half acre of vegetables for the three square meals available daily to service men.

Mrs. White Civic Minded.

Mrs. White, who was born in Russia, is president of the high school council districts 1 and 25 of the Illinois Congress of Parents and Teachers, board member of the Ridge Civic council, vice president of the Ridge Citizens' school, and former president of the Vanderpoel Art gallery.

The many close friendships gained are ample compensation for her hospitality, she says. "Some boys have confided things to me I couldn't tell anybody," she explains.

"Like One of Family.

There was a lad who told her, "It's not only the food and hospitality that I appreciate. It's the fact that you trust us to come and go as one of your family."

"What danger could there possibly be with a gang of husky soldiers, sailors, and marines around all the time?" asked Mrs. White.

Lawn Manor Men to Hear Address on "Teamwork"

Loring B. Moore, attorney and member of the speakers' bureau of the Chicago Round Table of the National Conference of Christians and Jews, will speak before the Men's club of Lawn Manor Community center at 7:30 p. m. Wednesday at 6641 S. Troy av. His topic is "In Peace As in War—Teamwork."

BUCK PRIVATE KILLS BUCK AND DEER, TOO, WITH ONLY ONE SHOT

Pvt. John H. Keizer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Keizer, 46 W. 109th st., has bettered the "killing two birds with one stone" by killing two deer with one shot.

On a recent hunting trip in one of the Indian jungles where Keizer is stationed with an army engineers battalion, he leveled his sights on a large buck and pulled the trigger. Not only the buck but a deer beside the buck dropped dead. Keizer's bullet had passed thru the buck's head and entered the head of the other deer. Keizer also has bagged a 9 foot tiger, a mountain goat, cheetas, and other deer.

John H. Keizer.

W-G-N TO SOUND CALL TO JOBS TO SHORTEN WAR

America Unlimited Goes on Air Tomorrow.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

What Chicago, the heart of the nation's arsenal, can do to save fighting men's lives and end the war sooner will be shown dramatically in America Unlimited, a new series of broadcasts on W-G-N.

No. 1 priority war plants in this community that have critical needs in man power are coöperating with the army, navy, other war time agencies, THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE and W-G-N in these programs which will show the direct and vital part every war worker plays in achieving victory.

The first broadcast of America Unlimited, sounding the keynote of the series, will be aired from W-G-N's main studio from 9 to 9:30 tomorrow night. Thru original drama and narrative and specially composed music and choral effects the program will unfold a panoramic story of America. It will recall how America was born in conflict, with Valley Forge as a symbol, and show how the nation has mustered strength and courage and sacrifice to meet every great crisis.

Deal with Specific Points.

On successive Mondays America Unlimited will deal with specific war plants in the community—one each week—showing the battle uses of weapons produced by each and then revealing what a direct relation keeping workers on the job in the plants has to success in battle.

The coöperating companies include Republic Steel corporation, making ammunition; Pressed Steel Car Company, Inc., tanks; Ingersoll Steel and Disc division, Borg-Warner corporation, ammunition; Aluminum company of America, landing mats; Electro-Motive division, General Motors, diesel engines; Western Electric company, communications equipment; the Buda company, diesel engines and transportation equipment. Other companies will join later.

Direct Relation to Battle.

America Unlimited will emphasize the parallel between the roles of men at the front and war plant workers. Every G. I. Joe is in the war to the finish—he's often worn out and would like a day off, but must stick to his job, the program will show. The same applies to a lathe worker or any other man or woman in a war plant. The program also will point up concrete needs of each war plant and the opportunities that lie ahead for men and women on war jobs, or who will take them and stick to them.

The vital role of the war worker will be vividly depicted in a full page four color poster titled "Shoulder to Shoulder," and drawn by Carey Orr, to appear on the back page of tomorrow's TRIBUNE. A brawny war worker at the lathe appears in the foreground; beside him a girl works at a punch press. In the background soldiers, sailors, and marines are depicted going into action. The page will be blown up to 30 by 40 inches and distributed for poster use in the war plants.

At 8:30 tomorrow night, prior to the broadcast, a preliminary program will be presented to the studio audience, which will be composed of executives of the participating plants and representatives of the military services and other war agencies participating.

Speakers for Program.

Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE TRIBUNE and president of W-G-N, will welcome the group. Other speakers will be William H. Spencer, regional director, war man power commission; Col. Dan A. Hardt, chairman, production urgency information committee, and Comdr. R. J. Twyman, district civilian personnel chief, 9th naval district. Other guests will be Col. John Slezak, Chicago ordnance district, and Maj. John W. Cummiskey, army air corps. These men and agencies have helped to make possible the program.

Special guests will be Capt. and Mrs. Maurice L. Britt, who are coming up from their home in Arkansas. Capt. Britt was the first American in this war to win all the top military decorations, including the congressional medal of honor. His story, as told to Carl Wiegman, is currently appearing in THE TRIBUNE.

Foote Will Be Soloist.

The musical score for the premiere broadcast was written by Robert Trendler; the story, largely in verse, by Jack La Frandre who will produce the show. Subsequent programs will be produced alternately by Sherman Dryer and La Frandre. Bruce Foote, baritone, will be the soloist tomorrow with support by a 20 voiced choir and the orchestra.

The dramatic cast includes Cliff Soubier, John Barclay, Jerry Walter, Carl Kroenke, William Everett, Rita Ascott, Laurette Fillbrandt, Arnold Robertson, Lee Bennett, John Mallow, and Tom Cafferty.

Following the broadcast the audience will see "Brought to Action," a navy documentary movie about the second battle of the Philippines.

Monday, Feb. 12, will be Republic Steel night.

Singing Sisters

The Dinning Sisters, Jean, Lou, and Ginger, who are featured on Swing's the Thing over W-G-N-Mutual at 9:30 p. m. Thursdays.

'GOOD NEWS' IS NEXT SHOW FOR THEATER OF AIR

Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, will speak. Robert Trendler, who will conduct the W-G-N Symphony orchestra and chorus for this performance, has written special arrangements of the music.

Betty Mulliner, noted New York radio soprano, will sing the part of Connie Lane, a beautiful co-ed. Bruce Foote, baritone, will sing the role of Tom Marlowe, the football hero who is in love with Connie.

Philip Maxwell, conductor of the program, will add two names to the honor roll: Fred Nadherny, Morton senior, and Barbara Jean Rowe, Elkhart, Ind.

Review Stand Speakers Discuss Negro Wants

"What the Negro Wants" will be discussed on the Northwestern Reviewing stand over W-G-N-Mutual at 10:30 a. m. today. Edwin R. Embree, chairman of Chicago Mayor's committee on race relations; Robert Weaver, director of community services, American Council on Race Relations, and Prof. Melville Herskovits of Northwestern university will participate.

W-G-N Orchestra Airs Wagner Work Tuesday

Wagner's Symphony in C major will be presented by the W-G-N Symphony orchestra, under the direction of Walter Steindel, on the Symphony Hall program over W-G-N, WGNB Tuesday night from 8:30 to 9:30 o'clock.

GOTTA GRIPE? TAKE IT TO PET PEEVE COURT

Gotta pet peeve? Tell W-G-N about it and the station will do what it can to help you get relief. You may even be invited to come to the new Pet Peeve court, aired at 8:15 p. m. Fridays and lay your troubles before Edith Davis and Harold Isbell, the conductors of the new series.

EDITH DAVIS.

They don't pretend to know the solution to the problem of what to do with people who still bark: "Don't you know there's a war on," but they may be able to help you cope with minor annoyers such as persons who won't put the cap back on the toothpaste tube, strangers who try to engage you in conversation on crowded buses, or people who leave well filled ash trays on the arms of chairs.

We've been hearing from blind people and others with poor vision about the news series called Chicago Reporter, aired at 6:45 p. m. weekdays, and 5:15 over WIND. The program is concerned exclusively with local news plus human interest items about Chicagoans. Rog Underhill conducts the broadcasts.

Perhaps you've been hearing a quiz kid with an accent recently. He is Gunther Hollander, 14, a student at Hyde Park High school. Gunther came to Chicago recently with his sister, Eva, 17. They escaped from Germany to England five and a half years ago. Their father, who was a judge, and mother when last heard from were in a German concentration camp. Their brother Gary is serving in the United States navy. Another brother, Kurt, is with the Royal Canadian Air Force. Edna Ferber, the novelist and a cousin of their mother, was instrumental in getting the youngsters to Chicago where they are living with friends. They mastered English during their years in Britain.

Joan Davis, favorite radio comedienne, has signed a new contract for four years which will bring her a new sponsor next October at an announced figure of $1,000,000 a year, according to the Associated Press. She plans to continue her current series until June and then will vacation until fall. Since Joan took over the old Rudy Vallee show she has been gaining steadily in the radio surveys.

FINDS ART OF 1ST RANK IN AMERICA AFTER 28 YEARS

Why Go to Europe to Study? Artist Asks.

BY ALBERT PUGNER.

America is the place for art and artists. No longer need our painters go abroad to study examples of the masters or to receive the best instruction. It's all right here in America.

Fred Oswald.

Take it from Fred Oswald, Flossmoor, who left Chicago for Europe in 1909, when the grassy slopes of Grant park and the shore line were piles of tin cans, when Wacker dr., lined with chicken coops, was a gathering place for commission merchants, when America, flexing its powerful industrial muscles, paid polite but scarcely enthusiastic attention to pioneers of art.

In Europe 28 Years.

For 28 years Oswald taught, studied, and painted in the old country. His summers were spent in Venice, where he found an ever-present inspiration in the constant play and reflection of light on the canals. He wintered in Germany, where he attended the great Wagnerian festivals and studied at the Royal academy in Munich until World War I.

He watched the stars of Mussolini and Hitler soar, and from a Venetian studio he heard shouts and gunfire as Black Shirts and Communists fought. Many times his hat was knocked off when he failed to remove it as the Italian Fascist flag passed or the party hymn was played.

Heard Duce in Venice.

Oswald first saw Mussolini when the Italian dictator, near the zenith of his power, spoke in Venice. Later in the same city Oswald heard Mussolini extoll the greatness of Italian people and their armies while a short, meek appearing little man—Adolf Hitler—stood to one side and listened.

It is Oswald's belief that Hitler and the militarists got their chief support from the Prussians. "Austrians and Bavarians built their lives around art, music, and the finer things of life, while the Prussians loved military pomp and seemed to be looking for a fight. The common explanation for quarrels in the Royal academy was "'die Preissen'—the Prussians." Oswald declares that Bavaria and Austria should be separated from Germany as one foundation of future peace.

Remained in Italy.

Oswald never returned to Germany after World War I, but remained in Italy, where he painted, taught English, and wrote translations in the Armenian college in which Lord Byron wrote an Armenian-English dictionary.

At the suggestion of many friends who told him of America's awakening to art, Oswald returned to Chicago in 1937. The chicken coops had been replaced by a wide drive paralleling the river, the tin cans had been converted into spacious parks which stretched along the graceful curves of the Lake Michigan shore. Best of all, to Oswald, were the displays of merchandise containing pottery, furniture, and household utensils in attractive color combinations and in designs which to him reflected a union of art and commercialism.

Many Enter Classes.

Almost from the day of his arrival art enthusiasts sought his instruction. Altho he recently celebrated his 70th birthday, he is busy every week day conducting classes in Flossmoor, Beverly Hills, and Oak Park. Recently he started a new class at the Western Electric Hawthorne club, Cicero.

His classes at the John H. Vanderpoel Art gallery in Beverly Hills have renewed memories of Oswald's student days when he studied under Vanderpoel at the Chicago Art institute in the early 1900s. Oswald also taught at the Chicago institute, where Thomas Hart Benton, former director of the department of painting at the art institute, Kansas City, Mo., was his pupil.

Oswald was born in the town of Bloom, now Chicago Heights. His grandmother, Barbara Sauter, came to Chicago with the family of John Kinzie and moved to Chicago Heights in 1840, where she purchased 40 acres at $1.25 an acre. Oswald's father was postmaster, druggist, and general store proprietor there for 28 years.

THORNTON TWP. HIGH HAS V-DAY PROGRAM READY

Radio Drama Awaits Fall of Germany.

A sudden victory for the allies in Europe will not catch the student body of Thornton Township High school, Harvey, unawares. Preparation for a celebration of V-E day was begun early last fall, and a completed radio drama is now recorded and awaiting only for news of victory to be presented in each classroom thru the school's public address system.

The drama, written by Carol VanderKloot of Homewood, was produced thru the efforts of students in many departments, working under direction of Miss Mae Sexauer, director of the school's radio workshop. Titled merely "For V-E day," the play is in three scenes, depicting different reactions to the news in various parts of the world.

First Scene in Paris.

The first scene, laid in Paris, presents an American soldier in conversation with a grateful French woman and a Polish girl hopeful for the rebirth of her country. A Chinese air base is the site of the second scene, where an American flyer and a Chinese woman and collie serve to remind the listener that, while V-E day brings celebration, there is a long fight ahead in the Pacific. The final scene, State and Madison sts., shows typical reactions of the American citizen to the news that one enemy is defeated.

Miss VanderKloot's drama is the result of story conferences with three other students of the creative writing class. Under Miss Sexauer's leadership, the four, Miss VanderKloot, David Huston of Flossmoor, Loring Stevenson of Harvey, and Mary Whitford of Olympia Fields, decided on an outline for the presentation.

A Cappella Choir Sings.

With the script completed, a sound effects committee, headed by Charles Porter of Flossmoor, set to work enlisting the aid of the industrial arts department to build equipment for sound effects and of the music department, where the a cappella choir, led by Walter Armbruster, recorded the hymn "Beautiful Savior." Jack Trester, 14310 S. Parnell av., accordionist from the Thornton orchestra, provided music for street scenes.

Abandoned Nursery in 1926.

The Woman's auxiliary of the Chicago Episcopal diocese established the Providence Day nursery. Her daughter, Miss Kate Sturges Benton, 5021 Blackstone av., is a director.

In 1926 a survey revealed no further need for a nursery and it was closed. Today, however, with mothers working in industry the nursery again is flourishing. Now it is only a small part of an educational and recreational program designed "to teach and practice the American ideals of democracy."

Members' Ages from 2 to 87.

The settlement, housed in two large three story brick buildings, contains clubrooms, a gymnasium, workshops, a nursery department, and a deposit branch of the Chicago library. It serves persons from 2 to 87.

CO. G OF ILLINOIS 8TH TO RECEIVE TRIBUNE TROPHY

Col. McCormick to Make Award Feb. 11.

BY GEORGE SCHREIBER.

Presentation of the the Chicago Tribune drill attendance trophy to company G, 8th infantry, Illinois reserve militia, will highligh ceremonies next Sunday in the armory, 3517 Giles av., in commemoration of Lincoln's birthday, Feb. 12.

All former officers of the old 8th infantry, progenitor of the present reserve regiment but now in federal service with other units of the Illinois national guard, and the general public are invited to be present for the afternoon and evening program. Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE TRIBUNE will make the trophy presentation.

To Display Arms, Equipment.

The Lincoln day program will start in the armory at 3 p. m. with an open house lasting to 4:30 o'clock. Col. Clifton E. Jones, regimental commander, with the assistance of the 6th service command, has arranged a public display of equipment and weapons used by the regiments, including field cooking ranges, and telephones and other signal devices.

Between 4:30 and 5:40 p. m. there will be a basketball game on the drill floor, the Big 5s playing the All-Stars, a team made up from the 1st and 2d battalions of the regiment. There is considerable rivalry between the two teams and the contest promises to be spirited.

Plan Vespers at 6 P. M.

At 6 p. m. there will be a vesper service conducted by Capt. Richard C. Keller, regimental chaplain. Music will be furnished by the choir of Beth Eden Baptist church. Capt. Keller is pastor there.

Presentation of the drill attendance trophy will follow a regimental review at which Company G, commanded by Capt. John R. Meadows, will be honored by the entire regiment. The actual presentation will take place at 6:30 o'clock.

Col. Jones Lauds Company G.

"We are very proud of Company G," said Col. Jones. "Those of us who have been in the national guard and later the reserve militia know how hard it is to keep up an attendance record. Many former members of this regiment are now serving the United States in the army and navy. Our turnover here has been large."

Among the invited guests are Gov. Green, Brig. Gen. Leo M. Boyle, the state adjutant general, and commanders of the 6th service command and the Great Lakes Naval Training center.

Col. McCormick to Make Awards.

The trophy to be awarded by Col. McCormick and THE TRIBUNE is for general excellence in attendance at drill. Company G., of which Robert O. Woods is 1st sergeant, placed highest among all those in the 8th regiment and also had the second highest average among the seven militia regiments in the state.

Capt. Dion A. Stams, regimental chemical warfare and public relations officer, is in charge of the program.

Draft Board.

Local selective service board 37 now is housed at 3836 W. 26th st., with board 112, officials have announced.

VOTE TOMORROW FOR ALDERMEN IN 6TH AND 10TH

Set Runoff March 5 if Needed.

BY EDWARD SCHREIBER.

The 6th and 10th wards will have a special altermanic election tomorrow with the polls open from 6 a. m. to 5 p. m. A runoff will be held March 5 if the top candidate does not receive a majority of all votes cast.

In the 10th ward, a "cat and dog" fight has developed between Atty. Alfred O'Connor, 7929 Avenue J, the Republican entry, and Emil V. Pacini, 8607 Phillips av., who has the backing of the ward Democratic organization. A third candidate is Max A. Pieczynski, 8827 Dante av., nephew of the late Ald. William Pieczynski. He has the backing of County Treasurer Victor L. Schlaeger. The fact of two Democratic candidates is considered an important advantage to O'Connor.

In the 6th ward, one Republican, George C. Johnson, 6600 Ellis av., son-in-law of the late alderman, Patrick Sheridan Smith, is being opposed by two Democrats. They are Atty. Francis J. Hogan, 7014 Vernon av., who has the backing of Democratic Committeeman James M. Whalen and Woodrow Wilson, 6653 Ingleside av., a discharged war veteran and an independent candidate who claims the support of a potent organization he has built up in the last several months. Wilson is an accountant and a war plant employe.

The election tomorrow legally is nonpartisan but all concerned admit that the support of a regular political organization is necessary to success.

• THE RAZOR'S EDGE—By W. Somerset Maugham

A Passion Greater than Lust or Hunger!

The story of a man's search for a faith greater than the love of a beautiful woman, greater than wealth, or position; a passion so overwhelming that beside it even lust and hunger are trifling; of a woman's tender devotion which turned into a fierce cruelty. Revival of 'Rosalinda' Opens at Erlanger March 12

'Over 21' with Ruth Gordon Back Tomorrow

By Claudia Cassidy.

When "Rosalinda" arrives at the Erlanger March 12 for a month's stay, it will be the second rather than the third New Opera company revival of the season. "La Vie Parisienne" has canceled its Civic Opera house booking for Feb. 19, and "The Merry Widow" may extend its engagement at that theater. "Rosalinda" is the popular version of Johann Strauss' "Die Fledermaus" revived in New York in 1942, with score and staging arranged by Erich Wolfgang Korngold and the late Max Reinhardt, who had collaborated on the continental revival of 1929. This season's production is just getting under way, and the cast was still a secret at press time. In fact, except for the Kiepura-Eggerth combination of "The Merry Widow," New Opera bigwigs often reply to inquiries as to the names of their stars by asking a question of their own. "Who," they say, "were the stars of 'Oklahoma'?" Depends on whether they mean before or after opening.

No question, tho, about the star, not to say the author of "Over Twenty-One," which opens a return engagement at the Studebaker tomorrow night for the benefit of those turned away from the Harris last fall, and no doubt for repeat visits by special admirers of Ruth Gordon, struck in a panic by her recent declaration that from this play on she will write, not act. You can't be too sure about that, no matter how firm her intention. If a fat, juicy part turns up for next season, what's a typewriter compared to footlights? What are clippings, to an actor, compared to applause?

For those who missed the original engagement, "Over Twenty-One" concerns the comic adventures of an army wife trying to push, haul, thrust, or shove her 40 year old husband thru officer's training in defiance of the edict that no matter how hard you study, you just don't absorb after you have passed 21. Some people compared the wife to Dorothy Parker — others said that's Ruth Gordon being herself for the first time on the stage.

Quite a different theatrical story is Lillian Hellman's "The Searching Wind," which Herman Shumlin brings to the Erlanger for three weeks starting Feb. 20. It belongs in the general category with their previous productions, "The Little Foxes" and "Watch on the Rhine," tho it may not reach that brilliant level of stagecraft. I say "may not," because I have not seen it, and I don't know. Miss Hellman says she got her title from an expression used by her Negro maid, "It's a searching wind today." "She meant," explains the playwright, "one of those winds that go right thru you to your backbone. I suppose in my title I was thinking of the wind that's blowing thru the world."

The story opens in Washington in the spring of 1944 and looks back over 22 years of what had gone before to make the present possible. Howard Bay's settings show Washington in 1944, Rome in 1922 when Mussolini marched, Berlin in 1923, Paris in 1938. Miss Hellman's characters include an American diplomat and the maimed son home from the war. Cornelia Otis Skinner, Dennis King, Dudley Digges, and Barbara O'Neil play their original roles. Henry Barnard has replaced Montgomery Clift, reported ill, as the son.

"One Touch of Venus," expected at the opera house April 1, is chiefly Mary Martin, who has bewitched people as the goddess who comes to mortal life long enough to sing Kurt Weill's music, with lyrics by Ogden Nash. John Boles remains in the cast, as does Paula Lawrence, the comedienne, and Anita Alvarez, who made a hit here in the revival of "A Connecticut Yankee," has replaced Sono Osato, who stepped into "On the Town." Agnes de Mille did the ballets, and Howard Bay designed the sets.

The Ballet Russe de Monte Carlo plays New York's City Center from Feb. 20 thru March 25, with Ruth Page's "Frankie and Johnny" and a revival of "Mozartiana" listed as novelties. Danilova and Franklin head the troupe.

"The Inspector General," by Nicolai Gogol, will be presented by the office of dramatic productions at Mandel hall Friday and Saturday evenings at 8:30. Tickets are available at the information office of the university, 5758 Ellis av.

Lenore Ulric, who appeared here in "The Doughgirls," makes her first Broadway appearance in four years when she takes over the leading role of "Home Front," a play by Randolph Carter planned for late spring production. Miss Ulric will be a foreign actress visiting, and no doubt surprising, Newport.

"Wappin' Wharf," a piratical comedy by Charles Stephen Brooks, opens at the Goodman Thursday night and plays nightly, except Mondays, thru Feb. 28. Maurice Gnesin is the director. The children's theater, meanwhile, is presenting "King Midas and the Golden Touch" Saturday afternoons at 2:30. There will be a Saturday morning performance March 3 at 10:30 and a Sunday afternoon performance March 11 at 3.

BY BARRETT WILLOUGHBY

INSTALMENT V.

THE following morning, while Lynn was getting MacFarlane settled in the taxi Greer had sent to take her and Emma Strum down to the Prospector, Mrs. Strum stood on the curb commiserating with the driver whose wife had recently run off with a salmon troller. Short, plump, middle aged, the housekeeper was tightly buttoned into a black tailleur of good material which, obviously, had been made for her when she was much thinner. Her black felt hat also was at least three years behind the current fashion.

After she had stepped inside, the taxi swung down the steep street toward the water front. Mrs. Strum looked at Lynn with shortsighted, misty blue eyes, and her soft, easy voice flowed on without pause. It seemed almost as tho she didn't want to give Lynn a chance to ask any questions.

"Such a celebration, Miss Clonard. The lady in the next room to mine had company—a gentleman. And all night long they—Well, I hardly slept a wink. Mister Greer was up all night, too, rounding up his men. At 4 this morning he took them all down to the Prospector in taxis."

In the pilot house Lynn sat slim and tense on an upholstered locker, while the Prospector moved swiftly down the channel. It was not until a dozen miles had slipped astern that she relaxed and surrendered to the soothing vibration of the speeding cruiser. Juneau lay behind her now—Juneau, Perry, and all those who had witnessed her humiliating arrival yesterday. From this moment on she would know only new scenes, new faces, new ways of life. Relief flowed into her, and she felt a sort of weary gratitude to Jefferson Greer, who had made her escape possible.

He stood at the wheel, back to her most of the time. Competent, easy, he steered and at the same time handled the engine from the pilot house control. Thru the clear windows curving in a crescent about his tall, wide shouldered figure, she could see Alaska sparkling in the sun—hemlock shores and seagulls flying; bright white clouds on a larkspur sky; the silver channel swinging onward, and a distant purple mountain topped with snow. A fitting setting for him, she thought, impressed anew by the dramatically masculine quality of the man.

She had seen no one else since she came aboard; not even Mrs. Strum. The housekeeper had gone directly to the galley taking MacFarlane with her. It was a long time before Lynn had any evidence that Greer's miners were aboard, and then she did not see them. She only heard their intermittent shouts, bursts of laughter, and some one singing:

"Don't go in the lion's cage tonight, mother darling." They sounded more like college men razzing one another than miners. Perhaps some of them were college men. Perry had written that——

She bit her lip as the loss of Perry surged over her again; and to shove him out of her mind, got up and knelt on the locker to look out the window.

An open cockpit cruiser was swiftly coming up behind the Prospector. Two men were in it. One, obviously asleep sat with his head tipped back against the top of the seat in the stern. The craft's speed had flattened a shock of silver hair against the tan of his lean, upturned face.

The man standing at the wheel was Court Faber.

With eager interest Lynn leaned from the open window to wave. Court ran his boat in close, shoved his blowing dark hair up with the palm of his hand, and smiled directly into her eyes. Then flinging up his hand in his characteristic salute, he shot on ahead. Lynn read the name Stardust on the stern of the cruiser.

Greer remarked, without turning round, "You seem to know Faber quite well."

"O, no. But he did me a great service yesterday." She recounted her near tragedy on the Prince Hal.

Greer gave a short laugh. "That boy never misses a trick. Thinks quick. Acts quick. You say he got aboard at Wrangell?"

"That's what he said."

"He—er—didn't happen to mention what he was doing in Wrangell, did he?" Greer's tone was casual but Lynn felt his keen interest as he waited for her reply.

"No, Mr. Greer. We had no chance for conversation. I wonder where he's going today."

Greer didn't answer at once. He was staring ahead, and on him was the stillness Lynn had noticed before. She was about to repeat her last remark when he faced her apologetically. "Faber? He's going to Reflection Inlet."

"The same place we're going to! Does he live there?"

"He does now. After I opened my mine, he staked a mountain of stone directly back of it. He's getting ready to unload his holdings on the strength of the rich showing I've made at the Golden Totem."

"You mean—there's no gold in his mountain and still he's going to try to sell it as a mine?"

Greer shrugged. "I wouldn't say there's no gold in his mountain. But so far nothing has been uncovered to warrant its being called a mine. The chap with him is Flan O'Hara, his business associate and man Friday."

Lynn smiled. "The very essence of the Ould Sod is in that name—Flan O'Hara."

"Yes. Flan, I believe, was born in Cork and studied for the priesthood, but failed to make the grade. He's an amusing fellow, tho." Greer laughed reminiscently. "He's the biggest periodical drunkard, the biggest liar, and the most undependable man in the country."

"O." Lynn did not pursue the subject. An odd sort of disappointment had come upon her. She was glad when the breakfast chimes sounded, creating a diversion.

Greer said, "I can't leave the wheel at the moment. But I'm sure you're starved, Miss Clonard. Will you go down those steps and follow your little nose, please? You'll come to a table set for you. I'll be along as soon as I'm relieved at the wheel."

It was Lynn's first trip below deck. She found herself in a narrow salon that was a pleasant combination of gleaming white paint and mahogany trim. At one end a table was set for three. On each side, upholstered lockers formed seats. On one of these lay a long figure wrapped in a white Hudson's Bay blanket. To her amazement, bending over the prone man were Al and Bill Rodale. "Hi!" Al was shaking the recumbent one. "Rise and shine, fella. Breakfast is——"

As tho both men felt Lynn's presence, they turned puffy, unshaved faces to her. Their red rimmed eyes widened in astonishment. "Jeepers!" breathed Al.

"G-good morning, gentlemen," Lynn said in a small, startled voice.

A swift look passed between the brothers. Bill turned with an embarrassed grin. "Miss Clonard—er—good morning. I—we—none of us knew ladies were aboard. That is, we——"

"O, come on, Bill." Al grabbed his brother's arm and vigorously began propelling the young man toward the exit. "Excuse, please, Miss Clonard. We've got to see a man about a—I mean a dog about a—O, heck! Let's get out of here, Bill."

Puzzled, Lynn watched the pair disappear.

Meanwhile, back of her, the sleeper stirred and, without opening his eyes, sat up and swung long legs to the floor. His dark coat was wrinkled; his white trousers streaked with dirt. He slumped forward, planted his elbows on his knees, and clasped his bowed, disheveled head between his hands.

"O, mi-gord!" he groaned.

Lynn whirled about. One look and her heart beat like thunder in her ears.

"Perry!" she gasped.

"Wha'—what?" Perry sat up, staring. He shook his head, blinked and stared at Lynn again. Then his ravaged face lighted. "Lynn! Goldilocks!" He lurched up, hands outstretched. "It's you! You're real!"

She stepped back. "Don't touch me. What are you doing aboard this cruiser?"

His hands dropped. He looked at her with a shamed smile. "Why—er—I guess the boss must have poured me aboard with the rest of the gang last night. We were all a bit high——"

"The boss? Who is your boss?"

"Greer, of course. Don't you remember, darling, I wrote you I had a job as foreman in his mine?"

With difficulty Lynn controled her voice. "You have never mentioned your employer's name to me. Mr. Greer! But—no. I don't believe you. Mr. Greer wouldn't——"

"P-l-e-a-s-e, Lynn!" Perry's bloodshot eyes implored her from under the slim hand he pressed to his forehead. "Don't muddle me this morning, darling. If I didn't tell you his name it was because I couldn't think of anything but getting you up here to marry me."

Lynn wasn't listening. She was grappling with an intolerable sense of being swept forward by currents beyond her control. Why hadn't Greer told her he was Perry's employer? He knew how long she had waited for Perry to come to meet her when the steamer docked. He had watched her distress without making any move to relieve her. He had seen Perry finally arrive and make a public spectacle of her and of himself. Then why had he hired her to work at the mine where she must be thrown constantly into Perry's company?

"Mr. Greer!" she commanded. "Turn this boat about instantly and take me back to Juneau."

Lynn thought, with mounting anger: He's a liar and a trickster. I'll go up to the pilot-house and demand——

"Hey!" Perry blocked her sudden rush for the exit. "What are you going to do, Lynn?"

She wrenched herself free and ran a few steps, then jerked to a stop. Her gaze focused on the passage leading into the salon in which she stood.

Coming toward her with his easy, sliding stride was Jefferson Greer.

Lynn's fine brows came together. The light of battle leaped into her narrowed eyes. She stepped to meet the man.

"Mr. Greer!" she commanded. "Turn this boat about instantly and take me back to Juneau."

Greer stood motionless, silent, his gray eyes appraising the girl from the shadow beneath his hat brim.

"Take me back to town at once!" Lynn repeated, indignantly. "You engaged me under false pretenses."

"My dear young lady——" his face and voice took on a faint weariness—"have you forgotten it was you who asked to be my secretary, and not the other way round?"

"I—yes—but why didn't you tell me Perry was working at your mine? You know how he acted yesterday. You must have known how humiliated, how cruelly disappointed I felt. O, how could you! How could——" She bit her lip and quickly averted her face so he wouldn't see the tears that sprang to her eyes.

A moment later a big, clean handkerchief was thrust into her hand and Greer's arm went gently across her shoulders. "There, there, little one. I'm sorry. I see now that I made a big mistake."

Emotionally battered and bewildered, Lynn relaxed against him for a moment while she wiped her eyes.

Greer's deep, soothing voice went on: "Here's what happened, Lynn. I knew Perry had been hitting it up a bit for two days, but I didn't know what sort of girl you are, or how you'd take it. I went down to see the boat come in. When I saw you at the steamer rail—a beautiful, proud child—I knew what Perry stood to lose. I was right. You refused to marry him. And so, being a sentimental sourdough, I got the notion that I might get you to come to the mine where Perry works and, in time, you might forgive him."

"Then you don't need a secretary?" Lynn lifted wet blue eyes to his face.

"I certainly do! But I confess——" he thrust his hands into his breeches pockets and gave her a shamefaced grin—"I went down to the coffee shop last night and talked for your benefit. I hoped you'd do just what you did—ask me for a job."

His story sounded plausible; and when he told it, his eyes met hers in a steady, straightforward way. Yet she was not satisfied. "How could you know I wanted to go to work, when I'd hardly decided myself?"

"My dear, Perry's in love. Before you came he spent hours talking about you. I put two and two together and then made a guess as to what a girl like you would do under the circumstances."

The man's candor was disarming, and yet—— "Mr. Greer, there are a lot of things I don't understand. But—no matter. I still insist on going back to Juneau."

"Lynn! Listen to me, please!" Perry had pulled himself together and was trying to capture her hand. When she eluded him he made a gesture of resignation. "O, I don't blame you. I must have been a rotter yesterday. But if you'll just give me one more chance, Lynn, I'll never touch another drop as long as I live. I—O, darling, don't look at me as if you despised me! Give me another chance. Come to the mine with us. I won't go near you until you say I may. I—I just want to be where I can see you and . . ."

Greer gave an embarrassed cough. "Excuse me, children. I must get back to the pilot-house. You two sit down here to breakfast and settle the matter between yourselves."

Lynn shook her head. "I'm thru with Perry. I'll go up to the pilot-house with you and stay there until we get back to Juneau."

Perry began another impassioned protest. Greer gestured him to silence and turned to Lynn. His manner was one of mingled affection and regret. "If that's the way you feel, Lynn, of course I'll take you back." He started for the passage, then paused to look at her with a rueful smile. "This makes it tough on my men. It's rather important that I get them home in time to sleep off their celebration so they can go to work in the morning. But—when Dick Clonard's daughter speaks, I obey."

Reluctantly Lynn suggested a compromise. "You might land your men at the mine and then take me back to Juneau."

Greer picked up a burned match and tossed it thru an open porthole. "I'll be honest with you, Lynn." He faced her. "That's impossible on account of the way the tide runs in the inlet at this time of the month. If you go with us now you'll have to spend the night at the mine. Still——" He took an eager step toward her—— "If you're generous enough to do that, Lynn, it would help me a lot. And I'd take you back to town the first thing in the morning." His gray eyes looked into hers, straightforward, expectant. She did not answer at once. She was remembering he had looked at her in the coffee shop just that way when he was deceiving her about Perry's connection with the Golden Totem.

And she kept expecting some decisive action from Perry. Hadn't he promised he would lead her and laugh with her and take care of her always on the more venturesome road? An unquenchable spark of faith made her turn to him now in wordless appeal.

He stood in the pitiless light from a porthole—tall, disheveled, with the pallor of prolonged dissipation showing thru the stubble on his face.

"Lynn." His voice was hesitant, uncertain. "Don't turn back. Come on to the mine just for tonight . . . Lynn . . . please." His slim, unsteady hand was reaching toward her. His quivering lips were trying to smile at her. And his long lashed hazel eyes, imploring her, suddenly brimmed with tears.

Lynn's heart twisted in a shocked sort of pity and shame for him. She wanted to run from him, but his very weakness dissolved her will. To her dismay there surged up in her a feeling fiercely protective and primitive that made her want to clasp him close in her arms and shield him from—she didn't know what.

She clenched her hands at her sides. She hated to feel this way. It was all wrong. It was——

"You'll come, Lynn." Greer, who had been watching her expressive young face, spoke with quiet certainty.

For an instant her shoulders sagged. "Yes," she agreed tonelessly. "I'll come. But I won't stay. You must bring me back to town in the morning."

The three sat down to breakfast. Perry drank quantities of ice water and tomato juice, but ate nothing. Before the meal was over he begged to be excused and disappeared aft.

Lynn went up to the pilot-house with Greer when he took over for the man at the wheel. The big Alaskan was as casually pleasant as tho there had been no change in their relations. Presently he suggested that she take the wheel and let him teach her to "skipper the boat." Lynn assented without enthusiasm. She did not think there was any activity in the world that could keep her mind off her disillusionment and despair.

To her surprise, her interest was held from the moment she felt the vessel respond like a sentient thing to her slightest shift of the wheel. She began to enjoy the sense of power under control that came to her as she swung the Prospector along the smooth, river-like channel. As mile after mile fell astern and was lost between the timbered folds of the hills, an unthinking peace came to her.

Then, abruptly, the cruiser shoved its nose out between two headlands, and Lynn was literally jerked into wonder by the glories of refracted light that met her gaze.

What Has Gone Before

Lynn Clonard, alone in the world, spends her Easter vacation with one of her Aunt Julie's friends and meets Perry Holloway, gay and irresponsible, who is heading for Alaska. Perry asks her to put the Clonard motto, "When two roads open up before me I choose the more venturesome," to work—to marry him, that they may go to Alaska together to seek their fortune. They become engaged and will marry at Christmas time. Perry wires her he has a job as foreman in a mine and pleads with her to come immediately to Alaska and marry him there. Lynn has enough money for a small trousseau and a one-way passage. Court Faber, a young mining engineer, rescues Lynn and her dog from an accident on the boat. Perry is late meeting the boat, arriving with two friends—all three hopelessly drunk. At the hotel Lynn tells Perry she will not marry him. Jefferson Greer is approached by Faber and refuses to grant him a right of way to Faber's claim. Lynn finds she has less than $2. A wedding gift of a $250 check arrives from Henrietta Holloway, Perry's cousin. In the coffee shop Lynn overhears Greer say he is in need of a secretary.

1945 Chicago Opera Season Extended to Six Weeks

on the Aisle
by Claudia Cassidy

JUST what goes in the talk about Chicago's own creative theater, stemming from the success of "The Glass Menagerie"? Eddie Dowling promised to tell me over pheasant and wild rice at Riccardo's, tho it turned out to be Riccardo's party, as that picturesque gentleman insisted he couldn't sell game—an agreeable excuse for hospitality in a man who wins three ways, anyhow, having the sport of hunting, the pleasure of eating, and the delight of painting his spoils. They make engaging watching, these two. Riccardo looks like John Barrymore in "The Jest," and Dowling looks like anybody or anything he is momentarily impersonating, including a papa bear impatiently swiping at his face while the mama bear tries to coax her runaway offspring down from a tree.

Dowling's Plan for a Resident Producing Theater

They make good listening, too. There was Riccardo's tale of the days when he tried in vain to peddle his pictures, and a dealer of sorts told him to copy Rembrandts and he would buy them. In desperation the artist took a canvas, hurried home and worked two days reproducing a plumed cavalier. The dealer liked it, for $5. To the shocked painter he said, just work faster, that's all. So Riccardo took 10 canvases, made a perforated drawing, slapped it on them all, and did a pre-war assembly line job, slashing off all the hats in a row, then the faces, and so on to completion. In 24 hours he gave the astounded dealer 10 plumed cavaliers and threatened to ram his teeth down his throat if he didn't pay the $50. The aftermath is that Riccardo later saw one of those jobs, handsomely framed in a good light. It cost the proud owner $500.

All tales considered, including Dowling's about how the Oberammergau players got back to Bavaria, perhaps it was a good thing he had jotted down most of what he meant to tell me, because he could hand it over hastily as he fled for the Civic theater and the curtain that can't go up without him. As a document it may not be world shaking, but it could mean a lot to Chicago, and it holds one genuinely astounding statement. To start a resident theater in Chicago he doesn't want any money. He has plenty of that. He wants [a] the Civic theater under the right terms and [b] a subscription audience. The rest, he says, is a cinch.

Where would the money come from? In a manner of speaking, from "The Glass Menagerie," which is Mr. Dowling's baby. He fell in love with the script, cajoled Laurette Taylor into returning to the stage, got Jo Mielziner to bring it pictorially to life, raised the money to back it, and appeared as co-producer, co-star, and director. It was purely an experiment in which he believed—that is, he believed it would be good. He didn't know if it would bring a nickel to the box office. But it is a resounding hit, and it can aid the newer venture two ways. Some of the money it makes will be turned back into the resident theater project, and it has attracted plenty more. In the theater, as elsewhere, nothing succeeds like success.

Getting right down to brass tacks, Mr. Dowling would like to try for a season lasting from September to May. He would start with four plays, at prices ranging from $3.60, $3, $2.40, and $1.80 to $1.20. He would like a small group of responsible Chicagoans to act as trustees of subscription funds, to be held in a downtown bank where as a gesture of good faith Dowling would deposit $25,000.

World's Finest Company His Goal.

One of the ways to approximate the moon is to shoot for it. Mr. Dowling is no piker. He says, and means every word of it, "I want to have the finest company in the world. I can do it with support by the people of Chicago and the surrounding cities. We could do several new plays each season, sending them on to New York, and many interesting revivals. Many stars would love to reappear in their favorite roles. I would like, too, to give the young actors of the middle west a chance. I know how hard it is to get a start."

If he gets his Chicago producing theater, here are some of the plays he would like to do: Eugene O'Neill's "The Iceman Cometh," for which Dowling repeatedly has been named to act the leading role, and any other new O'Neill plays [is that indignant sound the Theater Guild screaming?]; Sean O'Casey's "Purple Dust" and "World on Wallpaper"; George Savage's "Phoenix and the Dwarfs"; Henri Gehron's "The Comedian"; Maurice Maeterlinck's "Sister Beatrice," and new plays by Saroyan and Tennessee Williams. Revivals by the dozen crop up in conversation, notably Philip Barry's "Here Come the Clowns."

In my time, Chicago hasn't had a better offer. Many of us long have felt that in addition to what Broadway sends us, some of it brilliant, some of it bedraggled, we need something fresh, creative, and stimulating of our own. Not to wave a flag about it, one of the things we owe those who come back from war is the best possible world to live in. To many of us, that world is incomplete without theater and music. At the moment, most of the young go where they are sent, which is one of the more ironical sacrifices in a war for freedom. But the end of that time seems to be coming in sight. When it does come, any city has two choices by way of its restless young. It can make a place for them, or lose them, and if it loses too many for too long, it is doomed, tho it may be a long time dying.

Subscription Up to You.

In not too many years, Chicago has lost its topflight opera company, its brilliant Ravinia opera, the Goodman Repertory group, the Saidenberg symphonietta and the lively Illinois symphony. It has seen a sharp decline in the prestige of the Chicago symphony. Opera is fighting to come back, and I am in Fausto Cleva's corner because of the good start he made last season. I am in Eddie Dowling's corner because I believe he will give us a theater worth calling our own. The terms of the theater lease are up to the management of the building, but the subscription is up to you. If you are interested and want to participate, let Mr. Dowling know at the Civic theater, where "The Glass Menagerie" is eloquent evidence of what might happen.

Just one more thing, at the risk of being accused, however unjustly, of partiality to the Irish. Many a producer has spoken to me solemnly about what he could do for Chicago. But Dowling, flashing the grin of that fascinating fellow framed on the Wingfields' wall, invariably adds, "Hey, don't forget, Chicago can do a lot for Dowling, too."

Talent Being Signed Up by Fausto Cleva

By Albert Goldberg.

Another season of opera by the Chicago Opera company is assured following the meeting of the board of governors last week.

The new season will be of six weeks duration, one week longer than last year, and will begin on Monday, Oct. 8. Fausto Cleva again has been appointed general artistic director and at the moment is in New York engaging artists for the coming season. Repertory for the 1945 season will be announced upon Mr. Cleva's return. It is understood that there will be two important revivals, consisting of a French and a German work. Mr. Cleva already has conducted auditions for young American singers and has discovered three whom he hopes to present in major roles during the season.

The policy to be pursued during the new season will deviate but little from that of the last one. There again will be performances on Monday, Wednesday, Friday, and Saturday nights, and Saturday afternoons. The Friday night performances will continue as popular priced events, sponsored by the board of education for public school students. One agreeable feature of the new season promises to be Mr. Cleva's determination to dispense with the amplification system which proved so annoying to many customers last year.

For one of the few times in history a season of opera fully paid its own way solely on box office receipts, concessions, and program advertising last season. As a result of this happy situation the board of governors last week mailed out checks totaling $32,000 to the 370 persons who contributed from $5 to $500 to guarantee the 1944 season. Contributions are now being received from guarantors for next season. The season just past saw an average attendance of 87 per cent of capacity, compared to a high of 67 per cent in previous seasons. Price scales for next season will remain unchanged, from $1.50 to $6, including tax.

Clarence Kirchway, who previously had been an auditor with the company, has been appointed business manager to succeed James C. Thompson, who resigned because of other interests and because of disagreement with objectives of the company. Mr. Thompson remains on the board of governors. Officers elected for the 1945 season include John D. Allen, chairman of the board; Abner J. Stillwell, president and treasurer; William D. Saltiel, secretary, and William H. Stevenson, assistant to the board. Paul Galvin and Paul V. Harper were added to the board of governors.

Stevens' Boulevard Room is Tops in New Cafe Shows

Hildegarde Is Attraction at Palmer House

By Will Davidson.

Trying to present in one review an adequate report on all the new cafe shows that have just opened, is like trying to present in one revue all the talent that makes up those shows.

By every standard of judgment, the laurels for the week must go to the Stevens hotel for its spectacular and immensely entertaining "Midwinter Melee" in the Boulevard room. Since Anthony Nelle took over the production job at the Stevens he has been building toward just such a revue—and this is his crowning achievement.

There isn't a big show business name in the cast—excepting always, of course, Ted Weems who plays such an elegant musical background but does not enter into the festivities. But there is quality in large doses. LeLage and her aerial contortions give the show its thrill and flash. Blackface Jack Powell and his idiotically expert drumming provide fast fun. Low, Hite, and Stanley, with their incongruous appeal, and their delightful satire on the phonograph-pantomime skit offer humor in another vein. Galante and Leonardo are suave, smooth, beautiful dancers and with their accent on color and motion carry on the theme of the show beautifully.

This wealth of talent is expertly blended by the work of singing Nora Neal and Phil Kinsman, the parading beauties known as the Six Sophisticates, and Nelle's precision line, the Even Stevens. The costuming is excellent, ranging from the black and white gay '90s' dresses of the Sophisticates in the opening scene to the flashy latin outfits in the crashing Bolero number. There's a black-light-face skit called Harlem at Night, which is reminiscent of the ballet "Fancy Free," and an extremely colorful serpentine number as a finale. It all adds up to a superb, continental music hall type of show—one of the outstanding ones the town has seen.

Ted Weems has built himself a new band since he completed his two years in the merchant marine, and it is a strong, well controled organization with a generous library of very danceable arrangements. His singers, Johnny Russell and Judy King are ideally suited to Ted's type of music. There is a lot of life in this band.

In considerable contrast to the well balanced Stevens show is the Hildegarde revue in the Empire room of the Palmer House. Here is a high example of an entirely different production technique—the concentration of every facility upon one star.

Merriel Abbott and electrical wizard Sig Chakow, have built an enormously effective setting for Hildegarde—a piercingly blue sky backdrop with its myriad stars, its "H-i-l-d-e-g-a-r-d-e" in lights, its revolving replica of a phonograph record. Hildy's piano platform is of glass, with colored lights underneath. There is a dramatic overhead spot. Hildy, herself, is gowned in revealing silver metal cloth.

The Abbott girls, in smart street costumes, hail Hildegarde with the assistance of an organ grinder and monkey, and with the army type hand radio sets. It is a particularly appropriate introduction for the Milwaukee talkie. The entire setting is a tour-de-force of promotion, a crafty, expert job of salesmanship. And brother, does it sell the crowd! You can hear the adulation. You can see the converts falling by the press table.

Except, of course, one glum guy who seems fated to go on thinking "if only Sosenko would let Hildegarde be natural, would let her do more of the serious type of songs she sings so well, would at least furnish her some modern and smart material if she must keep on being a cloisonne clown!"

But year by year Hildy's income goes up, her audience grows, and it is probably naive to suggest that artistic merit has its satisfactions, too. Mighty hocum from a little corn does grow, and Hildegarde is past mistress of the art. She can make an off color song like "In Paree It's Love" acceptable to the Empire room. She can plug her radio sponsor continuously and get applause and laughs. She can put them in the aisles with stuff like "Alec! Alec! Alectrician!" It is a wonderful demonstration of sheer assurance, overwhelming audacity. I merely happen to prefer the Hildegarde who sings "The Last Time I Saw Paris," or "Darling, Je Vous Aime Beacoup."

Maitre Fritz Hagner is just one of the many who are happy over Hildy's excellent drawing power. For instance, Tommy Wonder, the handsome and clever dancer, has a ready made audience for his very unusual and laudable work. So does Bob Dupont, the juggler. And Bob Grant, Hildy's favorite orchestra leader, gets a chance to sell his quiet, society type music.

The Chez Paree is counting heavily on the amazing humor of Zero Mostel to keep it in the top show bracket these nights. Zero picked a zero night to open, but he had a big crowd, and he awarded it with some of the funniest histrionics of the season. His impersonation of a coffee percolator is one of those completely hilarious bits of insanity that leave you breathless. Its only fault is its length. His famous caricature of a demagog, Sen. Politax P. Pellagra, is a classic of futile fuming. He does a delirious Durante, and a better than standard Boyer. And then there is the Board of Education Boor who has considerable difficulty in explaining the facts of life to the pupils of P. S. 156.

Mostel is a very funny gent. He makes no attempt to be a comedian in any other way than in the impressions which are his forte. That is both to his credit and his disadvantage. In a big room like the Chez, and with a rather average show to back him up, Zero's lack of intimate contact with the audience leaves the show a little in the air. He isn't to be blamed personally for that, of course.

Pierre D'Angelo and Vanya, held over for this show, do some of their better numbers, such as the Oklahoma routine, and a samba to Tico Tico. Dolores Gray, the tall, blonde beauty, does her rather unusual songs effectively. She's pleasant to listen to. Fanchon does a number of dance solos to open the show, and the Adorables repeat their Lili Marlene routine as the feature of three numbers.

Give Gay Claridge a bow and a laurel for playing a neat show and for his continuing good work as a dance band leader.

Benny Fields is the big name this week. He opens at the Rio Cabana Friday. Dr. Marcus will be held over, and deservedly. . . . Billy Bishop, the popular Canadian band leader, returns to the Trianon ballroom Tuesday for a month. He'll be followed by Art Kassel on March 6.

When "Ice-Capades of 1945" arrives at the Chicago Arena for two weeks starting March 1, Donna Atwood and other slim young favorites will have their usual share of the limelight. But the management sends word that "The Old Smoothies" will get some extra attention. As all skating fans know, they are Orrin Markhus and Irma Thomas, not so young and not so slim, who sweep over the ice in the smoothest of waltzes. Mr. Markhus puts the ice and his size in their place by wearing an ice cream suit.

Liberal Arts for Teachers' Colleges Hit

By The Rev. John Evans.

President R. W. Fairchild of Illinois State Normal university considers that the permission, granted by the legislature, to teachers' colleges enabling them to add curricula in liberal arts and vocational work for the benefit of students not preparing to teach has "all but wrecked that soundness of educational policies developed thru the years."

Speaking at Normal, President Fairchild pointed out that when I. S. N. U. was founded in 1857 as a professional school for the education of teachers there had been a movement for 20 years in the United States to develop institutions—apart from colleges and universities—which would devote themselves exclusively to the special preparation of teachers.

"But since 1930," he said, "there have been evidences of unwillingness by the state teachers colleges to restrict their work to their original fields of teacher education," and in a letter to all members of the legislature he stated that "four of the five state teachers colleges of Illinois are not satisfied to adhere strictly and solely to their original purpose of educating teachers." He attributed this divergence of the colleges from their originally established intent to a desire for greater expansion in plant equipment and enrollment, better football teams, and a more spectacular showing in reports to the public.

"But it has never been demonstrated," Dr. Fairchild continued, "that institutions the size of most teachers colleges can undertake diversified programs and do outstanding work in any one of the areas. Something is certain to suffer and experience indicates that it is the education of teachers that loses out to the greatest extent."

President Fairchild stressed that the action of other colleges would not in the least affect I. S. N. U.—except definitely to plan for the retention of its status as a professional school—and that its major concern was to continue developing programs which would demonstrate that the education of teachers can be so highly professional "that this type of school can be likened to other professional schools such as medicine, law and engineering."

The latest division organized at I. S. N. U. is that of Special Education—designed for nurses, teachers of handicapped children together with rehabilitation courses for disabled personnel. Since President Fairchild assumed office plant equipment value has been increased by one million dollars, half of which was spent on the library erected jointly at federal and state expense.

Placement records show that over the last 10 years 4,339 students have been graduated of whom 3,468 went immediately into teaching in Illinois schools. Also there have been many teachers, who did not graduate at I. S. N. U., but who took short courses or special examinations to meet certification requirements.

Mantel in the Berry house. From an illustration in "Georgetown Houses of the Federal Period, 1780-1830," by Deering Davis, Stephen Dorsey, and Ralph Cole Hall [Architectural Publishing Co.].

What Future Air Age Is to Be Like

"WINGED PEACE," by William A. Bishop. [Viking, $2.75.]

"THE COMING AIR AGE," by Reginald M. Cleveland and Leslie E. Neville. [Whittlesey House, $2.75.]

Reviewed by Will Davidson.

That the future of the world—peaceful or troubled—lies in the sky is a rather obvious truth. The air age is here and its effect upon the everyday lives of everyday people is going to be very tangible.

What is needed now is an awareness of the air age—its reality and its meanings. Not only government leaders must be aware of what is coming—the man in the small town must know too, and must understand what he sees in the sky so that he can lend his voice to the discussions that will produce the world's future.

These two books stand as imperative reading for all of us. Air Marshal "Billy" Bishop's book may well put him in a class with another great Billy—Mitchell—as a prophet of the air age. He has grown up with aviation since the days when he was Canada's ace of aces in World War I., and he understands passionately the true nature of global flight. There is a burning urgency about his writing that can't help firing the reader's imagination, stirring him to a study of just what must be done if we are to live in peace rather than to live in fear of instantaneous and unheralded chaos at the start of World War III.

Bishop traces aviation's strides from Kittyhawk to robot bomb and pleads for a future in which mankind recognizes the necessity of a global concept of global air rights. He is impatient with nationalism and profit motives, but with the impatience of the true prophet who sees far beyond what man can comprehend at the moment. If his ideas seem visionary it is because he has vision, and points a way that it would be well to follow.

"The Coming Air Age" is a quieter, more informative book, but one that packs its own emphasis. It is a far more practical book than Bishop's, for it analyzes the air age not only from the ethical side but from the very important side of the air industry today. Knowing that a global concept must eventually be achieved, the authors seek a practical step that can be taken now and which will lead to that high goal.

The authors know that flying progresses by evolution, not revolution, and they provide tremendous amounts of information on the practical problems of the air industry. They know some day we'll fly to London in three hours, but they know that there is a very urgent financial problem plaguing the industry today that must be settled if there is to be any industry after the war.

How Hymns Have Stirred Men and Aided Religion

"HYMNS IN THE LIVES OF MEN," by Robert Guy McCutchan. [Abingdon-Cokesbury, $1.50.]

Reviewed by Russell MacFall.

Next to the Bible itself, hymns have been perhaps the strongest influence with which Christianity has spread its principles thruout the world. Dean McCutchan, former head of the music school at DePauw university and editor of the Methodist hymnal as well as other hymn collections, discusses in this book the contributions which pagan music and culture, Roman and Greek thought, the medieval ages, and modern times have made to our body of hymns, which are, as the poem puts it, "life of ages, richly poured."

Of particular interest is Dean McCutchan's account of the progress of hymnology in America, from the first period of authoritarian singing derived from European church principles, thru a time of reaction which verged on melodic anarchy, to the present time, when the churches have sought for unity in hymns as well as in creeds, and have attempted to purge their music of dogma, emotionalism, and poor taste. To this cause he and his fellow makers of hymnals have contributed.

He concludes that "our hymnody may be a leaven which is working quietly, unceasingly, toward the bringing about of an organic union among our churches which may be a greater factor in determining the future course of events in this world than we now dream."

Book Tells All About Producing Radio Programs

"RADIO PRODUCTION DIRECTING," by Albert R. Crews. [Houghton Mifflin, $3.60.]

In 550 pages Albert Crews proves conclusively that radio production directing is more than getting the program on the air and off on time.

"The radio production director is a painter," he says. "He uses a loudspeaker for his canvas; actors, speakers, music, sound effects for his colors, and a mixing panel for his palette. He must consider himself a conductor as well as a partner-creator of a symphony in sound."

Mr. Crews headed the department of radio in Northwestern's school of speech until 1943, when he joined NBC's Chicago division as a production director. He is a co-director for the NBC-Northwestern summer radio institute. This is one of a series of three texts he is writing. It is straightforward, thoro, and exhaustive. It covers every one and everything one is likely to encounter as a radio director, from Orson Welles to Petrillo or the federal communications commission's rules and regulations. LARRY WOLTERS.

A RIVER that interferes in politics, rearranges geography, dabbles in real estate—and the people who lived along the banks have been very like it. Stanley Vestal, one of America's great frontier writers, has written the history of America's mightiest river, THE MISSOURI, twenty-sixth volume in the Rivers of America series. It is rich in authentic historical lore and full of native humor. Illustrated by the distinguished American artist, Getlar Smith.

THE LITERARY SPOTLIGHT

by Fanny Butcher

THE FRIENDS OF AMERICAN WRITERS [all lady friends] had the piquant pleasure of a gentleman for luncheon the other day, when Frederic Babcock addressed a Wedgwood roomful at Marshall Field's on the subject, "Books and Authors in War Time."

Before his talk Mrs. Colin M. Higgins, president of the club, introduced Marianna Thurber, in the becoming uniform of the army librarian, who has charge of the library at Vaughan hospital, to which the F. A. W. are going to contribute books. . . . Miss Thurber described the difference between the army library installations, of which there are 2,500 or more in the country, and the usual public library. . . . In Vaughan hospital the setting is as nearly like a home as possible. . . . The men may smoke. . . . The library is open seven days a week and six evenings. . . . Miss Thurber thinks that such library use may affect post-war library planning. . . . One hundred thirty men a day visit the library. . . . A truck of books visits all of the wards every day, and from it the men choose what they wish to read. . . . In a word, books are a vital part of the hospitalization.

Women's Awakening.

Mr. Babcock said that more than 2,000 writers are all now aimed at furthering the war effort. . . . He quoted: "Books are weapons in the war of ideas." . . . Some 800 radio stations and 1,500 daily newspapers help to make our citizenship [which is 95 per cent literate] the best informed public in the world. . . . Prior to Pearl Harbor, he said, a large percentage of the books published were romantic novels, and these were traditionally written for women. . . . But that is all changed now, for women have awakened to world affairs—especially to World war affairs.

The speaker named as his two favorite books about the war "Into the Valley," by John Hersey [whose "Bell for Adano," incidentally, has had one of the most spectacular careers of any of the war books—novel, movie, Broadway play, and into Braille for all the institutions which have lending libraries for the blind], and "Happy Land," by MacKinlay Kantor. . . . He likes them, he said, because they are brief and to the point. . . . He received appreciative, if silent, applause from this Spotlighter when he said that too many books nowadays are too long for the time the average reader has to spend. . . . He reminded his listeners of a famous author's lengthy letter which ended: "I am sorry this letter is so long. If I had had time, I would have made it shorter." . . . The really great literature of this conflict will be written after the war, as were the great books about the first World war, Mr. Babcock predicted. . . . He ended his talk with a sage word of advice which he asked the F. A. W. members to pass on to the young writers, to one of whom they present a sizeable award each year [$750 for 1944]. . . . His advice: to write about what they know, to say what needs to be said, and then stop.

The Life of Eugene V. Debs.

Irving Stone, author of "Immortal Wife," writes that he is working on a biographical novel about the life and times of Eugene V. Debs. . . . He wants help from any old friends of his hero—letters, papers, documents, anecdotes, reminiscences—and asks also for help with material on Daniel de Leon, Samuel Gompers, Victor Berger, Morris Hillquit, Robert G. Ingersoll, Eugene Field, Bill Nye, James Whitcomb Riley, and "Debs' many other associates between 1875 and 1925." . . . If you have material to contribute, write to Mr. Stone at Box 236, Encino, Cal.

A letter comes from John Thomas Lee anent Mr. Stone's "Immortal Wife," about which I had said in a review: "One wonders why her biography has gone so long unwritten." . . . The letter says: "An admirable biography of Jessie Benton Fremont was written by Catherine Coffin Phillips, and printed in San Francisco in 1935 by John Henry Nash, the famous typographer. The book is an excellent piece of writing, to which Mrs. Phillips devoted painstaking care. It is far superior to Mr. Stone's mixture of fact and fiction."

"Out to Old Aunt Mary's."

Here's a sidelight on my memory of eating his last birthday cake with James Whitcomb Riley and watching him unwrap an enormous birthday cake facsimile of "The Frost Is on the Punkin" from an unknown admirer who signed herself merely "Old Aunt Mary." . . . It comes from Helen B. Randolph of Marion, Ind., and it says: "I suppose in time all things are answered. Today I've read with more than usual interest your Spotlight. . . . Twenty-five years ago I became acquainted with 'Old Aunt Mary,' and her daughter is still one of my best friends. Early in my friendship I was told of the cake in the shape of a 'punkin' that had been sent to Mr. Riley on his birthday in the name of 'Old Aunt Mary,' with no other identification. Aunt Mary was [she has been gone several years] Mrs. Clara Ware of Warren, Ind. She was an extraordinarily fine cook—taking all the top prizes at all the fairs for miles around. She also wrote a cook book."

A biographer of Eugene V. Debs, or even of James Whitcomb Riley himself, mightn't be interested in that unimportant detail in his life, but it seemed an especially charming one. . . . Apparently it has had 30 years of practical anonymity.

Mrs. Stowe's Autograph.

On display in the Abraham Lincoln Book shop in Michigan av. is a holograph letter written by Harriet Beecher Stowe on March 10 [and nobody will now ever know the year, unless the person to whom it was written told her descendants.] . . . It reads, "My dear little girl: Most willingly and affectionately I send you my autograph. Hoping some day to see you I sign myself

Your true and loving friend, H. B. Stowe."

It was thus she usually signed herself; almost never Harriet Beecher Stowe. . . . "Harriet" in the flesh is Helen Hayes' latest artistic triumph. . . . Her private triumph is undeniable; the play is debatable. . . . We used to write plays like it for high school theatricals, but Helen Hayes redeems it. . . . For theater goers know of the illuminating life of Harriet Beecher Stowe, published in 1941, and called "Crusader in Crinoline," by Forrest Wilson. . . . You'll find his "Harriet" a trifle more on the proportions of a good French dressing than is the drama by Florence Ryerson and Colin Clements. . . . More oil than vinegar, but with the biting quality perceptible. . . . The sharpness in the play is wholly disguised by the oil.

A Little About the Movies on City's Screens

"Bowery to Broadway." The story tells of two competing beer garden owners who try to outdo each other with their starring talent. Some of the leading characters in the all-star cast are portrayed by Maria Montez, Jack Oakie, Susanna Foster, and Turhan Bey. Palace.

"She's a Sweetheart." A service men's center romance between Larry Parks and Jane Frazee is the basis of this plot. Jane Darwell is the "mother" to the boys and adds to the romantic interest. Oriental.

"Our Hearts Were Young and Gay." Filmed from the book of the same title, it tells of the adventures of Cornelia Otis Skinner and Emily Kimbrough on their unchaperoned trip thru Europe in 1923. The leading characters are portrayed by Diana Lynn and Gail Russell. Chicago.

"Keys of the Kingdom." Father Francis Chisholm [Gregory Peck], about to be retired from his duties in China, allows his monsignor guest to read the journal which deals with his life and the Chinese people. Roddy McDowell, Vincent Price, and Thomas Mitchell also appear in the film. State-Lake.

"The Falcon in Hollywood." The 10th in the Falcon series depicts a cunning murder committed on the lot of a motion picture studio. The film presents Tom Conway and Barbara Hale. Grand.

• • •

Light Comedy Led Film Fare for January

JANUARY'S BEST MOVIES.
Hollywood Canteen.
Hail the Conquering Hero.
The Doughgirls.
Together Again.
Our Hearts Were Young and Gay.
Keys of the Kingdom.

By Mae Tinee.

January wasn't too bad a month as far as movies went. Most of the better pictures were lighthearted comedies, and just what the doctor ordered to help you forget your troubles.

"Hollywood Canteen." Them as like big names probably will want to rush right over to see this film. There are some excellent performances, loads of stars and two name bands playing some of the most popular new song hits.

"Hail the Conquering Hero" is another of Preston Sturges' small town comedies, full of a pleasant sort of hokum, with some smart direction and casting and plenty of ingenious humor. Most people will feel they get their money's worth.

"The Doughgirls" is a giddy farce about war time crowding in Washington. There are some pretty good gags and, all in all, it's not a bad little comedy.

"Together Again." Here we have all the ingredients for box office happiness—a popular team of attractive stars, Dunne and Boyer, an excellent supporting cast; a frothy plot, dialog that's smarter and smoother than average, and deft direction. Movie fans will eat it up.

"Our Hearts Were Young and Gay." The story probably is familiar in a general way because of the book's popularity, and the plot is fairly negligible, but there are plenty of laughs and on the whole it's good entertainment for people of all ages. A pleasant change from the pseudo-sophistication which is so prevalent in so many movies.

• • •

"Keys of the Kingdom" will not disappoint the thousands who read Dr. Cronin's novel. The spirit of the tale has been kept intact and the film has a moving power and dignity. . . . The entire cast is excellent and features many outstanding performances. Direction was sensitive and thoughtful. Seeing "The Keys of the Kingdom" is two hours well spent.

Clergymen Write of Problems and Crises of Life

"PRISONERS' QUEST," by D. H. C. Read, C. F. [Macmillan, $1.50.]
"PERSONAL CRISIS," by Carl Heath Kopf. [Macmillan, $2.]

Reviewed by Edith Weigle.

In a prison camp in Germany Capt. Read, a British chaplain, gave a series of talks on religion to officers and their orderlies who had been captured in France, Greece, or Crete, men representing a wide variety of businesses and professions in civilian life. The discussions, gathered together in "Prisoners' Quest," answer the often asked questions of the doubter and agnostic: "Is God a myth?" "Why believe in God?" "Is man really a free agent?" "What determines right and wrong?" etc.

This chaplain knows his men, the way their minds work, and their problems which, of course, are universal problems. He presents a powerful argument for Christianity, his approach being via the intellect rather than the emotions.

His book is well worth reading by those whose religion is part of their lives, as well as by those who are working to gain faith. It offers to all a realistic view of eternal truths and comfort for the soul in difficult times.

Carl Heath Kopf, pastor of Mount Vernon church, Boston, in his little volume, "Personal Crisis," writes of the chapters in a human life: of being born, of choosing a vocation, of choosing a mate, of "the danger of success," of sickness, failure, and finally of dying. Many will find helpful the talks and the prayers that conclude each. The style is simple and informal.

Novel Poses Conflict of Nationality

"TWO SOLITUDES," by Hugh MacLennan. [Duell, Sloan and Pearce, $3.]

Reviewed by Walter Havighurst.

There are, of course, two Canadas—English and French, Protestant and Catholic—and for two hundred years the two strains have remained separate tho contained in a single national life. In fiction they have existed separately, as, for example, the beautiful "Maria Chapdelaine" portrayed the French Canada, and the vigorous Whiteoaks saga has portrayed the Canada of the English. Mr. MacLennan's novel is ambitious enough to attempt to bring the two group legends together in a single book, and it is big and broad and understanding enough to be successful. This fine novel spans Canada as firmly as does the Canadian Pacific railway.

Toronto, on the Lake Ontario shore, is the heart of the English Canada, and Quebec, on its rampart above the St. Lawrence, is the French capital. Between the two lies Montreal, a hybrid city, where the two strains meet, and here most of the action of this novel is laid.

More intensely the two strains meet in the person of Paul Tallard, who thruout his boyhood felt the dual streams coursing in his blood. So he was pulled both ways. In school, in the university, as a professional hockey player, a seaman, and a novelist, he was never free from that conflict. And it was thru his inner dilemma that we finally come to grasp the theme of the novel of Canada that he left unfinished in 1939 at the outbreak of war.

The theme of Mr. MacLennan's novel is that in love two solitudes protect each other. In a measure that theme must refer to the love affair of Paul Tallard and Heather Methuen, but the book is less subjective and romantic than that. So one feels that the two solitudes are the dual streams in Canadian life, the two "group-legends," which, tho separate, are a part of one history and one destiny. "Two Solitudes" leaves an impression of depth and of stature. On the shelf of memorable Canadian novels it deserves a prominent place.

What to Do About a Cold: Go to Bed

"THE COMMON COLD," by Noah D. Fabricant, M.D. [Ziff-Davis, $1.50.]

After reading this 100 page discussion of the most common virus infection that plagues us, I recalled the old joke about the man with a cold who was told by his physician: "Follow directions, and cure will come in three weeks; do nothing, and it will take 21 days."

Dr. Fabricant analyzes the various factors responsible for drop in reserve—overheating, chilling, fatigue, etc. Other chapters consider complications such as inflammation within the sinuses, the middle ear, etc.; atmospheric conditions, indoors and out; allergy; treatment, including vaccines, special diets, the sulfonamides, etc.

Conclusion: Go to bed and stay there until you are well.

Ukrainian History and Culture Viewed

"THE UKRAINE," by William Henry Chamberlin. [Macmillan, $1.75.]

A Ukrainian wife gave Mr. Chamberlin an "in" with the Ukrainians during his 12 years in Russia for the Christian Science Monitor. Hence, more than the average American newspaperman sojourning abroad, he was able to get into the spirit of the people whose case for autonomy he pleads. In 90 pages he contrives to sketch their history and picture their culture. He depicts a freedom loving people of 40 millions, for the most part rural, with stirring traditions and literature, and with a thousand years of even tougher luck than the Poles.

LAURENCE T. HERON.

"China is big, baffling and bewildering. To cover this huge topic in a readable book takes a literary knack. Lin Yutang is probably the only living writer who could do it. The Vigil of a Nation is a fine performance. Lin Yutang gives his report as a personal book of travel. His intuitions, his graphic strokes, his limber wit and neat analysis of his compatriots convey a concrete, intelligible China."

Satan's Limbs

Most men do evil directly. Women more often do evil indirectly, through their men. Their crimes are subtle. Often the world is deceived; sometimes the evil-doer can conceal even from herself the depth of her responsibility. As Adam's rib, so Satan's limb can be a part more beautiful and dangerous than the whole. That is why such women have interested Ben Ames Williams. Recently he has drawn two great portraits of evil women.

Wine, Women and Song in Old Vienna

"ONCE IN VIENNA," by Vicki Baum. [Didier, $2.50.]

Reviewed by Kenneth Horan.

Wine, women, and song constitute the theme of this novel, written many years ago when Vienna was a brave, gay city, inhabited by chocolate soldiers and curvaceous divas. It tells the story of a group of young women studying for the opera, all of them in love with the most famous tenor in the country who, in turn, was in love with his own wife, who, in turn, was in love with her career.

Vicki Baum.

Transitory and amorous adventures ensue, in which the tenor manages to arrive front stage, back stage and in my lady's chamber. It is almost romantic; that is, it would be romantic if it were real. But instead the love affairs of these people are as imaginary as tho their participants were actually on the stage instead of in a city where song and love were interchangeably marketable.

The curious thing about this story, which creaks along on the wheels of yesteryear, is that it presents a true picture. Vienna was passionately concerned with who could hit the highest note, and to be in the opera was the aim and object of every struggling music student in a city whose entire population was devoted to operatic supremacy.

"Once in Vienna" is a product of Vicki Baum's earlier years, before she won great fame in the United States with her "Grand Hotel," and became a resident of this country. It has been dusted off and brought out in an American edition.

Author Presents Heartening View of Christianity

"HOW TO THINK OF CHRIST," by William Adams Brown. [Scribner's, $3.]

Reviewed by Will Davidson.

During the recurrent conflicts that engulf the world there rises a time-worn challenge to Christianity. In effect it is the double question: "If Christianity is the great religion why are Christian nations involved in war? And if Christianity is perfect, why are there so many differences within the religious structure itself?"

The question is a fair one. The answer, of course, is that the fault lies not with Christianity, but with Christians. And the reason that Christians cannot agree on an interpretation of the belief they all follow is due to an inffective theology. It is to clear up this faulty thinking about Christ that Dr. Brown devoted his life to study, teaching, and contemplation. His book, completed just before his death, is a masterful summation of his thoughts and a guide to clear thinking that should be in the library of every Christian.

Dr. Brown is particularly concerned with uncompromising sectarianism—the sort that makes acceptance of a creed or platform the test of Christian fellowship. What is needed, he says, "is a sense of Christian brotherhood which can reach across the barriers created by honest difference of conviction and find a way to maintain fellowship with all who, however they may differ in other respects, find their supreme loyalty in the Christ." That sense of brotherhood he builds magnificently with his devoted study of the various interpretations of Christ's meaning. His conclusion is one to hearten any Christian.

AMONG THE AUTHORS

By Frederic Babcock.

WILEY T. DICKENS of the Ottawa [Ill.] Daily Republican-Times came to town last week to give this department the final [and authentic] word on what became of all the American relatives of Charles Dickens. . . . Ever since the matter was broached in this column last October, there has been arriving a spate of letters and notes telling of the kin who live, or have lived, in Illinois. . . . As nearly as we can gather from the Ottawa newspaper man and from other sources, this is official regarding the two nearest relatives:

August Noel Dickens, youngest brother of Charles [and grandfather of Wiley T.], published the first newspaper in Amboy, Ill. . . . Afterwards he was employed by the Illinois Central in Chicago, and his body now lies, in an unmarked grave, in Graceland cemetery in this city. . . . Francis Jeffrey Dickens, third son of Charles, was a captain in the Canadian Northwest Mounted police prior to coming to this country for a year of travel. . . . Following his arrival in Moline, Ill., he was stricken at a dinner party at the home of Samson Kennedy, editor of the Moline Republican, and a monument now marks his grave in Riverside cemetery there.

For the foregoing facts we are indebted not only to Wiley T. Dickens, but to these, among many others: Will Griffith of Carbondale, editor of Egyptian Key: the Magazine of Southern Illinois; H. B. Person of Moline, W. W. Reed of Chicago, Edna Whiting-Witherstine of Chicago, Mrs. A. E. B. of Milwaukee, Maud Miller Barr of Moline, Harry Stephen Keeler of Chicago, Elizabeth Atkinson of Chicago, John H. Samuels of Rock Island, Mary Dewhurst Miles of Mount Carroll, C. M. Cochrane of Davenport, Ia., and Donald Glasgow of Bloomington. . . . And that, as far as this column is concerned, winds up the Dickens story.

Elsewhere in this section is Kenneth Horan's review of Vicki Baum's "Once in Vienna." . . . In this connection these two telegrams are published without comment:

"New York, Jan. 24. — Frederic Babcock, Editor, Sunday Book Section, CHICAGO TRIBUNE: We are authorized to release the following statement by Vicki Baum: 'Regarding the publication of a book of mine by Didier, titled "Once in Vienna," I should like to point out that I never wrote a book of this title. I suspect, however, that Didier somehow managed to purchase a book, which I wrote at the age of 15, called then "Stage Door," or the German equivalent, "Eingang zur Buehne." If so, I never authorized the publication, the translation into English, or the title of this adolescent, utterly dated, and ridiculous sin of my early youth. It was my first novel; it was written before the first World war, and it was first published in Germany in 1919.'

"DOUBLEDAY, DORAN & CO."

"New York, Jan. 26. — Frederic Babcock, Editor, Sunday Book Section, CHICAGO TRIBUNE: Many thanks for your telegram. 'Once in Vienna' purchased from Geoffrey Bles, prominent London publisher and owner of English and American rights. London edition issued one year ago, same title, same presentation, same jacket as ours, without protestations from Miss Baum. Indeed, we advised Miss Baum of forthcoming publication in letter sent to her Sept. 22, 1944. Cannot agree this is her first novel or that she at age of 15 was able to show such precocious genius in describing love life of Viennese tenor. Book is selling like hot cakes. Thanks again and our compliments.

"DIDIER, PUBLISHERS."

On a lecture trip to Freeport, Ill., last year the conductor of this column met a charming young matron who was in the midst of writing her first novel. . . . A graduate of Lake Forest college and the National College of Education, Louise A. Neyhart had long been intrigued by the story of the Lincoln-Douglas debate held in Freeport in 1858. . . . She was writing it from the viewpoint of a small boy who made his first trip to town alone to attend the momentous meeting. . . . Now her book, "Henry," is about to be published by Holiday House. . . . Intended primarily for youngsters, it will bear reading by all persons interested in Abraham Lincoln and the principles for which he stood.

Fitzroy Davis is back home in Evanston for a month's vacation before resuming his work on the motion picture version of "Paris Underground." . . . He has been lecturing in the east. . . . Constance Coyle of Houghton Mifflin, in Chicago last week on her way to Boston from the Pacific coast, related that Lloyd C. Douglas, author of "The Robe," is recovering from a long illness and plans to resume work soon on his story of Simon Peter. . . . Prof. John T. Frederick, Dr. John G. Neihardt, and Elmo Scott Watson will speak at the first annual dinner of the Chicago chapter of the Friends of the Middle Border Tuesday evening at the Electric club, 20 N. Wacker dr. . . . Members of the Westerners group are to be guests, and Phyllis Whitney will preside.

Bonds Offered for Best Peace Treaty

Hailed as providing the first awards of their kind since the Bok prize competition of World War I., the national peace treaty contest will get under way Feb. 24. This was announced in Chicago yesterday.

Two thousand dollars in war bonds will be the top award; other prizes will bring the total to $10,000 worth of bonds. Contestants are to be asked to give their ideas of the best possible treaty following the war.

The competition will center around a radio dramatization of the book, "The Gentlemen Talk of Peace," by William B. Ziff, former Chicagoan and author of "The Coming Battle of Germany."

Hide-Out in Guam.

The story of George Tweed, R. M. 1st class, of the United States navy, who hid from the Japs for two and a half years during their occupation of Guam, is told in "Robinson Crusoe, U. S. N.," which Whittlesey House will publish in March. Blake Clark is the author.

"GREEN HAZARD," by Manning Coles. [Doubleday, Doran, $2.]	Tommy Hambledon, British agent, masquerading as Herr Professor at work on secret explosives, gets inside track among Berlin Nazis, and uses a lot of unintentional help from them in checkmating their own schemes, altho skating on thin ice thru some hazardous episodes. "THE 17TH LETTER," by Dorothy Cameron Disney. [Random House, $2.]	An American magazine photographer stumbles into Nazi spy nest in Iceland. His letters to young New York couple bring them into maelstrom of sinister pursuits and death, but they unwittingly serve purpose of Canadian police in landing villians.	Ominous atmosphere that invites reader's apprehensive interest created effectively by introduction of dubious characters. Abundant action in tale, but many angles to clear up in final pages.

Shakespearean Play Revived on Broadway

By John Chapman.

NEW YORK.—[Special.]—The stage continues its happy way by presenting two more samples of show business which on the whole are felicitous—Margaret Webster's "The Tempest" and Michael Todd's "Up in Central Park."

Calling Shakespeare "show business" may irk a scholar here and there, but that is what it is in this case, and it is an utterly complimentary term. Miss Webster, who staged Maurice Evans' revivals and Paul Robeson's "Othello," long has been comfortably and illustriously established as a lady who reveres the bard but is not beyond fixing him up a bit. She will shave a text here and there, telescope scenes, or even ignore scenery if by so doing she can keep a play moving. This is very good show business, and it has been practiced on Shakespeare by everybody from Shakespeare on down.

Always, tho, there are some persons who will holler. If Othello is in a seaport they want to see some ships, and if Ariel leads Stephano and Trinculo thru bogs, thickets, and brambles they want to see same. And, above all, they want to hear their Shakespeare spoken with reverence for every syllable and acted by as heroic a bunch of actors as can be rounded up.

Miss Webster, with the faithful backing of her producer, Cheryl Crawford, has worked up a "tempest" which is interesting from a number of angles.

She has taken a play which is rarely done because it is usually regarded as "nice, but——" and has made it a lively piece of theater. She has cast the Negro actor, Canada Lee, as Caliban, and the Norwegian dancer, Vera Zorina, as Ariel. She has even given Ariel sex by making this early Peter Pan quite definitely a female. She has taken one of Prospero's speeches from an earlier act ["We are the stuff that dreams are made of"] and has made it the closing moment of the play, simply and rightly because it is a perfect cue for dimming out the characters one by one and letting the comedy end on a delightful fade-out.

No reviewer can speak with authority on Shakespeare, even if he is the scholar which I am not, because there is always some one to oppose him—some one to say "This isn't the way it used to be done" or "This isn't the way I'd do it." The only thing to do is express a personal opinion, then dig a foxhole with an old program from "Good Night, Ladies," and fall in.

I think Canada Lee is splendid as Caliban. He wears a make-up as fearsome as anything Lon Chaney the First ever wore, yet he is not content with just crawling around in a false face. He speaks beautifully and thru the make-up comes feeling—bewilderment, hate, pathos, and a belated sense of good judgment.

Splendid, too, is Arnold Moss as Prospero. Here is a Shakespearean figure in the tradition—dignified, assured, clearly thought out, and cleanly spoken. Here is a sorcerer who truly dominates his island and unquestionably confounds his enemies.

Zorina, as Ariel, speaks carefully but cannot hide her accent. She is a stylized sprite, striking attitudes instead of being airy, always conscious of the fact that she is a dancer—and a lovely one. But never did I feel an impulse to quarrel with Zorina or with the choice of her for the part. I just sat there and enjoyed her.

I may not know art, but I know what's fun, and Miss Webster's "The Tempest" is fun.

Michael Todd's show business, "Up in Central Park," is more of an operetta than it is a musical comedy for two reasons: it has music by Sigmund Romberg and a book about how a Times reporter and Cartoonist Thomas Nast exposed Boss Tweed. The Tweed business is a serious affair even now, and so is a Romberg score.

There is a school [sloppy word for a group of thoughtless persons] which says "O, pooh" to Romberg. It's the one which says you whistle his tunes going INTO the theater. I am not a member of the school and have been known to like corn in liquid form, on the cob, or in the theater. A Romberg tune is a Romberg tune, and his duets and male choruses are changeless.

It's an interesting thing, by the way, how melodies often are called reminiscent, which is polite for swiped, when they aren't at all. The songs in "Up in Central Park" sound familiar almost before you hear them, but maybe they aren't. Maybe they are just something you yourself might have created with one finger on the black keys if you could play the piano well enough to hit the black keys. A few years ago Irving Berlin wrote a number, "Easter Parade," which was so simple and so familiar that everybody thought it must have been stolen. Yet nobody could ever find what it was stolen from. It must have been a brand new song. Romberg is like that.

With the playing of the Seventh and Eighth symphonies of Beethoven at the Thursday-Friday concerts of the Chicago Symphony orchestra, Désiré Defauw arrives at the fourth instalment of his current cycle of the works of the Bonh master. This leaves only the Ninth symphony yet to be performed, now scheduled for the fifth and last program of the series at the end of the season. The current program will begin with the overture to "The Ruins of Athens," one of the lesser Beethoven items which has never before been performed on these programs.

Two soloists will be heard on the remaining programs of the week. Joseph Vito, first harpist of the orchestra, will give the first Chicago performance of Harl McDonald's suite, "From Childhood," for harp and orchestra, at the Young People's concert on Wednesday afternoon.

At the Saturday night "Pop" concert Hilda Banks, young American pianist who made her recital debut here in Kimball hall last season, at which time she also performed one of her own compositions, will be heard in Mendelssohn's Concerto No. 1, in G minor. Miss Banks is a pupil of Artur Schnabel.

BOOK NEWS AND REVIEWS

Symons' Death Recalls Book Collecting Days in Chicago

By Harry Hansen.

New York.

WHEN Arthur Symons died the other day in England my mind went back to those hectic book collecting days in Chicago when men were bidding for "Spiritual Adventures" and "The Symbolist Movement in Literature." I went to my bookshelves and opened a volume and saw how harshly time had treated this prophet, who, as far back as 1899, was hailing the poets of ecstasy and mysticism as men who had routed the earth-bound naturalism and objectivity of Zola, the Goncourts, and Flaubert. But the naturalists came back stronger than ever and completely defeated the mystics and in his later years Symons was a lonely man.

That reminded me of the days when Ben Hecht, enthusiastic reader of modern literature, decided that he would not be a book collector. A number of men like Hecht and Vincent Starrett had been "picking up" first editions in Chicago bookstores, the works of Arthur Symons among them. Suddenly they met spirited competition from a reporter who never looked inside a book, but was accumulating a shelf of rare items. This man could talk glibly about imprints, points, mint state and all the chatter of auction rooms; his bookshelf grew. Ben Hecht, who knew what was inside the books and had begun collecting as a sort of sport, witnessed his accumulations with growing disgust. Finally he said: "I'm thru. I'll buy the books I want to read, but to fight for them with a fellow who can't read is not my dish." A few years later our acquisitive friend was graduated into advertising. "Would you like to buy some first editions?" said he.

Maurice Maeterlinck, now 82 and safe in the United States, is the only author now living of those discussed by Symons in his history of the symbolists. Maeterlinck's "Pelleas and Melisande," set to music by Debussy, is being played at the Metropolitan opera. Years ago, when it was sung by Mary Garden, Maeterlinck attended. But he doesn't like opera, as any one who has read his plays must suspect.

A Good Looking Author.

Talk about good looking authors, there's Adria Locke Langley, the picture of health, who talks good common sense and radiates energy. Mrs. Langley is here from Santa Monica to look after details of publication of her novel, "A Lion Is in the Streets," which Whittlesey House will publish this spring and which is getting serial publication as "Lion in the Streets." This is an original, swift moving, and often amusing novel about a political demagogue, the type that is found in all parts of the United States. Mrs. Langley had laid the story in the south because she knows the characters of the region and is an adept at getting their vernacular, but she is originally a Nebraska product.

Mrs. Langley is new to fiction, but has had other writing experience, and in recent months did her stint of war work in a plant that makes parts of planes in Santa Monica. She donned slacks and sweater and I'll wager she made some of the old hands miss a bolt or two when she paraded past. She learned, to her astonishment, that she was well fitted to be a riveter; she had both the muscle and the ability to put the rivet where it belonged. After she left there and was writing her book she met a fellow worker who wanted to know what she was doing. When he heard about her book he persuaded her to bring the manuscript to his home and to read it to a group of friends. Altho the book is a long one they would not let her stop reading until far into the night. Today they are eagerly awaiting its publication, altho it does not deal with them or their plant.

Big Sale of Mauldin Expected.

Among forthcoming books of drawings, "Up Front with Mauldin," which Holt will publish, will have about 40,000 words of reading in it, in addition to the pictures of the boys who make the best of mud and battle and rarely appear without a 10 days' growth of beard on their chins. William Sloane of Holt's says the advance demand is so great that the book may start with as big a first edition as Ernie Pyle's "Brave Men," which is breaking all Holt records.

Another book of drawings will be H. T. Webster's "To Hell with Fishing," to which Ed Zern contributes essays. There will be 50 cartoons. Appleton-Century announces it for May.

More Poems of Emily Dickinson.

Emily Dickinson's reputation as a poet will rise or fall by the evidence in another book of her poems, "Bolts of Melody," to be published in the spring by Harper. They have been edited by Mabel Loomis Todd and Millicent Todd Bingham and carry a foreword by Mark Van Doren, which suggests that they must have merit. Harper also will publish "Ancestors' Brocades," by Millicent Todd Bingham. These books are the result of the end of a family feud that kept these poems from the public for many years. Mrs. Todd had charge of publishing the first books of poems and letters after Emily Dickinson's death, but was called off in 1896. Mrs. Bingham's title, "Ancestors' Brocades" comes from a line in one of the Dickinson poems, "Truth, like ancestors' brocades, can stand alone," which shows you how far afield authors go for titles.

Problems of Peacemaking in Pacific

"AMERICA'S FAR EASTERN POLICY," by T. A. Bisson. [Macmillan, $3.]

Reviewed by Philo M. Buck Jr.

Nothing illustrates more clearly the haphazard nature of international diplomacy during the years between the two World wars than the tangle of moves and counter-moves in the Pacific, during which time Japan with single eye planned and put to use its engine that, when the time came, was to be irresistible.

Thomas Arthur Bisson.

As one reads the record in Mr. Bisson's instructive book, it is easy for even the amateur to point out how the catastrophe might have been avoided, how international coöperation could have saved the day.

The value of this book lies not in any plan the author suggests for post-war international coöperation, but in the scholarly manner in which he points out the problems. Reasonableness and mutual good-will can be trusted to find the answers.

Mr. Bisson clearly and interestingly tells the story of America's far eastern policy for the last half century and more. It has at times been feeble and fumbling, but it has one supreme accomplishment to its credit: it preserved the integrity and sovereignty of China, and permitted the evolution of a national self-consciousness—something unique in Chinese history.

But the author also makes it clear that China's internal problem, at the close of this war, will remain critical—"the reconstruction of China."

Another problem, not so vast, but no less painful, will be the treatment of Japan. The author offers no easy solution. The roots of the malady lie deep in the religious background of Shintoism. It is because of this, and the contaminated levels of Japanese life, that Japanese imperialism differs so sharply from the western, like the British or American.

Whatever their faults, the western empires profess an interest in the education of their peoples. The empire is a training ground for ultimate self-government. It is not so, and never can be so, for Shinto Japan.

Romantic Story of Colonials in the West Indies

"WHO WALK IN PRIDE," by Helene Magaret. [Bruce, $2.50.]

Reviewed by Kenneth Horan.

A romance in the grand manner, this story begins with the French revolution. Three children hide in the basement of a Parisian palace until they can disguise themselves as citizenry and can find a ship to take them to Santo Domingo and their ancestral acres.

The hero is young Antoine Dejean, whose love affair with the beautiful half-breed wife of a rich planter brings disaster not only on his family but on the whole island. Every house owner commands an army of slaves, and the heavy undergrowth of the country permits them to escape from their masters and to band into free units, so that a continuous war is being waged between the whites and the blacks.

The story of the Dejean family is as exciting and eventful as a novel by Dumas, but it is the scenery of the Caribbean which lends it its actual flavor. The author knows this country so well that she describes it with interesting sidelights. Not only the rich coffee and sugar lands, but the heavy undergrowth and the magnificent tropical dwellings make it a kind of dream world.

BOOKMAN'S HOLIDAY

By Delos Avery.

WON'T you draw up a chair to the fire and enjoy with me the pleasure of reflecting that we are not as other men?

Over a cup of tea let us snugly and smugly consider the sins and follies of our forefathers, and how justly they were punished for not resembling you and me.

Judge Samuel Sewall of Boston, an exceedingly conscientious man who presided at the Salem witchcraft trials in pre-Revolution days, condemned 19 wicked women to death because the Devil was in them; and he worried much about the sinfulness of his children, especially Betty, 5.

Betty herself worried even more about this than her father did. She suffered all her life from that painful New England malady, the consciousness of sin. She was pretty sure she would have to spend eternity in hell, an opinion gloomily shared by her pastor, the Rev. Cotton Mather, who could offer no better consolation than the rhetorical groan, "O, why hath satan filled thy heart?"

Judge Sewall was sorry for Betty and for all sinful babies and would read them the frightening 24th chapter of Isaiah, in which "the Lord maketh the earth empty, and maketh it waste, and turneth it upside down, and scattereth the inhabitants thereof." The children were encouraged to think themselves to blame for such disasters.

I have been reading about all this in a book, "Customs and Fashions in Old New England," written in 1893 by Alice Morse Earle, a human question mark who spent years searching old diaries, wills, letters, bills of sale, kitchen recipes, doctors' prescriptions—spying out the intimacies of colonial life.

Puritan babies in those days were understood to be sinful at birth and must be carried instantly to church to be saved from hell by baptism in icewater, complete immersion in some cases. If they died of it, as some did, it was "better so" because they went to heaven.

Betty Sewall was one who survived. She lived 35 years in terror of the devil and became the mother of eight sinful children of her own. The technique for raising a large family was to have as many as possible and trust that some would live. A preacher, John Sherman, had 26 children [with the coöperation of two wives]. One woman became the mother of 27. Benjamin Franklin was one of 17.

Weird protective measures were applied to children. Their feet, to make them tough, were soaked in icy water. They wore thin shoes "that the wet may come freely in." They were forbidden to drink much strong liquor, and their breakfast "small beer" was warmed for them.

They were sent to cold schools, but a fire would be built if the children brought wood for it. Those who brought no wood must not draw near the fire.

Little girls learned to "paint on velvet," little boys to parse Latin. Both sexes recited a dreadful poem called "The Day of Doom."

There was slavery in New England. Indians were bought and sold, but were not good servants. Negroes were better, but there was always the chance that they might hang themselves, cheating their masters. Children, because of the acuteness of the servant problem, were "bound out" at the age of 8. An auctioneer, Samuel Pewter, charged a commission of "sixpence a pound" for selling Negroes. Cotton Mather owned one, a gift from his congregation, that cost 50 pounds and was not worth it because he got drunk.

There were good slaves too. Mrs. Earle found a tombstone at Attleborough with the epitaph:

"Here lies the best of slaves,
Now turning into dust;
Caesar the Aethiopian claims
A place among the just."

It is pleasant to learn that the colonists, with all their gloom, did indulge in the anodyne of alcohol—tho one clergyman held that the drinking of water was not impossible and said "any man would choose it before Bad Beere, Wheay or Buttermilk." Rum was criticized as "bad for Indians," but defenders insisted that "rumm doth as little hurt as the ffrenchman's Brandie."

Hard cider was three shillings a barrel, and one village of 40 families made 3,000 barrels of it in 1721, distilling some to make applejack. Salem had a drink called "whistle-belly-vengeance."

Tea at Salem was described as "rank poison far fetched and dear-bought." It caused "decay of the teeth and brain," not surprising when you learn how the herb was prepared. It was "long-boiled," the liquid was thrown out, and the leaves eaten "with salt and butter."

Aren't you ashamed, great-great-great-great-great-great grandfather?

Those who are old enough to remember when it seemed a glorious miracle to light a city by touching a button will know how Ann Devoore felt when, almost half a century ago, she wrote for the Chap-Book four lines titled "An Electric Light Pole":

O boughless tree, that bars the sky
All naked, grim and stark,
Your blossoms, in a hundred homes,
Bloom out and light the dark!

THURBER'S ZANY HUMOR TO DELIGHT MANY

His Unique Art Reaches Wider Public

"THE THURBER CARNIVAL;" text and pictures by James Thurber. [Harper, $2.75.]

Reviewed by Fanny Butcher.

With the publication of "The Thurber Carnival," the current choice of the Book of the Month club, James Thurber will emerge from the comparative seclusion of a cult into a literary culture.

For years devotees of James Thurber's special brand of the wisdom of the age set down in the phrases of a zany sage have felt that no writer of today quite touches James Thurber for stating facts as tho they were the wildest fancy, and fancies as if they were the veriest facts. And admirers of Thurber's sketchy graphic art can go into guffaws over a hound's eloquent paw, or the look of man-stalking zeal which he can attain with the line of an eyebrow and a mere dot for an eye. He is an artistic "oner," which Mr. Webster defines as "a unique or extraordinary person," and his uniqueness is as evident in his writing as in his amorphous graphic art.

Everybody to date does not like Thurber, and among the thousands who will get the Carnival from the Book of the Month club there will probably be many who will wonder what all the shootin's about. It is an interesting experiment, turning a cult into a culture, giving to the great body of the American public the heady brew which only the initiates thus far have quaffed. Some of that vast body will become intoxicated by Thurber's zaniness, some by his utter simplicity of line [in both writing and drawing], and some by his kindly and wise understanding of his fellow man.

In the 368 pages of words and drawings which form a mosaic of mirth in "The Thurber Carnival" there are only a very funny foreword and six short pieces which have not previously appeared in "My World and Welcome to It," "Let Your Mind Alone," "The Middle Aged Man on the Flying Trapeze," "Fables for Our Time and Famous Poems Illustrated," "The Owl in the Attic," "The Seal in the Bedroom," and "Men, Women, and Dogs." "My Life and Hard Times" is complete in this volume.

Of the pieces previously unpublished in book form, "The Catbird Seat" is, I think, not only the best, but in its own right utterly incomparable, and, I find now that I would like to tell you more about it, also indescribable. It concerns the method by which the quiet Mr. Martin [so undistinguished that he does not even have a first name in the tale] got rid of Mrs. Ulgine Barrows. It is masterpiece of psychological murder on Mr. Martin's part, and of psychological creation on Mr. Thurber's.

When he wishes to, this satirist of human kind can also do a satire on the arts which is as crusted with acid irony as a piece of exposed copper with verdigris. Such a satire is "Bateman Comes Home," written, so a note says "after reading several recent novels about the deep south and confusing them a little—as the novelists themselves do — with 'Tobacco Road' and 'God's Little Acre.'" After a few horror-packed pages, it ends with this sentence: "If you keep on long enough it turns into a novel."

"The Thurber Carnival" is well named. It's a frolic of feasting and revelry.

John Gunther's New Novel Is a Conversation Piece

"THE TROUBLED MIDNIGHT," by John Gunther. [Harper, $2.50.]

Reviewed by Kelsey Guilfoil.

Having picked Istanbul—or Constantinople, if you prefer—in the days of its neutrality as the scene of his novel, John Gunther has written a story of the war which is chiefly remarkable for one thing: practically all the action takes place off-stage. To take a setting like that, crammed with the diplomats and secret agents of all the warring nations, to make his principal character a young woman with an important job in the lend-lease administration, and come up with 298 pages almost entirely filled with talk and introspection is quite a feat, and one not likely to be duplicated in many war novels.

Of course, he had every right to do that. The mental reactions of persons fighting a war, either directly or indirectly, are something that a master's hand could make into one of the great novels of this or any other war. But in a performance of that kind one would still expect a considerable amount of significant, purposeful action, and I give you my word there is little of that in Mr. Gunther's opus. With a change of a few of the circumstances and the external scenery, the whole thing could have taken place in Des Moines.

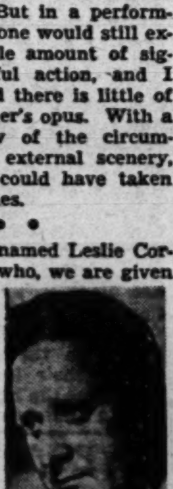
The heroine is named Leslie Corcoran, a divorcee who, we are given to understand, nobly fell in love with a wealthy man some time before the opening of this story, and just "had to leave" her husband. "The Troubled Midnight" begins with her being sent to Constantinople by unpredictable Washington, or rather with her arrival there.



John Gunther.

A German agent, Hugo Reichenau, pursues her, not with the intention of worming information out of her, but simply because he firmly believes "American girls are push-overs." She is repelled by his advances, then convinces herself that if she dates him she might be able to do a little spying on her own hook. This amorous interlude brings her close to loving Hugo, but she never completely surrenders to him.

Meanwhile she falls in love with Gerald Heath, a British agent, whose special job is to sabotage a Turkish chromium mine to prevent the Germans from getting its full output of chrome ore. Hugo has him shot [the high point of genuine on-stage action in the story], but not fatally, and Gerald and Leslie become engaged. Then Robin, the man for whom she left her husband, shows up in town, and she flings herself into his arms. "It was as if they had not been apart for longer than a day."

And how did Gerald like that? We'll never know, because he doesn't appear again, but here is Leslie's thought on the subject, as reported by Mr. Gunther: "She had a strong sense that he [Gerald] would get over the heartbreak, he would forgive her and understand. He was the nicest man she had ever met in her life, and he would understand."

Well, really, Mr. Gunther! After reading thru pages and pages of conversation in night clubs, in restaurants, in hotel rooms, in taxis, and so on, one gets that. Surely the author of "Inside Europe," "Inside Asia," and "Inside Latin America" ought to do a better job of getting inside people and showing us what makes them tick.

Story of Indian Life Told by Elders of Their Tribe

"THE TEN GRANDMOTHERS," by Alice Marriott. [University of Oklahoma Press, $3.]

Reviewed by Paul Engle.

If you have any interest in the American Indian, I can only urge you to get this book. It is a history of the Kiowa tribe of Oklahoma, told in the memories of old men and women, recalling things told them by their grandparents when they were children, and things that happened to them in recent times. It is one of the most accurate and sustained accounts of the transition from Indian ways to half-white ways that I have seen. And unlike so many books on the Indian, it is written neither in the falsely romantic terms of the enthusiastic amateur, or in the grimly "scientific" jargon of the professional anthropologist.

The story is told largely in the words of the Indians themselves, as given to the author of her Kiowa informants, two very old people, whose recollections covered the whole period of the white conquest of the southern plains. Their descriptions of the daily life of a buffalo hunting people, of how the children played, of the jokes told, the customs relating to the dead, the search of the young men for power, for the touch with the supernatural that would give them strength to heal, to bless, to live long, are very fine.

The prose is always natural and easy and concrete. The conversation has the conviction of authenticity, from the dispute with the Comanches over eating bear meat [the bear being sacred to Kiowas named for it], to the last talk of the young Kiowas with the old men before they went off to army camps in 1942.

I especially admire the portions dealing with the women, and above all the moving sense thruout the book of what the battles, the going of the buffalo, the sending of the children to school, meant to the women whose whole lives were shaped by these things.

And always, the strong sense of the individual, each man named for the thing most fitting to him. You will not soon forget the description of the ancient grandfather, Eagle Plume, with great dignity riding a horse ahead of the jeep taking the young men of the tribe to [illegible] against tribes of whom they had never heard. As he went along, shriveled and stiff, but with his finest war clothes on, he sang the secret song, in Kiowa, that would make a man strong in fighting:

I live, but I will not live forever.
Mysterious moon, you only remain,
Powerful sun, you alone remain,
Wonderful earth, you remain forever.

After which the United States army sergeant yells at the Indian draftees, "O. K., boys, start 'em rolling."

Humanity's Failure to Accept God

"EARTH MIGHT BE FAIR," by Richard S. Emrich. The Presiding Bishop's Book for Lent. [Harper, $1.50.]

Reviewed by Edw. Wagenknecht.

"O God that madest this beautiful earth, when will it be ready to receive Thy saints? How long, O Lord, how long?"

Dr. Emrich does not quote these poignant closing words from Shaw's "Saint Joan," but they strike the keynote of what he has to say almost as well as the hymn by Clifford Bax [another playwright] which he makes his epigraph. This is essentially the Miltonic view of life, as Tillyard has interpreted it. Man is free; man has an instinct toward virtue; yet sloth or levity—or original sin—prevent him somehow from making use of his powers. "Generally speaking, the world could be improved almost indefinitely, but in fact use was not made of the great opportunity."

So Saint Paul cries, "Wretched man that I am, who will deliver me from the body of this death?" So a 6 year old in the 20th century is heard asking himself, "Why am I such a fool? Why do I do such naughty things?" And so we have, among other things, a second world war.

Dr. Emrich finds the root of our difficulties in idolatry. We put ourselves in the place of God. We have heeded [unless we are totalitarians] Christianity's insistence upon the greatness and dignity of man, but we have forgotten the corollary of the proposition—that man's life is an utter futility once man is cut off from God. As that realization does not degrade man, but rather exalts and ennobles him, so it does not lessen our appreciation of the good things of this world, for asceticism [to quote Mr. Shaw again] is an accusation of indecency against God. It is simply a matter of keeping values straight.

We all know that our planet is in a sorry state. One race, one class, one nation after another is cast in the villain's role, but alas! putting the villain down never brings in the millennium. There seems always to be another villain ready to take his place, and the very group in which we placed our trust proves sadly corruptible.

Dr. Emrich has a deep devotional spirit and a genuine capacity for surveying and assessing contemporary needs. If you want an analysis of the malady of the hour that is radical in the root sense of going to the roots of things, here is your meat.

BOOKS ALIVE

by Vincent Starrett

EVERY male has his own way of courting the female he adores. Romeo's way of spouting poetry beneath a balcony is the most romantic way, and is supposed to work very well. Miles Standish's stratagem of sending a proxy is probably the poorest way ever devised by human wit, and is properly in disrepute. But literature is filled with ingenious wooings. There is, for example, the classic episode of the old gentleman, in Dickens, who threw cucumbers over the wall to attract his lady's attention; and Tom Sawyer's oblique assault on the heart of Becky Thatcher: he drew caricatures for her on his slate until she was overcome with admiration, then slyly slipped in the three magic words that make the world go 'round. We men are delightfully naive in literature—as, indeed, we are in life—and it is a wise woman who knows when not to laugh.

One of my favorite innocents, from now on, will be the young doctor in Agatha Christie's "The Moving Finger," which I have just read for the first time in a Mercury reprint. In the spirit of the little juggler of Notre Dame, he brought his sweetheart his greatest treasure—an enlarged photograph of a diseased spleen—and, in effect, laid it at her feet. He expected her to be interested in it, naturally, and, to the young woman's credit, she pretended to be fascinated.

A Chinese Rejection Slip.

Rejection slips are notoriously tempered by mercy, in some degree anyway. Humane editors and publishers attempt to soften the blow by some saving clause that will permit young writers to believe they missed publication by the narrowest of margins. In China, where loss of "face" is about the most distressing thing that can happen to one, the quality of mercy not only is not strained; it is laid on with a trowel. As an example of how the delicate task of saying No is performed by experts, the following lines—said to be the formula of a Chinese publisher—are recommended to American editors:

"We read your manuscript with boundless delight. By the sacred ashes of our ancestors, we swear that we have never dipped into a book of such overwhelming mastery. If we were to publish this book it would be impossible in the future to issue any book of a lower standard. As it is unthinkable that within the next 10,000 years we shall find its equal, we are, to our great regret, compelled to return this divine work, and beg you a thousand times to forgive our action."

To forestall correspondence with incredulous Sinologs, I will say that this masterpiece of hokum is taken from Basil Blackwell's "The World of Books," an English volume that I have not seen in this country, and I have no idea where Mr. Blackwell got it.

Elizabethans Stretched Their Spelling.

An explanation of the pleasantly proprietary spelling of the Elizabethans, discussed in this department two weeks ago, may be found in McKerrow's standard "Introduction to Bibliography," writes a friendly correspondent known to me only as Oscar. On the subject of Elizabethan printers, McKerrow says:

"They had . . . a means of justifying the lines of type which is denied to modern compositors, namely, by varying the spelling of words. If when nearing the end of a line the workman saw that he was going to have space to fill up, he could add an e to the end of some of the words, or could spell such terminations as -nes and -les as -nesse and -lesse, or could give 'dance' as 'daunce,' or 'many' as 'manie.' If on the other hand he wished to save space, he could omit final e's or use a vowel with a line over it to indicate a following n, or in some fonts could use the ye and yt contractions for 'the' and 'that' and other similar ones."

Conan Doyle's Crime Library.

Passing thru the underground receiving rooms of a famous English auction house one day, some 15 years ago, Dr. A. S. W. Rosenbach, the American rare book specialist, was struck by the gloomy appearance of the vaulted 18th century chambers. "Catacombs!" he remarked, and added: "What a place for a murder!"

"I'm sorry, doctor," said his companion, a member of the firm, "but I'm afraid nothing exciting or mysterious ever happened down here." After a moment he smiled: "Wait a minute. This is odd! Do you see those boxes over there? Well, they contain Conan Doyle's crime library; every volume he used for reference when he was writing his Sherlock Holmes stories. We are selling them next month."

The doctor wasted no time, of course. He knew a hunch when he met one, even in the dark. Almost before the other man had ceased speaking, he said: "I must have those books!" And before leaving London, a little later, he placed an elastic bid in the auctioneer's hand, which ultimately brought him the collection. He tells the story capitally in his "Book Hunter's Holiday" [Houghton], and reveals the price he paid. It was £95 or, roughly, $475.

And now again the books are for sale, I see by the doctor's latest catalog, and what do you think the price is now? Well—hold your hat!—it is $5,500. A very neat advance, but who am I to say that the crime library of Sherlock Holmes is not worth it? I say only that, owing to circumstances beyond my control, I am not going to buy it.

Immense Vanity of Authors.

The vanity of authors has been a frequent subject of comment. Victor Hugo's egotism was so vast, it has been said, that it was "insane if it was not sublime." There is a famous anecdote about him that appears to be well authenticated. One evening he sat at dinner among a group of his admirers, each of whom strove to outdo the other in praising his host's genius. One of them thought the street in which Hugo lived should be named after him. This modest suggestion was hooted down by the others, however, who suggested other streets as more appropriate. At length one enthusiastic fellow asserted that no one street was worthy of such a distinction; the whole city of Paris, he thought, should be named after the poet.

The great man gravely pondered the suggestion for a moment, then nodded his approval. "Who knows, my friend?" he murmured gently. "It may come to that!"

And it is said that Harriet Beecher Stowe was so overwhelmed by the success of "Uncle Tom's Cabin" that she insisted it had been a Higher Power, not she, who had really written it.

How China's Destiny Is Working Out

"CHINA TAKES HER PLACE" by Carl Crow. [Harper, $2.75.]

Reviewed by Philo M. Buck Jr.

Today there are many questions asked, and much shaking of heads, about China. What is her place? Is our faith in her justifying itself? Chagrined because an American general was recalled, we take sides and are as eager to criticize as a few months ago we were to idealize. These questions are pertinent and much depends upon our not finding the wrong answers.

It is good that at this moment Carl Crow publishes this book. It ought to strengthen our faith in the essential integrity of China in her transcendent difficulties. For they are not all of today. The first stones that caused these ripples were cast many decades ago; since then there have been many others, not all thrown by Chinese hands. It is precisely because this book tells invitingly of escapes from chaos that it should be read before one loses faith in an admirable and worthy ally.

"The world tendency toward democracy is like the Yangtse river which makes crooks and turns sometimes to the north and sometimes to the south, but in the end flows eastward and nothing can stop it." These words were spoken in one dark chapter of Chinese history, by Dr. Sun Yat-sen. It was he who founded the Kuomingtang, the patriotic party that was to serve as the midwife for the New China.

The Kuomingtang is still the Chinese government, during this necessary period of transition, when the river is seemingly confused in direction. It has faced, it still faces, great obstacles. It is guided by men, not all of perfect wisdom. But we shall hardly aid them in their effort if we too join in the pastime of raising new ripples by stones of our throwing.

'Dang Good,' Say Hill Folk About Ozark Portrait

"PIONEERS OF THE OZARKS," by L. L. Broadfoot. [Caxton, $5.]

Reviewed by Marge Lyon.

Here is a book for every collector of Ozarkiana. If you doubt its authenticity you should have been with me at a Chamber of Commerce meeting at Summersville [Mo.] when some one brought along a copy. The meeting broke up because every one was hunting his aunt, uncle, or cousin in "Len's" book. Practically all the characters, and certainly all the Ozark activities, were identified and rated as "dang good."

Lennis Leonard Broadfoot [the name indicates his Indian blood—one-eighth Cherokee] has done the Ozarks a great service in compiling this volume of pictures and text. Only a person with a vast love of the hills, and great respect for the sturdy folk who will soon be gone, would have gone to such pains to record them so faithfully. There's no attempt at making good reading; the stark highlights of a person's long life or of such Ozark work as butchering or soap making are as cleancut as the illustrations. And, certainly, charcoal drawings, such as Mr. Broadfoot has used in his excellent work, permit of little "purtyin' up" efforts. Here is a volume that should be kept for one's children's children.

Many of the types, particularly the Squirrel Hunter, Champion Fiddler, Square Dance, and Fisherman, are still to be found, and carefully drawn Broadfoot pictures can shed new light on many incidents mentioned in other Ozark writings.

Read this book for an evening's delight in the ways of folk who earned their keep and lived out their lives the hard way. Then keep it for a reference work on Ozark life.

For Beginners in Game of Bridge

"LEARN BRIDGE FAST," by Shepard Barclay. [McKay, $1.]

You may be a devoted reader of Goren. In that case you really don't need this amazingly effective little book, altho it wouldn't hurt you to read it. But a beginner will find Mr. Barclay's analyses of bridge techniques an admirably clear and understandable guide to the game, and an excellent preparation for the more advanced discussions of Mr. Goren.

Rare Insight Into Genesis of Joyce Work

"STEPHEN HERO," by James Joyce; edited by Theodore Spencer. [New Directions, $3.50.]

Reviewed by Robert Penn Warren.

"Stephen Hero" represents the surviving part of the first draft of the book by James Joyce which is now famous as "A Portrait of the Artist as a Young Man."

The history of this early draft is not without drama and mystery. When the manuscript was advertised for sale by Sylvia Beach, to whom Joyce had given it, this statement appeared in the catalogue: "When the manuscript came back to its author, after the 20th publisher had rejected it, he threw it in the fire, from which Mrs. Joyce, at the risk of burning her hands, rescued these pages." But the authorities do not agree as to the date [certainly early in this century] and the details of the attempt to burn the manuscript. In any case, a large and significant part of the manuscript survives, now in the Harvard college library, and is here presented with a graceful and acute introduction by Theodore Spencer.

It is not to be supposed that this version of the novel appeals merely to a nice curiosity about minutiae of revision. Rather, it gives us, in extended form, a rare insight into the genesis of a work of art. And, since this work of art is by one of the most significant writers of his age, this volume is indispensable.

James Joyce.

The tendency of the rewriting which created the final version is, as Mr. Spencer has pointed out, in the direction of greater compression and of sharper focus upon the consciousness of the hero, in the direction of symbolism and away from naturalism. A description of Stephen by Joyce himself most accurately states, tho in another connection, the significance of this revision: "It was part of that ineradicable egoism which he was afterwards to call his redeemer that he conceived converging to him the deeds and thoughts of his microcosm."

But, in addition to an insight into the growth of Joyce's mind and method, we have here a much fuller and more explicit statement of his esthetic theory than is to be found elsewhere. And Mr. Spencer's comments on this are of special interest.

Photos Illustrate Stevenson's Verse

When her son and daughter were toddlers Toni Frissell started taking pictures of them to illustrate Stevenson's poems. As they grew older the picture taking became a game for Varick and Sidney and their friends. The result is a collection of full page unposed photographs that translate the charm of a juvenile classic into childhood experiences of 1945.

Dr. A. J. Cronin's new novel about the author

"a man of deep feeling"

"Every page Dr. Cronin writes bears the stamp of an honest and simple man, without pretense, affectation, or false sophistication. Here, one feels while reading any of his novels, is a man of deep feeling, a man who has experienced much and suffered much, a man who has great warmth of human sympathy and profound sincerity, an open-hearted genuineness. It is almost as if Dr. Cronin were Everyman writing."
—Orville Prescott, N. Y. Times

"a superb narrative ability"

"His immense vitality, his passionate sincerity and his kindly warmth of nature shine through all his pages. He is, moreover, an excellent journalist with a news sense that makes each of his novels completely timely. Together with a superb narrative ability, this news sense makes A. J. Cronin a hard man to surpass."
—Olga Owens, Boston Post

"a novelist of major importance"

"A. J. Cronin seemed to me a novelist of major importance when I read HATTER'S CASTLE. I was confirmed in this judgment when I read THE CITADEL. I thought he had reached the climax of accomplishment in THE KEYS OF THE KINGDOM. But now I know that he is still on the upward road."
—Ted Robinson, Cleveland Plain Dealer

about the book

"excitement"

"There is excitement of the heart and of the mind in this book. Robert Shannon and the Old Cadger Gow who is his great-grandfather will long be remembered as characters worthy of a lasting place in literature."—Newsweek

"heart-warming"

"... the most convincing and the most worthwhile of all Dr. Cronin's novels ... a book that really merits the over-used adjective heart-warming. The sorrows and the triumphs, the recurrent crises in the life of young Robert Shannon may not be of world-shaking importance; but under the spell of Dr. Cronin's sincerity and his power with words, they certainly seem so."
—Howard Taylor, Philadelphia Inquirer

"magnetic"

"In THE GREEN YEARS this rarest and most gracious of talents comes to full bloom. Never before has Dr. Cronin achieved this artistic standard. Never has he produced such pulsing prose or such an intense, magnetic and completely human story."—David Appel, Chicago News

"dynamic"

"Here is a novel forthright and dynamic of noble proportions ... in any day it is great to find so clean and challenging a book."—Daniel A. Poling, Christian Herald

School Asks 1,500 Fashion Show Blanks

By Norma Lee Browning.

Interest in THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE's sixth annual American Fashions contest was boosted this week by a telegram from the well known Traphagen School of Fashion in New York requesting 1,500 entry blanks and 1,000 copies of the contest rules.

Altho in previous years many fashion academies have requested hundreds of entry blanks for their students, this is the largest order from one single school.

The general response to THE TRIBUNE's nation-wide contest has been greater this year than ever before and, with the recent announcement of a special "Teen Age" competition, the mail count has doubled.

Apparently dissatisfied with the type of costumes designed for them by grown-up fashion experts, hundreds of teen age girls from all over the country are grasping at the opportunity which THE TRIBUNE affords them to submit their own fashion ideas.

Thirteen year old Dolores Moyer of Lima, O., writes: "I believe that what THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE is doing is the greatest thing that has ever been done toward bringing forth the ingenuity of American designers, professional and amateur."

And from 12 year old Susan Archibald of Fort Wayne, Ind., comes a letter explaining her hobby is designing doll clothes from the costumes pictured in THE TRIBUNE's Graphic section. Expressing a desire to enter the Teen Age contest, she adds:

"You probably think I am not a very good designer. I hope I can do better than we might think."

Fashion experts in general agree that THE TRIBUNE's contest should be commended for furnishing such inspiration and incentive, even to the very young.

Those who failed to win a prize in last year's contest are entering again with renewed enthusiasm. Typical of their interest and persistence is a comment from Clara R. Evans of Gary, Ind.:

"Another amateur am I," she writes, "who entered last year's contest but made no showing. However, I don't feel I came out on the bottom, for the experience I gained then will be most helpful to me as I enter this year's contest."

"American designs for American women" is the most universal cry of all prospective contestants. They express a distaste for the 'overdressed look' of Paris creations.

THE TRIBUNE takes pride in its role of influencing the trend of fashion thinking in this country. With its first American Fashions competition in 1940 it created an unprecedented interest in the field of American designing.

Since then other newspapers and magazines have followed suit by sponsoring similar contests, but THE TRIBUNE's competition remains unique because of its nation-wide scope and the generous prizes offered.

In the general contest the three grand prizes are $2,000, $1,000, and $500. A special prize of $500 will be given for the best costume in the "Teen Age" group. Approximately 40 prizes of $50 each will also be awarded.

Closing date for submitting sketches is May 1. All designs must be sketched or drawn on white paper, 14x20 inches, and mounted on cardboard of the same size. Designs may be sketched or drawn in black and white or in color and must show both front and back views.

Prize selections will be made by a fashions jury headed by Mrs. Grace Pickering, director of the American Fashions competition.

Details of the contest may be obtained by filling in the coupon on page 2.

Galaxy of Dignitaries Makes Chicago Crossroads of World

By Thalia.

Chicago is, by its very geography, a crossroads at which the world stops. But of late it seems to your Thalia that there have been more stoppers, and more interesting ones, than for many weeks. An ambassador, a former ambassador, a sculptured head of a great military and political leader, a Chicagoan who has made herself an envied place in New York musical circles, a great American biographer, a British fighter of the war within 10 days have all been enthusiastically welcomed by our town.

The members of the Council on Foreign Relations listened two weeks ago to Brigadier Fenimore Irwin, C. B. E., telling of "The Battle of the Burma Border." They could not always hear him, for the public address system sounded as if it were wired only for cannonading, but we did get a gratefully simple analysis of the Burma campaign which Brig. Irwin declared will have a great effect on other outlying campaigns.

Eight days later the council members gathered for luncheon to hear the Hon. Lester B. Pearson, Canadian ambassador to the United States. The food arrived, but not the purveyor of food for thought. The council, which prides itself on getting its members fed and instructed before concert time, was just about to produce a substitute speaker when Mr. Pearson hurried in. His train from Washington was hours late. He had had no food, and obviously there wasn't time to deliver his long, prepared speech, but he deftly collapsed an hour's talk into a 20 minute analysis of what he called the functional approach to the organization of peace—the conferences on special subjects. He described the method used in each of the four main international conferences on agriculture, on united nations relief, the monetary conference at Bretton Woods, and the international aviation conference in Chicago. To the astonishment of some of his audience, Mr. Pearson spoke midwestern "American" rather than mid-London English, an accent which endeared him to his audience.

Before his arrival Walter Fisher, president of the council, read a biographical article about him in which it was disclosed that Mr. Pearson had once worked in the Chicago stock yards and that he is called "Mike," but Mrs. Philip Wrigley called him "Lester" when she spoke of him. What his cousin, Mrs. William M. Spencer, called him I did not overhear. Mr. and Mrs. Pearson were house guests of the Spencers during their two day visit.

Last week Janet Fairbank, here from New York, where she is now established, gave a unique program of songs in the James Henry Breasted hall of the Oriental institute under the auspices of the department of music at the University of Chicago. It was a repetition of the song recital which she gave in New York in November at Carnegie Chamber hall, where she won high praise from the critics for her recital of new songs.

To hear "Janet Jr.," as all of her mother's contemporaries and many of her own call her, Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank [Janet Sr.] invited a group of friends whom she took to the Quadrangle club for dinner before the concert, where, incidentally, the crowd of members, who obviously preferred dining at the club to dining at home, was so great that the only available spot for a largish dinner party proved to be the stage. As we sat at a long, narrow, candlelit table in the usual solemnity of the first few seconds after sitting down, two guests almost simultaneously said, "It makes me think of Thornton Wilder's 'The Long Christmas Dinner.'" It was a natural association of ideas because Thornton Wilder's popular sojourn in Chicago was at the university.

A characteristically delightful note from him from Italy, reminds us that he has been at war two and a half years in the South Pacific, Africa, and now Italy. He is now a lieutenant colonel in the air force.

Among Mrs. Fairbank's guests was a member of the younger generation upon whom we all looked

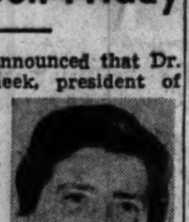
Club's 3d Annual Alumnae College to Open Friday

When it was announced that Dr. Mary Ashby Cheek, president of Rockford college would be here to preside at Saturday night's session of the Chicago College club's third annual "Alumnae College," former students of Rockford immediately reserved a table in her honor for the Saturday night dinner at the club. Because of her studies in Geneva, Switzerland, and Munich, Germany, it was the consensus of the members of the program committee that she particularly was fitted to act as chairman for the Saturday assembly, which is to be devoted to "American Colleges and the Cultural Rehabilitation of War-Torn Lands."



Dr. Mary Ashby Cheek.

Lynn T. White Jr., president of Mills college in Oakland, Cal., who is to be principal speaker at the session, also will be feted by alumnae of his school at the Saturday night dinner hour. Mrs. Bruce T. Thomas of Glencoe, who heads the Mills Alumnae association of the Chicago area, will be hostess at the Mills college dinner table.

The "Alumnae College" opens in two day session next Friday under joint auspices of the Chicago College club and the Woman's College Board of Chicago. Other prominent speaks are to be Franklyn Bliss Snyder, president of Northwestern university; Dr. Carey Croneis, president of Beloit college, and Dr. Helen C. White of the University of Wisconsin.

Mrs. H. S., Detroit, Mich.—The air in our house is so dry that I spray the leaves of my plants at least once a week to make up for this lack of moisture. This gives the pores of the leaves a chance to breathe and keeps them clean as well as giving them moisture.

Mrs. Ed. W., Chicago—For years I have kept my plain white tea towels well bleached by dropping a few lemon peels into the wash boiler in which towels are boiling.

• • •

Mrs. G. W., Cedar Rapids—I recently papered some walls over old, glossy paint coats. I made a good job of it by sanding the painted walls first, then washing with a weak solution of sal soda and water and following this with a size of plain vinegar.

Mrs. Dan S., Chicago—I find that if I shake all garments made of brushed rayon gently as soon as I have washed and rinsed them, they dry fluffier and look prettier. And then I don't need to iron them, which saves on work.

Edna W., Springfield, Ill.—I find that a common bleaching solution will remove ink stains of most types except, of course, indelible ink marks. I keep such a solution in a small bottle which has a glass rod attached to cork. This is handy to apply the solution and I use it as sparingly as possible, to be on the safe side.

Serena Ritter, Mt. Sterling, Ill.—A wire potato masher will hold a recipe upright so it can be easily read when one is mixing cakes, cookies, etc.

Mrs. Harold S., Milwaukee, Wis.—Last summer we made our children a neat sandbox by enclosing a space some 7 feet square with four layers of mortared brick. Then we used some loosely fitted bricks as a floor which kept the sand clean and unmixed with dirt. This was one of the most "used" spots in our outdoor play yard.

Fresh from the Hills . . . . By Marge of Sunrise Mountain Farm . . . . Six Ozark Cats

[Copyright: 1945: By The Chicago Tribune.]

LAST year I often said to the Jedge:

"We have a cat too many!"

Then we would try to decide whether we should give away Tommy, the big striped tiger cat; Merry Joe [whose name was Mary until we found it should be Joe], or Little Eva. This year I groan:

"Six cats! Isn't this awful!"

Then, for perhaps the hundredth time, the Jedge tells why he didn't give Little Eva's kittens to Pal Charles when she offered them a good home. He begins by telling how he took a box into the dining room where Nip and Tuck were sleeping in the big armchair in front of the Franklin stove. Then he goes on:

"I picked up Nip and put him in the box. Then, while I was putting Tuck into the box, Nip jumped out. I chased him all over the place and finally collared him behind the bathtub. I took him back to the box, but Tuck had jumped out. I found her in the potato bin. When I got her back to the box Nip was gone again. I decided that if they wanted to stay here as badly as all that Pal could get herself some kittens somewhere else!"

Nip, Tuck, Little Eva, and Merry Joe are all spotted black and white. It is necessary to remember markings in order to identify them, because they are now so nearly the same size. And seeing them napping in a huddled group in their favorite chair is sufficient to give even the healthiest person spots before the eyes.

Nip is the handsomest cat at Sunrise Mountain Farm. The glistening blackness and immaculate whiteness of his coat give him the look of a gentleman in dress suit. Somehow the markings carry out the illusion. White collar, white shirt and vest, black tail coat—look at Nip and there they are! But I'm sorry to say Nip has no personality. He eats, he sleeps, he comes in and goes dutifully out. And that is all. He doesn't go out of his way to gain new friends or keep old ones with a well timed purr or a rub against some one's ankles. He has the haughty aloofness of a movie star whose public is a terrible bore!

Tuck is Nip's opposite in appearance and characteristics. She is pure white with pink ears, a gray beauty spot on her side, a gray tail, and a curious head marking that looks exactly like a gray snood. She's friendly, too. She likes to climb far out on a knee that is close to the stove and perch there, watching the fire and purring like an outboard motor. She also likes to climb along the sill of the double windows in the dining room, picking her way daintily over the old fashioned doll, the strawberry jars, and the potted plants that stand in her way. One day I watched her to the conclusion of this aerial walk. Somehow she had discovered that from the end of the windowsill she could lean forward and look directly up at the cuckoo clock. And, as she peered upward when the cuckoo came out to chirp the hour, the look on her dainty little face and the way she twitched her shell-pink ears would have made a more knowing bird cut 12 o'clock down to a repeat on 11:30.

Little Eva, like many a girl over whom the neighbors have long shaken their heads, turned out to be a wonderful mother. Her silly fear of big dogs departed when she had two babies to protect. If Shep became nosey she no longer raced frantically to the top of the hickory tree. She stood her ground, arching her back and spitting defiance. And once, right before my eyes, she flicked out her left front paw and gave him a dig across the nose that made him whimper. No longer were her days spent in continuous beauty efforts and wide-eyed posings. Or perhaps that pre-maternal vanity was only an extraordinary sense of cleanliness. Her two kittens got so many baths no trace of soil was ever seen on their soft coats. And even today, big as they are, she often holds them down, kicking and squirming, while she vigorously scrubs ears and backs of necks. One can almost hear them protesting that she is getting soap in their eyes!

No one had ever dreamed that Little Eva was a hunter. But when the kittens were able to get around on soft little feet she would spend a whole summer afternoon getting them down to the rock pile at the end of the lane, where mice and other little woods things nested. Her teaching must have been good. Once I saw Tuck with the north half of a very small snake, and even Nip showed up one day carrying a little brown striped animal with a bushy tail. When I yelled at him he opened his mouth in surprise, and the little animal ran for its life under Punch's doghouse.

All the cats except Toughie sleep in the hay at the barn. Sometimes, when we pick one up in the early morning, we find the fragrance of clean, sun dried hay still clinging to its coat. Toughie moved into one of the doghouses to "room" with Shep. Maybe Shep likes company, for all we know. One cat that we owned a few years ago moved into the cow stalls and slept on the back of Cobina, one of our Jerseys, with feet snugly tucked into what was probably the biggest heating pad on record. All the cats eat in the kitchen at a cat cafeteria, and when Tommy finds it empty his angry yowls and grimaces send us scurrying for hot milk and cat food. Their coats are so soft and thick Paul and Johnny Butler, our young neighbors, often say:

"Can't you ever get a cat without spots or stripes?"

We know what they mean. An ordinary cat skin that is all one solid color brings 15 cents on the fur market. The coats of our well fed pets would be worth at least 25 cents each. But fortunately their spots and stripes save them for the backs of their owners!

The newest member of our group is Toughie, another tiger striped cat. I met Toughie one day last summer at a home where I was getting a story. I met him at a distance, one might say. Every time the half-grown kitten came near our chairs on the lawn my hostess would clap her hands smartly, and shout: "Scat!" But the kitten was persistent. In a few minutes he would approach from another direction, yowling loudly as before, and again he would be scatted away.

"Your kitten seems so unhappy," I remarked. "What is wrong?"

"O, some one dumped that cat here a week ago," said my hostess. "And we just hate cats!"

The hungry cries of the miserable kitten that wanted to be friendly disturbed my sleep at the country hotel that night. Next morning, before starting home, I hunted up a box with a screened top and drove back to the lovely house of the delightful people who just didn't like cats! I crossed my fingers and hoped the Guardian Angel of cats would see that my lie was forgiven when I said:

"We need a cat at Sunrise Mountain Farm!"

Then, on the hottest day of summer, Toughie and I came home together. I couldn't blame him for trying to get a tooth thru the screen wire to bite me whenever I placed my hand on his cage; he had known no kindness from human hands. And thru all the stifling miles I wondered what the Jedge would say to a sixth cat. But my fears were groundless. Toughie's definite personality, once he was well fed and cleaned up, won the Jedge at the first meow!

Toughie is an excellent conversationalist. He answers whenever any one speaks to him. If he is asked about the rain outside or the state of his appetite he goes into long, detailed explanations, full of high and low yowls so expressive that the Jedge says any one would know things are in one helluva bad shape. Toughie uses his front paws as little curved hands, which makes him even more individual. Reach down to pat him, as he lies in the best chair, and he will extend one soft, gray striped paw, curve it about your finger, and pull your hand down so that he may rub his nose against it. And if you try to draw your hand away before the nose rubbing is finished he sinks his claws into your skin and bites the nearest finger. He didn't come by that name Toughie for nothing.

Toughie is a real companion cat, too. Let any one on the farm start for a walk and, before the gate is reached, he can be heard yowling something that sounds like: "Hey, you! Wait for Baby!" These walks have brought him trouble. Twice he has been misplaced in the woods on evening walks. But no aimless wandering for a smart cat like Toughie. He simply climbed a tree and waited for next morning's rescue party [me]. Another time he had accompanied the three dogs and the Jedge on a walk thru the Middle Forty. The dogs were far ahead on the wooded hillside, and suddenly, to every one's surprise, they jumped a rabbit. The rabbit ran back along the path, apparently not seeing the Jedge and Toughie, for he all but brushed against them in his flight. Toughie didn't hesitate. He took right after the rabbit, and the Jedge still insists that he bayed. But in an instant the 11 legs of the three dogs [Punch has a sore foot and runs on three legs] carried them up to him. Poor Toughie was knocked down and run over by the thundering herd. He picked himself up, ran to the Jedge, and rode home on his shoulder, pouring into the near by ear a string of low, gutteral growls and mutterings that the Jedge yearned to translate. They would come in handy, he says, next time a retread blows out.

In my opinion, Toughie's chief charm is his way of greeting each new day. None of this ho-hum-another-day business for Toughie. He comes into the kitchen, when the door is opened, alert in every silken hair, and talking a blue streak:

"What a day! Yeah, man, what a glorious, beautiful, wonderful day! Get a load of that sunrise. Isn't that a wow? What! Isn't breakfast ready? What have you been doing, dopey? Look at me! Two trips to the rock pile already. Boy, O boy, wait till that mouse shows his nose today. THIS is the day I'll get him!"

Yes, every day is THE day in Toughie's life! No regrets for yesterday. No worry about tomorrow! Today is here, and is crammed with the blessings of activity and accomplishment. One side, slow pokes; make room for a fella who is bursting with energy and confidence. Yippee! Let's get going!

All this inspiration in return for a bowl of milk, a handful of food, and a cushion by the fireside. We are truly sorry for people who do not like cats!

with awe, Elizabeth Hubbard, who is just back from over a year's service flying for the Wasps. The last time I saw her she was a young girl flying thru the air on the back of a jumper at a horse show.

Her sister, Marie, may be going overseas in a week or so as a nurse When she completed her course in nursing at St. Luke's recently she went immediately to Camp McCoy for basic training as an army nurse. Their mother, "Betty" Hubbard Furness, at dinner that evening showed no strain of the more than 1,500 hours that she has to her credit as a nurse's aid. "Tom" Furness, who for years before his marriage to Elizabeth Merrill Hubbard was one of the few extra men for dinner whose name was on every smart hostess' list, is now a field director of the Red Cross in Belgium. He came to Chicago after the first World war, one of its outstanding heroes.

For three afternoons last week Mr. and Mrs. Walter Brewster opened their beautiful Lake View av. home for a view of a visitor from New York, Jo Davidson's fine bronze head of Gen. Charles de Gaulle. The head has been shown in the east for the benefit of French charities. Mrs. Brewster, who is president of the Chicago chapter of France Forever, had the idea of showing it here and thus starting a national fund to purchase the head to be presented to the French provisional government. The head was beautifully installed in the center of the great skylighted reception hall, in which hang many of the fine paintings in the famous Brewster collection. France Forever's next allurement will be a tea at the Casino club next Wednesday afternoon at which Mme. Drue Tartiere will tell of her work with the French underground, which was truly heroic.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Dewey, who for many years before the war spent their summers at Mrs. Dewey's French heritage in Normandy, were here overnight on Sunday on their way back to their Washington home from a visit in California with their daughter, whose husband, Lt. Comdr. Frederick M. Alger Jr., is now stationed at San Diego. The continuance of their journey back to Washington instead of opening their house on North State st. answers the question which many of the Deweys' friends asked when Mr. Dewey was defeated for congress in November. They will, for the present at least, continue to live in Washington, where Mr. Dewey will offer his long experience in diplomacy and government in whatever way he can best serve his country. Their house there is, I have heard, one of the most charming in the city, and unique not only in its taste but in its location. When the Deweys went to Washington and looked around for a house they disregarded the already densely populated Georgetown section and bought a lovely old house near the capitol. Mrs. Dewey, with her genius for making beauty bloom in houses, transformed it into one of the "show places" for all visiting Chicagoans. With unfailing graciousness she has received there her husband's constituents as well as her old friends.

She lunched on Monday with Mrs. Solomon A. Smith, whose son, Lt. Edward Smith, married Louise Dewey, which makes her and Fredrika Smith co-grandmothers. To visit her grandchildren and to consult with her literary agents, Mrs. Smith went east with her husband on Thursday when he made a business trip.

Catherine Drinker Bowen, whose brilliant life of Oliver Wendell Holmes, "Yankee from Olympus," has made her name known all over America, was a visitor from Washington. She spoke to the members of the Colonial Dames and their guests at a dinner at the Casino.

She gave, I hear, many amusing as well as illuminating sidelights on writing biography and on the exemplary Holmes father and son. I was, unfortunately, unable to hear her, but I spent the other of her two evenings in Chicago with her. She has always seemed for the many years I have known her one of the most original personalities I have ever met. She is as frank and outspoken as the Declaration of Independence, which one of her forebears helped make. She is as witty as an 18th century essayist and as modern in her point of view as tomorrow. She is utterly self-possessed socially, and utterly democratic. She is an ardent musician [you remember the understanding with which she wrote that incomparable book about Tschaikowsky, "Beloved Friend"] and she is a sometimes harassed mother and a devoted wife—[her husband is Comdr. T. McKean Downs, now stationed in Washington]. She is pure main line Philadelphia, and she is pure American. Her audience was enchanted by her, I hear from all sides.

Another visitor from the east who delighted the audience of another exclusive club last week was Ruth Bryan Owen Rohde, one of whose anecdotes I have been told by many of her enthusiastic listeners. When some one asked her a very pointed question she told of a dinner party during Mr. Churchill's last visit to Washington at which the hostess said: "Mr. Churchill, may I ask you a leading question?" "Certainly," he said, with that irresistible twinkle which even the camera registers, "certainly, if I may give you a misleading answer."

Social Hygiene Group to Hold 32d Assembly

Health problems will be given careful scrutiny at two large assemblies appearing on the immediate calendar.

Mrs. Elmira B. Wickenden.

"Social Hygiene in War Time and After" will be the theme of the 32d annual conference of the American Social Hygiene association, which will open with a luncheon at 12:15 o'clock Wednesday in the Mural room of the Morrison hotel, and on the following Monday, the Central Council for Nursing Education will devote its annual luncheon meeting to questions on war and post-war planning in the nursing field. The latter gathering will be held at 12:15 o'clock in the Grand ballroom of the Palmer House, and will bring as guest speaker, Mrs. Elmira Bears Wickenden, director of the National Council of War Service in New York.

An American Red Cross nurse during the last World war, Mrs. Wickenden remained overseas following the armistice to assist with relief work in northern France and Belgium. She entered service in this conflict as assistant director of the Red Cross Nurses' Aid program.

Of foremost interest at the brief business session following Mrs. Wickenden's talk will be announcement of a tentative new slate of council officers. In the absence of Mrs. Chester A. Cook, who heads the nursing organization, Mrs. Charles H. Wacker will conduct the meeting. Mrs. Chauncey B. Borland has been assisted by Miss Henrietta Froehlke, director of nurses of Presbyterian hospital, with arrangements.

Dr. Thomas A. Parran, surgeon general of the United States public health service, who is to be principal speaker at the hygiene association's Wednesday luncheon session, will have for his topic "Social Hygiene, the Past Five Years and the Next Five Years." Tho luncheon reservations are limited to 50 in coöperation with the office of defense transportation's effort to cope with the present emergency in hotel facilities, the program afterward is open to all friends and members.

At 2:30 o'clock, the assembly will move to the Central Y. M. C. A., 19 S. La Salle st., for a session concerned with "Building for the Future in War Time," and at 8 o'clock that night, discussion will focus on social hygiene problems as related to industry. Among the afternoon speakers will be Mrs. Bertha Ashby Hess of the Cleveland health department, who will talk on "Responsibility of the High Schools in a Social Hygiene Education Program."

Coöperating with the association in sponsoring the conference are the Chicago Social Hygiene Day committee, headed by Dr. Bertha Shafer, the American Social Hygiene association, Council of Social Agencies of Chicago, Illinois Department of Public Health, Cook County Public Health unit, Association of Commerce of Chicago and Chicago health department.

Tomorrow the public health department of the Woman's City club will have a program planned in coöperation with the social hygiene movement. Mrs. Janet S. Burgoon, supervisor of the division of social protection with the federal security agency, will tell of civilian responsibility in regard to the nation's current fight against social diseases and will show a film entitled, "Meet Your Enemy." A forum on the subject will be conducted under direction of Mrs. T. H. Ludlow and Mrs. Cyrus R. Shipman.

Cordon Club Will Sponsor Benefit Feb. 13

By Kathryn Loring.

Chicago of the elegant '80s, resplendent in countless rustling petticoats and silk covered bustles and satin slippers, will come to life a week from next Tuesday night under the sponsorship of the Cordon club.

It was Miss Herma Clark, a club member and editor of the Chicago Tribune column, "When Chicago Was Young," who was the inspiration for the Cordon's first "Elegant '80s" benefit two years ago. Miss Clark was the sole program participant at that time, recalling the now quaint and amusing melodrama of bygone days with her popular monologs and recitations. Apparently Chicagoans delight in reminiscing, for the program was repeated the following year with additional furbelows and before an audience that packed the Cordon's music room to the point of bursting. Accordingly, Miss Bertha Weeks and her ways and means committee have moved the Feb. 13 benefit to the more spacious quarters of Curtiss hall.

A new note is being introduced this year in the form of a "pink" reception, patterned on lines of the "pink" teas of the '80s, to be held after the program proper, along with an exhibit of such delightful heirlooms as the ashes of roses gown in which Mrs. David C. Cook, was married in 1874. Mrs. Una Howell Cook of Stony Island av. is lending the tight waisted, full skirted frock, as well as the lace veil and pointed, narrow slippers worn with it.

Mrs. Howard Linn is contributing a lovely old syllabub set which her grandmother, Mrs. William Blair, used in her handsome home near Harrison st. on Michigan av., where the Congress hotel now stands. Practical Mrs. Linn often uses the quaint set of cups from which belles of the '80s daintily sipped a concoction of whipped cream flavored with wine—in fact, reportedly was serving custard in them to a contingent of Red Cross workers in her home on the very day she was asked if they could be lent for the exhibit. Among other articles on display will be elaborate ration free menus of long ago from the collection of Miss Clark, one of them listing dishes served at a dinner for Gen. and Mrs. Ulysses S. Grant in 1879, and printed on pink satin.

Mrs. Lambert K. Hayes will be hostess at the reception, which, the program reads, "will tickle you pink [the favorite color of that era]. Pink punch, pink frosted cookies. Come in the pink of condition to enjoy this pink reception."

In addition to Miss Clark's readings given bustled dress, there will be a costume presentation of two scenes from the play, "Bustles and Bangs," written by Miss Clark in collaboration with another Cordon member, Miss Marie G. Merrill. An old fashioned singing school, with Luceba L. Van Dyke as singing master, will have as members of its quartet Carol Smith, who was adjudged best woman singer at the Chicago Music festival sponsored last August by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE; Annette Thorne Anderson, Florence Gullans Smith, and Ella Kushell.

The Woman's University Club of Chicago plans to turn its clock back to the days of Charles Dickens at a gathering set for 8 o'clock Friday night in the clubrooms and designated in commemoration of the birthday of the famous English novelist. Howard G. Pfrommer, who has written for The Dickensian, quarterly magazine of the Dickens fellowship in London, will speak on Dickens lore and will tell of some of the books in his large collection of Dickensiana.

There are Dickens fellowships the world over, and an interesting project of the Chicago unit is its upkeep in the Woman's and Children's hospital of a "Tiny Tim" bed, named for the beloved character of "A Christmas Carol."

TO WED ENSIGN

Miss Winifred Linda Wagner's engagement to Ensign Lea Weidner Smith of the navy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry E. Smith of Wheelersburg, O., is announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ira M. Wagner of 104th st. Miss Wagner is a student at Wheaton college, at which Ensign Smith also studied before entering the navy.

The Illinois Federation of Music Clubs has announced that its annual auditions in voice, piano, and violin for young artists and student musicians of Illinois will be held Saturday and Sunday, March 3 and 4, in the Lyon & Healy recital hall. Winners of the state contest will receive a $15 award and an opportunity to compete for the national federations' grand prizes of $1,000 in each of the three classifications. Applications must be in the hands of Miss Emma Menke of 420 Wesley av., Oak Park, not later than Feb. 15.

Mrs. Alma K. Anderson, state president of the Illinois federation, plans to attend a church choir clinic in Urbana this week, and will be in Springfield and East St. Louis as a guest at member clubs' meetings.

Also of interest in music circles is announcement by the Women's Chicago Beautiful association of its sponsorship of tonight's presentation by the American Opera company of "I Pagliacci" and the second and third acts of Balfe's "The Bohemian Girl." The program is scheduled at 8 o'clock in the Eighth Street theater. Mrs. Herbert K. Lammers heads the sponsoring association.

Both music and verse will occupy attention of the Chicago chapter of the Catholic Poetry society at an 8 o'clock meeting tomorrow night in the Alliance Francaise quarters. A musical recital on the origin of "The Moonlight Sonata" will be given by Mrs. L. J. Hobbs and her daughter, Gloria, and the guest speaker, James Supple, will tell of "Poets' Ivory Towers and the World at War." Mr. Supple is a Chicago newspaper man and a member of the board of directors of the Chicago Catholic University club.

The Elizabethan life, culture, and songs found in the Kentucky hills will be described by Jean Thomas, who has spent a lifetime writing on the subject, when she lectures before the Chicago Woman's club on Wednesday, Feb. 14. Author of "Traipsin' Woman," a Book of the Month selection; "Blue Ridge country," and other books, songs, and verse, full of flavor of rural America, Miss Thomas first went to the hills country as a 17 year old court reporter.

Republican Women Will Hear Talks Wednesday

The Woman's Republican Club of Illinois will hear talks by Elmer J. Schnackenberg, former speaker of the Illinois house of representatives, and King Williams, editor of the Chicago Heights Star, at a meeting at 2:15 o'clock Wednesday in the La Salle hotel. Mrs. Ethyl G. Kennedy will preside at the assembly, which is open to guests.

Palm Beach Is Crowded with Chicagoans

By Helen Van Hoy Smith.

Is there any one left in Chicago? Every third person you see down here is a Chicagoan, and you hear of others who expect to arrive soon.

PALM BEACH, FLA.

Many who came with the intention of remaining only a short time are staying all season. Several Chicago business men practically commute between their offices and Palm Beach golf courses.

February finds this resort simply bursting at the seams. Hotels and apartments are packed, and any reports you may have heard about hotel cancellations—in this area, at least—are exaggerated.

Mr. and Mrs. Silas Strawn are at the Villas. Joining the sizable Chicago colony at the Breakers recently were Mr. and Mrs. Clarence W. Sills, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph J. Rice, and Mrs. Frank Foster Davis. Mr. and Mrs. Paul B. Smithson, at the Brazilian court, have had a visit from their son, Ensign Paul B. Smithson Jr.

Mrs. Mary Deal, of Chicago, is spending the winter with her sister, Mrs. Frank J. Lewis, on Royal Palm way. Mr. and Mrs. Lewis have recently returned from Washington where they attended the presidential inauguration, and were also entertained by the Chinese consul at the Institute of Chinese Culture and at the Korean embassy.

Mrs. H. Mitchell Harper of Wilmette, accompanied by Mrs. Gene F. Drake, has opened her villa on the Lake Trail. Mr. Harper is expected soon.

Mr. and Mrs. Theodore W. Robinson Jr., are expected early next week to join the senior Robinsons at the latter's Barton avenue villa. Mr. and Mrs. Sanger Robinson and Mrs. Ronald P. Boardman will arrive later in the season.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Buswell are at the Boca Raton club. Hugh O'Neil has joined Mrs. O'Neil and her daughter, Mrs. Alexander Babcock, at their villa on Via Del Lago.

Mrs. Ross J. Beatty gave a dinner party at Mal Maison in honor of Mme. Kurenko and her accompanist, Henri Gregor, who gave a concert at the Norton Art gallery recently.

Maj. and Mrs. Ednyfed Williams of Chicago are guests of William A. Shawcross at the Everglades club.

The Everglades club will celebrate its 25th anniversary Thursday with a silver dinner-dance. Decorations and music will pay tribute to the year 1920. Mrs. Charles B. Wrightsman heads a committee to do research work along these lines.

George Skinner, a Chicago gentleman of the old school, was among those who attended the annual octogenarian luncheon given by Mr. and Mrs. John Shepard Jr., at Casa Del Pastor. Mr. Shepard is 88. Another Chicagoan who usually attends these luncheons, Marvin Hughitt, was prevented this year by illness. At the luncheon there was a birthday cake for Gen. J. Earnest Smith, of Wilmington, Del., who was celebrating his 95th birthday.

Greetings were sent from Newport by Mrs. Maude Howe Elliott, who, at 90, is still writing, but whose Palm Beach sojourn was made impossible by travel conditions. Gen. Smith, who has been coming to Palm Beach since 1891, entertained at the Breakers with a birthday dinner, when Chicago guests were Mrs. William F. Bode and Mr. Skinner. One of the founders of the Old Guard Golfing society, Gen. Smith gave up the game at the age of 92, but still enjoys practicing on the putting green. Chicagoans at the Breakers joined in the applause the other afternoon when Gen. Smith danced a fox trot with a young partner.

Life in Palm Beach this season is a sort of gold fish bowl affair. Mama shops and papa chauffeurs and everybody meets everybody else out marketing. There's no secret, either, about who entertains whom, and when, for most parties are held at clubs, hotels, or cocktail lounges. The cocktail hours at the Breakers and the Whitehall, where there are outdoor dance patios, are always popular.

Edward G. Robinson made an unexpected appearance at Whitehall's Jadin Royal the other evening. He looks so exactly like his pictures, one of which was appearing at a local movie house, that he might have stepped directly down from the screen.

Comdr. Jack Dempsey, with his two young daughters, Joan and Barbara, are at the Palm Beach hotel. Max Mann, famous for his powers to lull the restless to sleep, is at the Whitehall.

Salvation Army Women to Fete Board Members

Two newly appointed board members—Mrs. Milton J. Krensky of Glencoe and Mrs. Samuel James Campbell of Chicago—will be welcomed by the women's division of the Salvation Army at its February meeting scheduled at noon tomorrow in the Chicago College club, 30 N. Michigan av. Mrs. Herbert Paschen will be hostess of the day, and Mrs. Charles S. Clark will preside.

Fashions and Fancy

By Judith Cass

(Sketch on page 1.)

One of the few formal parties of the last three years was given last week at the Casino by the board of directors of Emerson House to raise funds for the settlement in N. Wood st. The party, called a "Two Bit Ball," was not a large one, altho approximately $2,200 was raised. The majority of the young women present often had danced in the club's column lined ballroom at pre-war debut parties—their own, in many cases. There was no champagne, but a "good" table wine appeared along with the ration free chicken that is the staple of today's club and hotel parties, and more than one waiter could recall having served his feminine guests when ball gowns were either knee length, or appropriately frilled for an 18 year old bud, instead of suavely cut for a young matron. At that, the party dresses present were definitely intended for the ballroom and the number of full, sweeping skirts present quite overwhelmed the straight, slit skirt so popular for the last few months. One of the most romantic gowns was worn by Mrs. Alfred Uihlein, a full skirted black velvet one topped by a long sleeved jacket which she removed when she stepped onto the dance floor with her husband, a captain in the army medical corps. Another was Mrs. Solomon B. Smith's of silver gray satin, cut low and suspended from narrow straps, and brightened by an insertion of gold satin 24 inches wide across the top of the yards wide skirt. A third was Mrs. William B. Goltra's bouffant one of black net, also cut low, with tiny straps across the shoulders, and which was splashed all over with large bunches of grapes appliqued in gold thread. Mrs. Goltra finally pressed the dress herself [it took her three hours] after four cleaners told her they no longer do that sort of work.

Few could have used to better advantage the book of taxi coupons Mrs. Ralph Hamill Jr. won for turning in the most stubs in the taxi dance competition than Mrs. Louis C. Sudler, whose car recently burned on the outer drive, one in a series of mishaps which has provided a chain of not the usual three, but five unlucky occurrences which have plagued her this winter. First Mrs. Sudler's son lost her wristwatch; then her fur coat was stolen from the Saddle and Cycle club; then $40 was taken from her purse in a theater, and finally she was told that the family probably will have to vacate its apartment in May when the building may be remodeled into smaller units. Mrs. Sudler's ball gown was a stunning one of black embroidered in a gold hearts shaped pattern across the bodice with another band of the decoration on the narrow skirt.

Almost in the Victorian mood was Mrs. Philip D. Armour Jr.'s long black faille gown with its matching jacket and tiny back peplum. Instead of wearing her gardenia corsage, Mrs. Armour carrier a long sheath of the creamy blossoms in one hand. An effective contrast was made by two willowy blondes talking together in the Fountain room, Mrs. John Q. Adams Jr., whose black skirt was topped by a white bodice, and Mrs. Milton Wilson Jr., whose white lace skirt was topped in black. Mrs. William M. Collins Jr., in soft gray green with touches of crimson at the neck, and Mrs. Gardner Brown, in black lace and crepe took tickets. Mrs. William A. Ryan's sophisticated long sleeved gown of black provided back interest in a daring decolletage, filled in, however, with black net. Mrs. Brooks McCormick also chose a two piece dress, a filmy lace bodice of beige topping a black skirt. Mrs. Ronald P. Boardman topped a cocoa net skirt with a long sleeved bolero type bodice of chocolate velvet. Mrs. Robert G. Anderson's stunning dress of fine vertical stripes in tan, violet, and green was completely bare backed. Mrs. Paine Fentress' gown of mahogany taffeta boasted the new side draping, and the bodice of Mrs. E. Stewart Skidmore's frock of black was edged in pale blue satin and trimmed with roses of the satin. Looking more like the debutante she was a dozen years ago than the mother of four young children that she is today, was another pretty young party guest, Mrs. Pierre Bouscaren, who found it necessary to "farm out" two of her youngsters in order to get away for the evening. Slender and blonde, she was wearing a leaf green crepe, long sleeved gown embroidered in gold.

Sorority Group to Hold Luncheon Meet Friday

Chicago Intercollegiate association of Kappa Kappa Gamma will gather for a luncheon program at 12:30 o'clock Friday in the English room of Marshall Field & Co. Guest artist will be Miss Harriet Allyn, monologist and impersonator, who will entertain with a series of original character sketches. Mrs. Robert H. Watson of 1930 W. 101st pl. is in charge of reservations.

Professional Women Plan Dinner Meet

Women associated with various business or professional groups in the city have a number of interesting events on the calendar. The Alliance of Business and Professional Women of Chicago will hold a dinner meeting a week from tomorrow in the Chicago College club, 30 N. Michigan av. Clyde O. Bedell will speak on "Lincoln Now," a conception of Lincoln's attitude toward the crises of our age and a fitting subject for the anniversary of the great President. Mrs. Katherine Maddux, president of the alliance, and Mrs. Hazel Ferguson, vice president, will preside.

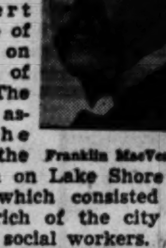
When Chicago Was Young

By Herma Clark

Letters from Martha Freeman Esmond to her friend Julia Boyd of New York.

CHICAGO, Feb. 3, 1897.

Dear Julia: Still cold. The weather gives point to the stress laid on work for the poor nowadays. Last evening we attended a gathering at the Potter Palmer home, at which Robert Treat Paine of Boston spoke on "The Needs of the Poor." The audience assembled in the ballroom of the great mansion on Lake Shore dr., an audience which consisted not only of the rich of the city but ministers and social workers. The Boston millionaire began by saying that the rich need the poor more than the latter need the rich. He declared that the noblest culture was that which was derived from contact with humanity. His address was quite informal, but was delivered with great earnestness and the fact that he himself has devoted much of his time to the welfare of the working man made what he said even more impressive.



Franklin MacVeagh.

You know he built the Wells Memorial Institute for Workingmen about 16 years ago, where clubs and organized labor unions meet. He was one of the founders and is still president of the Associated Charities of Boston, and the motto: "Not alms, but a friend" was suggested by him. In 1890 he established, with a large endowment, the Robert Treat Paine association for the help of working people, the proceeds of the endowment to be devoted to religious, charitable, and educational work.

In his talk he said that charity never had so beautiful an opportunity to commend itself. But he thought it should not be haphazard, but given thru regular agencies. "The power of helping your brothers by means of guidance and encouragement is of infinitely greater importance than the indiscriminate giving of heedless help, which pauperizes and ruins."

His words reminded me of Lowell's, in "The Vision of Sir Launfal":

"Who gives himself with his alms feeds three. . .
Himself, his hungering neighbor, and Me."

I wondered what the Saviour would have said to us, if He had been addressing that meeting. We sat amid luxurious surroundings, the walls of the ballroom hung with priceless paintings and tapestries. Most of us were well dressed, some were wearing rich furs. Yet not far away—on Clark st. and to the west of that—there is poverty and suffering. Will and I talked it over as we sat for a while by the library fire at home before going to bed. I felt uneasy and said so. "Shall we sell our large house, which we really don't need, and go to live in a small apartment, giving our modest wealth to the poor? Shall I dismiss our chambermaid and do the upstairs work myself, giving the amount of her wages to the suffering."

We decided that neither of these ideas was very practical. The chambermaid is attached to us and she needs the money I pay her to help her family. Our house is not salable now, real estate being in the doldrums. But we both felt genuinly stirred by Mr. Paine's appeal and wanted to do something. Will decided not to get a new overcoat, but to wear the one he has had for two years. I made up my mind not to order a new dress for Easter, but to give the amount which Will hands me about this time to the Chicago Bureau of Charities. We felt much better until Will began to wonder if his tailor might not be depending on that overcoat order, while I reflected that my dressmaker counted me as a regular spring customer. But we sent our checks off this morning, and will try to see that the tailor and dressmaker don't suffer.

Mr. Paine's address was an appeal for a sort of clearing house of charitable organizations, each giving information and help to the others, as banks have a clearing house for their business.

I wonder how the others who heard him settled with their consciences today. There were present such people as Mr. and Mrs. Lyman J. Gage, Mr. and Mrs. Franklin MacVeagh, Mr. and Mrs. Ferdinand W. Peck, Prof. and Mrs. Henderson of the University of Chicago.

Much love,

MARTHA FREEMAN ESMOND.

FOOT NOTES.

Robert Treat Paine [1835-1910], philanthropist, did much to make charitable organizations efficient.

Country Sayings.

A reader who signs only the initials "H. S.," but tells us he is a life long resident of Chicago and in his 90th year, sends several old sayings from the German, freely translated: "Where there is singing, we may stay. The evil minded have no songs." And "You may mend an old kettle, but you cannot make a new one of it." [Can't do the impossible.] . . . A country saying painfully clear to every housewife today comes from Helen S. Light, 7041 Bennett av., Chicago: "It is too late to begin to save when you can see the bottom of the butter jar."

I Shall Not Pass This Way.

This Poem of the Week has aroused much interest on the part of our readers. A. C. Martin of the Museum of Science and Industry sends an excerpt from a letter from his son, Lt. [j. g.] A. C. Martin Jr., who came across the sentiment [in prose] credited to Etienne de Grellet [1773-1855]. "De Grellet was born in Limoges, France; came to America as Stephen Grellet; became a Quaker and traveled as a missionary thru the United States, Canada, and Europe. This saying, tho persistently attributed to him, is not found in his writings." Lt. Martin was interested in finding this information because he had heard it attributed to Channing [presumably William Ellery Channing]. Bartlett's Familiar Quotations does not list this in prose, but Sam Walter Foss is set down as having written a poem with a similar title. Still the little verse we offered in this column has no parent.

Palm Springs Attracts Many from Chicago

PALM SPRINGS, CAL.

Travelers from far and near began coming to Palm Springs to seek the desert sunshine early in October when the season first opened. Now that the season is nearing its peak, a large contingent from Chicago is gathering to enjoy the outdoor living at turquoise swimming pools, golf on the palm shaded fairways, and picnicking on the sandy bridal trails which lead to the famous Palm canyon—a real oasis in the midst of an arid desert.

The Desert inn, oldest and most exclusive hostelry in Palm Springs, opened for its 36th winter season this fall. Among those who have exchanged the icy blasts of the midwest to lounge in the sunshine and grass covered gardens and dine out-of-doors on the inn's tiled terrace is Mrs. David Joyce, who will be here until the end of March. Mr. and Mrs. Robert K. Cameron of River Forest and their little daughter are spending a month at the inn, and the H. A. Koehlers, also of River Forest, recently completed a three weeks' holiday in the same resort. Others there on shorter visits are the H. E. Edsons, the Fairfax Cones, and the Leo J. Hulsemans and their son.

William Kidston, Chicago bachelor who maintains a handsome Palm Springs home, loaned his house over the holidays to Capt. and Mrs. Richard Whitehead, who are well known in Chicago, where Capt. Whitehead was stationed with the navy for several months.

Palm Springs has become known as the "Million Dollar" village, because of its tremendously successful bond drives.

One of the most popular money raising events sponsored in this locality was the auctioning of the services of Arthur Treacher, famed movieland butler. The event took place in the Desert inn's De Anza room. James G. Kemper offered $350,000 in bonds for Treacher to serve luncheon to a group of Democrats who worked on the Dewey campaign, and he also paid $50,000 for an original manuscript of the film, "Wilson."

Ernest Alschuler of Evanston, who spends many months in Palm Springs with Mrs. Alschuler during the winter, paid what is believed to be the highest price for a carton of cigarets. He bid $10,000 in bonds for the carton, and had the smokes presented to the injured patients at Torney General hospital.

The Tennis club, one of the Springs' most scenic and unusually landscaped spots, is a favorite gathering place. Some vacationers when they are on a holiday prefer a dude ranch to a modern hotel. The B-Bar-H guest ranch, a few miles across the rolling sand dunes from Palm Springs proper—where western clothes are the popular garb, attracts many from Chicago.

Desert Takes Active Role in Tucson Life

TUCSON, ARIZ.

In the Old Pueblo you can't forget the desert. In the summer and autumn it blows at you and settles in your teeth. This time of year you see and feel it ever. Other towns have the faculty of self-enclosure; New Yorkers wear the face of Gotham, not that of the rolling hills of Westchester or of the surf at Montauk. The Chicago tempo is set by the loop.

But Tucson wears the mien and garb of the desert. The Tusconians' pressed pants are out of place in the corral; the redolent jeans of the cow waddy are not only proper, but preferred, in the lobby of the Pioneer or Santa Rita.

The desert means hot sun and mesquite, copper earth and technicolor sky, companionship of animals, solitariness without solitude. And for the inner man it means comfortable quarters, furniture for use rather than decoration, victuals that do not translate into French to elevate the menu, but are gastronomically satisfying beyond measure.

El Rancho Rillito is a new guest ranch, located on the River road half a score of miles from Tucson with an unparalleled northward vista of the Catalina foothills. It is in the environs of Old Fort Lowell, whose still standing ruins are witness to the fortitude of the Civil war soldiers who gave up the battle "within the family" to ferret out Geronimo and his Apaches.

Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Dickerson of Chicago are owners and operators of the ranch, which promises simple living and genuine ranch life for winter visitors. Among their guests at present are Mr. and Mrs. H. Peter Henschien of Flossmoor whose daughter, Karen, is a liberal arts freshman at the University of Arizona this year.

New Gallery Will Open in Chicago Soon

By Eleanor Jewett.

A new gallery is about to open in Chicago. The Associated American Artists has long made itself felt as a progressive unit in contemporary art. From its headquarters in New York it has reached out to nearly every part of the country and gathered in a membership which is fairly representative of the United States. The Christmas cards, and for a season or two the charming Christmas booklets published by the society, are familiar to thousands. Following the annual fresh edition of cards has been a popular way of keeping up with the latest developments in technique and manner of prominent American artists in whom one was interested.

The Associated American Artists has a long list of artist members. Among them are Adolf Dehn, Peggy Bacon, James Chapin, Nicolai Cikovsky, Thomas Benton, Reginald Marsh, John Costigan, John Steuart Curry, and Frederic Taubes. The one reservation we have always carried secretly against the group is that in accordance with the popular trend of today it leans to the left. We think art should show no preferences but take a straight course down the middle of the road and give representation in equal amount to both left and right groups.

The Chicago gallery of Associated American Artists will be at 846 N. Michigan av. It probably will open the latter part of this month. We hope we are right in visualizing a new list of accepted members from Chicago and trust it will include Peggy Palmer Burrows, Julia Thecla, Winnifred Pleimling, Edithe Jane Cassidy, Frances Foy, and various other men and women artists whose work is unusually good.

An army art exhibition, the work of Pfc. Henry Wenclawski of Camp McCoy, Wis., opens tomorrow in the Esquire theater gallery on E. Oak st., to continue thru Feb. 17. Wenclawski has a sense of humor and is an excellent draughtsman; his exhibit promises to be clever and amusing.

The 21st annual Hoosier salon, unfortunately lost to Chicago, was held this year in Indianapolis. Over $4,000 in prizes was given. Many artists familiar to most of us for the beauty and excellent of their work were among those awarded prizes, for instance, Karl Brandner, C. Curry Bohm, Edward K. Williams, and Robert Laurent. Mr. Bohm won the award for the outstanding work in oil, topping the list with his beautiful "Gray Hills of Winter."

One of the most delightful and popular exhibits held in the last several seasons was that of paintings by the Indian princess, Pop Chalee. Pop Chalee is an attractive person and a gifted artist. Her work is thrilling in color and line. It has an added interest because much of her subject matter is taken from Indian legends of the Santa Fe country. The latest bit of work of hers to become available to collectors, and to those who like a stunning picture, is a serigraph by Louie Ewing, after a drawing by Pop Chalee, "The Blue Horse."

The print is a brilliantly colored portrayal of a legendary, turquoise blue stallion, printed on black paper. The rhythmically flowing mane and tail introduce additional color into the picture—in fact they have a triumphant sweep, like floods of green shimmering star dust. The story of the blue stallion is fascinating. It is an Indian legend: "Before the Spaniards came to New Mexico the Indians had no means of transportation except the huge dogs they used for carrying and packing. When the Spaniards came they brought their beautiful Arabian horses with them. All forms of life are sacred to the Indians and these fine horses were especially revered, not only because of their beauty but also because they were swift and tireless.

In Taos the Indians were proud of an especially fine stallion. The horse sired many valuable colts and brought happiness and prosperity to the tribe. When he died the Indians felt that the spirit of such a noble animal could not die. And, sure enough, a horse began to appear in the pueblo at night.

According to the legend, he comes with the evening star and his gorgeous tail and mane sweep out in the night wind as he moves swiftly thru the pueblo. With the coming of the morning star he leaves. On winter nights the children of the tribe believe they can still hear him as he moves, ever so quietly and swiftly, thru the pueblo, watching over his beloved Indian friends.

"The Blue Horse" may be ordered from Mrs. Alfred Fowler, 1244 Martha Custis dr., Alexandria, Va. The print is $5 and well worth the price. It is a stirring picture of a beautiful animal, colorful and decorative.

The masterpiece for the month at the Art institute for February is a rare painting by a famous Chinese artist, T'ang Yin, who lived from 1470 to 1524 A. D. The painting is a narrow strip of picture with many delightful details. The title is odd—"Tea Drinking with a Bamboo Stove under the Wu T'ung Tree." As a matter of fact, the bamboo stove does not take part in the tea drinking, which is done by a priest and a friend; the friend is seated on an excellent imitation of one of our low single spring cots, the kind the extra guest brings to light in a crowded household. The drawing in the picture is exquisite, careful, clever, and significant. Chinese art at its best is fascinating, and this example is superb.

The bidding:

East	South	West	North
1 spade	Pass	2 diamonds	Pass
2 spades	Pass	3 clubs	Pass
3 spades	Pass	4 spades	Pass
Pass	Pass

Reluctance on the part of players to give up tricks which must inevitably be lost, is a common and costly failing. Postponing the evil moment of payment never makes the bill shrink. Witness East's shortsightedness in today's deal.

The bidding was sound in all respects. East having opened a hand that was minimum in high cards, could do nothing but rebid spades in response to partner's one round force. West was justified in raising to four. Inasmuch as he held a sound opening bid himself, he could visualize a game when partner opened the bidding. The problem was to find the "spot." He made every effort to induce partner to bid three no trump, but when East bid spades for the third time, his two trumps became normal support, since opener has indicated a 6 card suit.

South opened the king of hearts, and when the doubleton showed up in dummy, promptly shifted to the queen of spades. Declarer won and returned a heart, but South continued with the jack of trumps. After winning this trick declarer placed all his faith in the even break of the diamond suit. On the third diamond he discarded one of his hearts. If this trick lived, he would discard his last heart on the fourth diamond which the opposition could win only with the high trump. Unfortunately, however, South ruffed the third diamond and cashed the setting tricks in hearts.

Declarer could have rendered the contract virtually foolproof, by the simple expedient of giving up the trump trick early instead of late. The important thing was to insure the uninterrupted run of the diamonds. When South leads the queen of spades, declarer should permit him to hold it, since one trick must be lost in spades anyhow. The best that South can do is cash the ace of hearts and continue with a trump. But now all the trumps can be drawn and discards taken on the solid diamond suit.

East had a trump trick to pay, in any event. Discounting the bill would have been a very profitable procedure.

Kaskaskia chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution has invited national and state officers of the society and Illinois honorary and chapter regents to a tea, which is being given for Mrs. Ivor Jeffreys, a candidate for the post of Illinois state regent, at 1:30 o'clock Tuesday in the Woman's Athletic club. In the receiving line with Mrs. Jeffreys, who is a past regent of the hostess chapter, will be Mrs. Buxton L. Johnson and Mrs. Albert H. Tippens, Kaskaskia regent and vice regent, respectively, and Mrs. Clayton Dunham, regent of the Glencoe chapter of which Mrs. Jeffreys is an associate member. Included on the program will be a talk by Miss Mabel Louise Keech on "Coats of Arms of Interest to Americans."

At 10:15 o'clock Friday, Mrs. Len Young Smith and Mrs. Dan Pagenta will conduct a joint meeting of the Illinois society's fourth division national defense and Americanism committees, which will bring James A. Sprowl of the Chicago Bar association as principal speaker. His talk will be concerned with the proposed Illinois constitutional convention.

Thru the Looking Glass

If you really want to impress your favorite Valentine, give her a gift of precious perfume. There's no getting away from it, we gals are pushovers for the flattery implied in such a present. Certainly, we like candy, flowers, jewelry, and such stuff, but for most of us a bottle of perfume carries with it a special significance.

It makes us feel that the giver considers us particularly feminine, with a taste for the finer things and an appreciation of the beautiful. And it even makes us feel a little sophisticated, removed from the ordinary, plodding ways of life. We're all a little frivolous at heart, and perhaps that is another reason we so love perfume.

When we have a flacon of pretty scent we dip into it daily, and just having its fragrance waft about us as we go about our every day affairs gives us a feeling of being a little more giddy and lighthearted than we actually feel.

With the wide selection of perfumes on the market there's really no trick to finding one that is right for your pocketbook and in the perfect fragrance to suit the lady of your choice. But if you'd like a hint from us about a perfume that we consider super-elegant and practically unsurpassable for fragrance, packaging, and sheer quiet good taste we'll be happy to oblige.

This is a perfume of harmonious blending, a rich, unforgettable scent, rare and altogether lovely. Women who wear it love its distinction and are loathe to switch to any others. It's beguiling in the manner of sweet music, and its memory lingers like the strain of a haunting tune. And because it's so richly beautiful, it's a compliment to the woman who receives it.

This is a perfume to be used with discretion, a tiny touch of it at the ears and the base of the throat will be sufficient to spread an aura of fragrance, and will last for hours. The woman who owns it and uses it in this manner will find that she can enjoy it endlessly without ever tiring of it.

The handsome crown bottle that holds the perfume is a fitting setting for it. It's a jewel among perfumes, and the woman who receives it will undoubtedly cherish it as one of her treasured possessions.

Designs for Needlework

By Ellen Bruce

The most popular item of feminine apparel in these days of 68 degree room temperatures is the good old fashioned hug-me-tights. They are crocheted in bright colors and worn over a wool dress with all the style aplomb of an eton or bolero jacket. They are extremely simple to make and require little time.

A crocheted hat and bag set are an essential to every well planned wardrobe this season. The pill box is a combination of single crochet and medallions. Grosgrain ribbon and medallions fashion a smart handbag.

For instructions in crocheting the hug-me-tight, No. 1237, and the hat and bag set, No. 1028, send 10 cents in stamps or coin, plus 2 cents to cover mailing cost, for each pattern, to the Needlework Bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 5th av., New York 1, N. Y.

Lady of the House

Remember the Sabbath.

"For, bless the guid mon, gin he had his own way,
He'd na let a cat on the Sabbath say 'mew';
Nae birdie maun whistle, nae lambie maun play,
And Phoebus himsel' could nay travel that day,
As he'd find a new Joshua in Andie Agnew."

Perhaps those of us who early were taught to make all possible preparation for Sunday on Saturday can best appreciate these lines from Moore's "Sunday Ethics." The house swept and garnished, kitchen scrubbed after the Saturday baking, shoes polished and in a neat row, Sunday school lessons learned.

Certain it is we have all come a long way from that, these latter days so crammed with duties and cares, when no one need ask with Marcellus [Hamlet]:

"Why such impress of shipwrights, whose sore task
Does not divide the Sunday from the week?"

For most of us the chores spill over from the six days of labor and make a seventh without much rest. Lest we get too lax in our Sunday keeping, Aunt Ella suggests an anonymous [if you like] symposium on what women are doing with their Sundays.

A busy "lady of the house," who goes out to business every day and takes active part in many things, starts us off with this:

"Tho Sunday has been designated as a day of rest, I cannot help but wonder if our dear Lord would begrudge the mellow glow I feel in thinking this day is a gift, an ultra-special day set aside to do with as the spirit moves. A day of surcease from the rush and sometimes regimented routine of a business day is so sweet! Whether one spends it in bringing order to a chaotic house, or the sheen to a head of hair, or a small dent in a pile of correspondence, or sharing its hours with beloved music, or hobbies or friends cannot be too amiss, it seems to me, if the precious respite prompts the thought of thanks toward One who set this day aside. I know a day so scheduled would be better for inclusion of an hour or so in God's house—but what do you think? Does Sunday sometimes strike you thus?"

Well, what do YOU think?

Comparison.

A man is satisfied if he is fed
With pipe and easy chair he can forego
Rare pleasures if his means are limited
His wants are few . . . the smallest bungalow
Is room enough if comfort crowns his days.
The woman that he takes to be his wife
Must learn to show her love in little ways
To him each lowly task she does is rife
With love and means more than honeyed word
Or gesture could. The household in her hands
Can mirror love or be a kiss conferred
That is the kind of love he understands.
Men feel that they are loved and are consoled.
But women' don't know love unless they're told.

Were friendly once, but now
They're flaunting costly raiment
From every jeweled bough.

Their background of angelic snow

For this fortune new and beautiful,
I'll tell you how 'twas made.

Hear their slender fingers crackling—
It's a case for the F. B. I.

They're exchanging dot-dot-dashes
With the twink-twink twinkling sky!

A bit of the rose that blooms in the spring,
A flash of blue like the bluebird's wing,
Gold like the sunshine of merry May,
Some lavender too in its array.
And deep in its pages warm and bright
I shall dream away the winter night,
Drifting along on petalous wing
Of this first gay harbinger of spring.

Try to Identify Good and Bad Traits of Child

By Gladys Huntington Bevans.

[Copyright: 1945: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

All parents sooner or later discover that their children have certain peculiarities, all their own, in behavior, emotions, tastes, and temperament. Wise parents adjust themselves to these traits, if they are not too exceptional; others think they must "do something about them," at all costs.

The former try to tone down the traits which they think may work against the child's happiness, without making too obvious the fact that they are doing so, or they simply stand by and let growth and the gaining of wisdom help their child overcome them. The latter, however, feel they must make Sue, Harry, or Billy, just like all the other children in the neighborhood "normal."

A woman whose profession gives her the opportunity to observe many children, especially the 2, 3, and 4 year olds, often is asked this and that about the "normal" child. She says she is often tempted to say, like the man who visited the zoo and saw for the first time a giraffe, "There ain't no such animal!" She says that she has never encountered a child she considers absolutely normal.

That, of course, is another way of saying that practically every child has some little kink in his make-up, some inhibition, some twist, some peculiarity which needs to be smoothed away. Many times, as I have said, he will work out of this difficulty as he grows, altho sometimes the process of doing so is hard on him.

Let me quote from a few of the letters I have received from troubled parents:

"Sally is stubborn. . . ."

"Jack is too retiring. He won't take an interest in sports. . . ."

"Carol is so scatter-brained she doesn't make the grade in school."

"Alfred thinks he knows it all. . . ."

"Why? Why? Why?" the children ask of us a dozen times a day about something which puzzles them. And we must say the same thing to ourselves every time we are confronted with something that needs correction in our children. We must root out the cause if we are to clear up the trouble. This investigation or diagnosis often is more difficult than the treatment. But first, be sure that the traits you object to are ones that really need to be changed.

If your child has traits that you feel hold back his happiness or hinder his fullest development, you must do everything in your power to help him correct them and to adjust himself to life and to others as early as possible. But don't worry too much, because he is normal in not being what is known as perfectly normal—if you see what I mean. Instead of fretting him or yourself about his idiosyncracy, just do something practical about it.

Also, stop a moment and consider before taking any action. Many of the distressing mannerisms and traits that crop up may be due merely to the particular phase of growth thru which your child is passing at the moment.

Fashions

By Angela

The wise, pre-season shopper is going to take advantage now of the opportunity to purchase sports clothes for resort wear. Shoppers will pick up what they see now, because there is a chance they may not be able to find what they want when they want it.

One casual costume planned for southern wear is a pedal pusher outfit which is really more than that, because a skirt has been added. The Jacob's blouse is self-explanatory, but the colors are mouth watering. The front of the high neck and cap sleeve top is melon and gold, while the back is a beautiful aqua and purple combination. For shopping, the well cut, smoothly fitted, black faille culottes are the order of the day. For spectator sports the culottes are substituted for a good looking black faille skirt. There is a single center plait, with two darts at each side below the waistband, creating the present day version of the peg top skirt.

The other model, styled for the youthful figure exclusively, is ideal in checks, and lovely in plain colors. It has a contrasting collar, washable, bracelet length sleeves, and attractive fullness in the skirt.

On the House

By Louise Bargelt.

There is a new type furnace which has been developed for postwar homes. This furnace needs no basement since it is set in the floor itself, and no ducts are needed. In the average five room house air is warmed, sterilized, and circulated three to five times an hour and this air flow not only affords warm floors but distributes heat from floor to ceiling. Gas, oil, and butane models will be available in these floor furnaces, and the same manufacturers also will offer other types of heating, including many space heater models and many sizes of central heating plants and water heaters. These manufacturers also offer a free booklet which gives information on heating of tomorrow.

Where space is crowded in a small home or apartment no unit is more helpful than a modern clothes dryer which will close flat against a wall. One such model, which will open to give about seven feet of drying space, is of hard, smooth wood with lacquer finish.

Simple Fruit Desserts Save Sugar Supply

By Mary Meade.

[Copyright: 1945: By The Chicago Tribune.]

Simple fruit desserts which are easy on sugar and rationed fat are much in demand these days. Apples are one of our most plentiful fruits, so it's natural that many of these desserts should be made with apples. Bananas aren't as scarce as they have been, and an occasional banana dessert isn't impossible for most families. There are oranges, of course, and fresh pears, a few extravagant strawberries, and the beautiful pink rhubarb beginning to come to market. From any of these fruits delicious desserts may be made.

There are dried fruits, too. In some markets you'll find dried pears and peaches, in addition to apricots and prunes. Upside down cakes, fruit whips, and puddings take less sugar when made with the naturally sweet dried fruits.

Pear Sauce.
[Serves six.]

- 8 winter pears
- Juice of ½ lemon
- 1/3 to ½ cup sugar or honey
- ¼ teaspoon ginger
- ⅛ teaspoon salt

Pare, core, and slice pears. If they are fully ripe winter pears, do not add any water, as they become juicy upon cooking. If they are under-ripe, add ¼ cup water. Sprinkle sliced pears with lemon juice and simmer until tender in saucepan. Add sugar, ginger, and salt; stir thoroly, and cook to desired consistency. Pear sauce may be served as it is or strained like applesauce. Chill thoroly to serve.

Apple Pandowdy.
[Serves six.]

- 5 cups sliced apples
- ½ cup sugar
- ⅛ teaspoon salt
- ¼ teaspoon cinnamon
- ⅛ teaspoon nutmeg
- ¼ teaspoon grated lemon rind
- 1½ tablespoons lemon juice
- 2 tablespoons water
- 1⅓ cups sifted cake flour
- 1½ teaspoons baking powder
- ½ teaspoon salt
- ¼ cup margarine, lard, or vegetable shortening
- 1/3 cup milk

Place apples in greased eight inch square pan and sprinkle with sugar, salt, spices, lemon, and water. Cover, and bake 20 minutes at 450 degrees. Sift flour, baking powder, and salt, cut in shortening, add milk, and stir vigorously until dough holds together well. Turn out on lightly floured board and knead gently for half a minute. Then roll or pat out to fit top of apple mixture, cutting slash in the center to permit the escape of steam. Place dough over apples and return to hot oven to bake until crust is browned and apples are tender. Serve hot with cream or ice cream.

Strawberries with Cream Cheese.

A perfectly delicious fresh fruit dessert is made by beating 1/3 cup cream or milk into a 3 ounce package of cream cheese and serving this topping over whole fresh strawberries in sherbet glasses. Another excellent dressing for fresh strawberries is commercially prepared sour cream. Berries may be sweetened, but the preferred way is to serve them without sugar. It's easier on the sugar ration, too.

Baked Bananas.

Peel bananas and slice lengthwise, then crosswise. Place in greased baking dish and sprinkle with brown sugar and bits of margarine. Bake 15 minutes at 350 degrees, and serve warm.

Rhubarb Sauce.

Rhubarb is most attractive if cooked without water and so that the pieces remain whole. Wash rhubarb and place in the top of a double boiler with a light sprinkle of salt. Cover and cook over boiling water until tender, 20 to 30 minutes. Sprinkle with sugar about 10 minutes before rhubarb is done, and stir gently. Honey or corn sirup may be used as sweetener. The amount of sweetening depends upon individual preference. Half a cup of honey or sugar to a pound of rhubarb is a usual measure. Sometimes a teaspoon of grated lemon or orange rind and a pinch of mace are added to rhubarb. Rhubarb also may be baked in a casserole in the oven.

Dried Fruit and Rice Pudding.
[Serves six.]

- 2 cups cooked rice
- ½ cup chopped dates, prunes, or apricots
- 1/3 cup honey
- 2 eggs, beaten
- 1 cup milk

If salt wasn't added in cooking the rice, add a sprinkle. Mix rice with fruit and honey. Add milk to eggs and pour over rice mixture. Bake at 350 degrees for 45 minutes. More of the fruit may be used. A combination of dried fruits is good. Cook prunes or apricots before measuring.

Fresh Fruit Cup Dessert.
[Serves six.]

- 1 cup orange sections
- ½ cup seeded white grapes or halved strawberries
- 1 cup sliced banana
- ½ cup diced apple or pear
- Honey or confectioner's sugar
- Maraschino cherries [if strawberries are not used]

Combine fruits, add a sprinkling of sugar or honey, and serve very cold in sherbet glasses.

Colorful Print Fashions Are Available Now

By Rea Seeger.

A gay, colorful print dress under a fur or fur trimmed coat works magic with any wardrobe. Such models are the midseason ones that revive a well worn winter wardrobe, provide the hint of spring, and assure a lift to sagging morale, weary of winter winds and snow. Every season prints arrive to prove that fabric makers have not lost the art of imprinting brilliant colors in original, gay, and even amusing designs against effective background colors ranging from tender pastels, high, strong colors to the effective black, browns, and deep navy blues.

The current collections of prints are, as always, very simple in construction, the better to dramatize the printed motifs. Skirts feature a definite new drape, however, the tell-tale hint of a new spring silhouette. You'll see the suavely smooth, sarong draped and side tied skirts, the smartly modified versions of the peg topped skirt, and the flared skirted affairs that feature the new loose and somewhat circular cut effect, the opposite of the straight, slim silhouette of early fall.

Bodices also are softly draped with clever, interesting neck lines. Sleeves are short; a good three-quarters of them show the extended shoulders, achieved with expertly cut caps or the old fashioned, wider bretelles. Much of the material required by longer, more complicated sleeves is thereby used in the wider, fuller skirts, and still the yardage of the entire dress is within government restrictions.

New prints are most unusual and effective. All colors are exceptionally clear and bright, with plenty of small designs that will not "spread" the figure lines. Amusing designs abound: Figures, symbols, illustrations out of books, abstract designs, scrolls, designs copied from the luxury French silk prints, and all the brightest, gayest color combinations imaginable.

The background colors of lime lead the list of new favorites. Eggshell off-white, the popular flesh pinks, soft old blues, golden yellow, gray, and green, are excitingly fresh and eye catching when spattered with paint card colors in floral, geometric, or personage print designs.

There are plenty of black background prints, too, the special choice of discriminating shoppers who know so well what a black background print does for a not so slender silhouette. However, the vivid prints against reds, bright blues, golds, and so on, are delightfully designed with the small motifs that prevent any hint of a wide figure line.

Blouses, too, for winter and spring suits come in vivid prints. They are made from the more amusing conversation starting prints, usually against pastel or contrasting backgrounds, most of them bright, clear, and strong.

Print collections are going fast. These bright, gay creations are seldom duplicated in mass production, so don't hesitate too long over your selection. However, new supplies come in regularly, but not in huge lots. All early collections are now on display in the Chicago shops and stores.

Sketched are four vivid examples of the new in prints on smart rayon crepe materials featured for immediate or later wear. For further information call Superior 0200.

OILS OF THE WILDERNESS

MISS DENNEY'S technicians announce these scientific facts:

1. For Beauty, your skin must have certain vital substances, called LIPOIDS.
2. LIPOIDS are essential to both young and mature skin.
3. Your skin can absorb LIPOIDS.

OILS OF THE WILDERNESS can bring Lovely Beauty to your skin because it contains LIPOIDS in the ratio maintained by the skin.

It is a correct scientific statement to say that OILS OF THE WILDERNESS can be absorbed by the skin.

OILS OF THE WILDERNESS is prominently displayed now in selected Cosmetic Departments.

NACRÉ WHITE

warm as a polished pearl

Spring's new sea-born color. Suggesting the flickering iridescent shades that play across a pearl's smooth surface. It's a delightfully subtle white, sometimes greyish, sometimes creamy. It's a very versatile white—magnificently casual or High Fashion as a couturier's own exclusive shade.
